Attorney W. R. Lewis, of the firm o Taylor & Lewis, appeared for Dr. Vilone and Attorney M. F. Conry represented the prosecution. The defense waived a hearing on the charge of non-registration, but the testimony on the charge of fraudulency was heard. Tedesco stated that he paid in all $122 to Dr. Vilone, $65 of which was for board for his wife and the rest for treatment.

He said that the physician promised to cure Mrs. Tedesco on payment of $60. After the money was paid, Te-desco said Dr. Vilone demanded that the woman be taken from her home. at Forest City, and board with him at 20 per month. Finally Tedesco took his wife from Dr. Vilone's care and

STORIES DIFFER SOMEWHAT.

Divorce Court Brings to Light Pretty Story and Another.

Divorce court, Saturday, developed a pretty little story and another that was not quite so pretty. The pretty story was that of the reuniting of an estrayed couple through the medium of a Christmas present. David T. Hand and his wife, Jennie M. Hand, of Dunmore, had a falling out several months ago and in the heat of anger the hushand instituted divorce proceedings When Christmas rolled around his paternal love-possibly something more which pride would not allow him to contess-moved him to send to his year-old daughter, in care of the mother, a handsome doll. Saturday on peti tion of both parties the proceedings were dismissed. The other story was just the opposite-a couple drifting farther apart. Stephen J. Dickert applied for divorce from his wife, Elizabeth, some time ago, and was asked to file a bill of particulars. He complied, accusing his wife, among other things, of attempting to poison his coffee. The wife, on Saturday, made answer to this bill of church, where the last sad particulars denying all his charges, afternoon if he would act or the commission. He promptly consented and was informed that detailed instructions would be sent by mail. Further information was to the effect that the four mayors would be custodians of all the funds and supplies from this state, Scranton to receive contributions from the northeastern section, Harrisburg from the central. Philadelphia from the southern and Pittsburg from the west-

The instructions mentioned will no doubt be received by Mayor Bailey today and he will adopt some method for a systematic appeal to all points in this part of the state.
