THE STRUGGLE AT PHILADELPHIA

Bolt in the Convention Nominating William J. Roney.

THREE TICKETS NOW IN THE FIELD

Factional Trouble, Which Dates Back to the Spring of 1896, Breaks Out Again--The Convention Marked by Scenes of Great Turmoil and Disorder--Newitt Men Withdraw from the Hall.

Philadelphia, Jan. 12--Although receiver of taxes is the only city officer to be chosen at the coming municipal election in February, with one police magistrate to fill a vacancy, the struggle of the past few months between factions of the Republican party to obtain control of the nominating convention has been the fiercest political contest in this city for many years. This fight culminated today in two Republican candidates being placed in the field. The Democrats also held their convention today and the Philadelphia voters have now three tickets from which to make their selection. The Democrats, in a harmonious convention, nominated Charles P. Donnelly for receiver of taxes and James E. Gorman for magistrate. There was a bolt in the Republican convention nominating William J. Roney, the present incumbent, for receiver of taxes, and the other Harvey K. Newitt. For magistrate the Roney following nominated David T. Hart and the Newitt faction left and registered their dissent in a few days.

The factional trouble among the Philadelphia Republicans dates back to the spring of 1896, when Boies Penrose, now United States senator, was, as he avers, "turned down" for the nomination of mayor by David Martin, ex-national committee man and the recognized leader of the Republican party in the city. War was declared on the leadership of Martin, and in the fall of 1896 there was a split in the shrewdly managed party, and the bolters also received the endorsement of the Democrats, was elected sheriff over Samuel Ashbridge, the regular Republican nominee. The factions lined up several months ago for the battle of the city committee, and by that time the present occupant of this office is William J. Roney, a brother-in-law of David Martin, and his nomination was championed by Mr. Martin, ex-Sheriff Clement, Chairman of the city committee, and by the city administration. The opposition faction was led by United States Senator Penrose and State Senator Durham, and also had the support of Congressmen Bingham and Young, and the passive endorsement of United States Senator Quay. The candidate of this opposition was Harvey K. Newitt, a lawyer. The primary elections for delegates today were held last night and there was a vigorous fight in every one of the 981 polling divisions. When the tally sheets were brought in, the delegates claimed to have elected 598 of the 981 delegates, but this claim was disputed by the Newitt men who announced that 527 delegates favored Newitt held credentials for the convention. As only 491 were necessary to a choice, trouble was sown early in the day.

FIRST CONTEST. The first contest of the day was the meeting of the thirty-eight ward chairmen to select temporary officers for the convention. After a vigorous protest by the Newitt men, who charged irregularity in the acceptance of credentials, the vote was announced to be 21 to 15 for George G. Plerie, ex-recorder of deeds, the Roney candidate for temporary chairman. There were two absentees from the meeting, one being the defendant in a lawsuit, who was called to order there were scenes of great turmoil and disorder, the Newitt men charging that many of the regularly elected delegates had been refused admission to the hall, and their place given to men who favored Roney's nomination.

On a roll call the Newitt leaders declined to hand in their credentials and finally on the plea that their protest were ignored by the chairman, and that the convention was being organized in violation of the rules of the party, they withdrew from the hall. They proceeded to another hall and three nominated Newitt for tax receiver. It was claimed that 511 regular delegates were present, and that the original convention, after the withdrawal of the Newitt men, proceeded with the business before it, and Roney, on a roll call, received 582 votes for tax receiver, there being no other name before the convention.

It is not being conducted in accordance with the rules of the party. The delegates are therefore obliged to adjourn to another hall and there hold a convention which shall be governed by the party rules and which shall nominate a candidate in the proper manner.

Mr. Crow then followed the bolters. When all the bolters had departed and quiet was restored, Henry F. Walton, of the 32nd ward, former speaker of the house of representatives, nominated William J. Roney for receiver of taxes. There was no other nomination. Before the roll call began, David Martin made the suggestion that in any ward where there was a question of the correctness of the vote, the delegates should be allowed to vote a delegate who was not present. He said he wanted everything fair and square.

The roll call showed 582 votes for Roney and he was declared the nominee. Total number of delegates, 981, total votes, 582; necessary to a choice, 491. The convention then adjourned. There was no disorder in the hall after the departure of the bolters.

THE BOLTERS' PARADE. Led by Colonel Ralston and Sheriff Crow, the Newitt bolters marched up Broad street to Warner's hall, their numbers having been augmented by several followers on the street, who had been refused admission to industrial hall. On reaching Warner's hall an organization was effected by the election of Sheriff Crow as temporary chairman and State Senator Elwood Becker and Representative John W. Beck as secretaries.

