Mrs. Fiske Tonight.

The following analysis is from William Dean Howell's review of Mrs. Flske's Dean Howel's review of ars, risks s production of "Tess of the D'u'rbervilles" in Harper's Weekly: "Art and truth are forever bound up in each other, and the energy with which the art of this play enforces the truth is its fascination. It loes justice. At last the superstition that there can be one morality for the woman and another morality for the man, which has so long insulted the reason, perishes before your eyes in the scene where Tess and her husband confess their past to each other. There is nothing of explicit pplication in text or action which apice toward his unforgiven wife, but that justice appears in all its monstrous im-idence and hatefulness. I thought it a roof of the marvelous skill of the actres. that she should have been able almost in-articulately to possess the spectator of the fact which Tess does not utter. That was surely a beautiful piece of art, and it was as if inspired by a most delicate reverence for the soul of womanhood it. elf, which when it came to that, could not put its ruin into words. But no one could have mistaken the meaning of that gonized reticelies; the whole nouse was hen Tess with the actress. It is a cruol cene, and it is easily the supreme moment of a play which abounds in high moments. What you feel in Mrs. Picke's work is the weering keenness of the perception and the nervous force which makes the spectator share it. In the high moments you forget the little, slender, in adequate presence of the actress, that be-comes the absence, and it is the great sor-row and misery of the character which fills the stage." ## Blue Jeans.

"Blue Jeans," Joseph Arthur's comed drama of life in Indiana, will be the at-traction at the Lyceum next Saturday evening. "Blue Jeans" is one of the most successful comedy-dramas of today on the road, and has been presented in all of the larger cities to a paying business. The characters are natural, and it is not a common thing to hear some one say that he or she in the part is like so and so in the city. The scenes and incidents are most realistic; the "Rising Sun Roarser's Band," the Starberge and the greater's Band. saw mill scene are wonderful stage pic-tures. A Graphic Story Which Shows How Seldom Women Realize Their True Condition.

In a large silk mill where the looms were thrumming, and all was noise and bustle a woman, skilled in manufacturing and dyeing delicate silks was toil-

She looked tired and dejected. Her cheeks were sunken, and there were dark lines beneath her eyes. You could easily detect the peculiar sallow look which comes upon the faces of all women at certain periods. Occasignally her face, which was usually bright and attractive, would be clouded by pain just as the sunlight is sometimes shut off by passing clouds. It was easy to see she was not happy.

And yet she worked, struggling along when she should have been at home, and possibly in bed. Poor little woman! How brave she was in her suffering and how faithful. And yet, during all that time, she was uncon sciously bringing disaster to her em-Every moment of that day, ployer. while she was so bravely struggling. the exhalations from her body were ruining the delicate voices of the silk upon which she was working.

Alas, she did not know it! But when the choice silks came upon the market and it was found that the colorings were ruined, an investigation was made and the poor little woman was discharged. For what?

Simply because the sickness, which to every woman at certain imes, had, unknown, imperceptibly, olored the gossamer silks over which he was tolling.

This is a sad story, but it is abso-lutely true. It happened in Newark N. J., and furnishes a very valuable It shows that women, howlesson. ever careful they may be, are often, inknown to themselves, exerting an affuence, not only upon the persons, out also upon the things about them which is by no means agreeable. It is unfortunate that such should be the case, but it is rone the less true. And yet, fortunately, it is a fact proven beyond the shadow of a doubt hat women of the present day can,by ivailing themselves of the latest and best discoveries of science, almost wholly overcome the ill-effects of the periodic sickness. It is true there has never been but one discovery for accomplishing this desirable end, but that one has proven to be so pure, so cientific, and so efficient, that it is being used almost universally. Here is what Mrs. Randolph Howell, of

Washington, says upon this most important subject: I have often in the past found it impossible to attend receptions and other social functions, owing to a temorary state of illness, but of late ears I have been enabled to entirely onish all painful effects to myself and ossible unpleasantness to others by the use of a discovery which I believe o be a boon to womankind-Warner's Safe Cure. I have been so wonderfully helped by the painless powers of this remedy-which has seemed like a friend in need-that I have urged its use upon nearly all of my lady acquaint-

Women should not suffer, need not suffer, need not be unpleasing to those about them, if they will only use proper care and the best inventions of science for their help. There is every reason why they should be both healthy and Empire happy: there is no reason why they should be even temporarily indisposed. Tapestry Portieres rendered all this needless. Thousands of women have learned this, and can cheerfully testify to the happy condition they have been in since they learned what to do.