On taking the chair, Mr. Crow stated that self-respect demanded that the delegates elected to the tax receivers' convention should withdraw from the other hall and meet at another place. One of the bolters proposed to make nominations. "Duly elected delegates," he said, "were deprived of their right to sit in the convention, and our protest against such action was disregarded and ignored. Had justice been done out to us there is not a delegate here who would not have accepted the verdict of the convention and stood by the nomination."

On a roll call by wards the delegates came forward and presented their credentials, and upon conclusion of the call the secretary announced the presence of 511 delegates. All but two of the thirty-eight wards were represented.

The temporary organization was made permanent, Harvey K. Newitt was nominated for receiver of taxes by Colonel Ralston, and the nomination was seconded by Thomas I. Rankin and George McCurdy.

No other name was presented, and Newitt was nominated by acclamation. The convention then adjourned with enthusiastic cheers for the candidate. The Democratic convention was a most harmonious one, not the slightest discord being shown by any of the 97 delegates during the entire procedure. Charles P. Donnelly was nominated for receiver of taxes, and James E. Gorman for magistrate. The nomination in both instances were practically unanimous.

The Republican convention for the nomination of a candidate for magistrate, like the receiver of taxes convention, resulted in a bolt of the anti-combine, or the leaders' league delegates. A roll call on nomination showed 646 votes for David T. Hart and 275 for John Slater, the anti-combine candidate. The Slater delegates then bolted the convention and Hart was declared the nominee.

The Slater men went to another hall, but finally decided to defer action for a day or two. Conventions were also held today in nearly all the wards for the nomination of candidates for city council. There were many factional quarrels, but in only one instance were there double nominations announced.

The election of delegates to the Republican state convention was not without some surprises. An unexpected outcome was the election in the Twenty-fourth district of the six delegates opposed to the candidates whom Senator C. Wesley Thomas favored.

Fort Smith, Ark., Jan. 12--Two scores of human lives and upward of one million dollars worth of property were destroyed by a tornado which burst upon this city a few minutes past 11 o'clock last night. The storm tore its way through the entire city, leaving its path marked by death and desolation. Men, women and children, asleep in their homes, were without a moment's warning awakened to meet death under falling walls or in the flames which soon engulfed many of the wrecked buildings.

LIST OF THE DEAD. The tornado was of such magnitude that the full extent of the damage is not yet known. It swept straight across the city, leaving ruin behind. The known dead are:

Many others were injured. With the first crash of the storm, business blocks, handsome mansions, hotels and humble cottages were leveled to the ground and scattered in shapeless masses. Several of the wrecks caught fire and the inflammable timbers burned furiously. The city was crowded with rural visitors, many of whom were sleeping at boarding houses unregistered. For lack of room the number of victims who perished in Fort Smith last night may never be definitely known.

The storm struck the city near the National cemetery and swept its way through the heart of the town. Leaving Fort Smith it bounded toward Van Buren and continued down the river, demolishing everything in its path. News from outside points is not yet at hand but rumors of much damage as far south as Alma have reached here, it being reported that a number of persons were killed near that place.

A CLEAN SWEEP. The tornado struck Garrison avenue, at the corner of Ninth street, and made a clean sweep from there to the Texas coast.

I. Isaacson's store was entirely demolished and the stock is a total loss. Babcock's grocery store had the rear end blown out. The following stores were totally demolished: Fleming Brothers, coffee and tea; Harsfield's restaurant; Smith's grocery store; Martinez, second hand store; J. Mance, dry goods; Mann & Wilson, groceries; City Feed store. Many other stores were badly damaged.

The upper floor of the block on the corner of Garrison and Towneau avenue is used as a flat. The ruins caught fire and seven bodies were taken from them. Burgess hotel, a three-story brick on Towneau avenue, was demolished. There have been eight bodies taken from the ruins. Rescue parties are still at work at both places, and expect to find several more bodies.

The federal court is in session, and that brought a good many farmers here, who crowded the boarding houses and wagon yards. The Nation house, a two-story frame, went down in wreckage with fifteen inmates, but all escaped without serious injuries. George Carter's house was turned completely over and is now supported on the roof. A half pane of glass was driven through Carter's neck, almost severing the head from the trunk. The National cemetery is a wreck. Huge trees are uprooted, the lodge demolished and the wall torn down.

Fort Smith's $40,000 high school building was badly wrecked, but was one of the few buildings upon which there was a tornado insurance. The tornado destroyed two historic buildings. Judge Parker's residence is badly wrecked, and the other Rector mansion, which Albert Pike once lived, is a pile of ashes, the ruins having caught fire.

The First Baptist church and the Central Methodist church are now only a scattered pile of kindling wood. The Church of the Immaculate Conception and Brownscombe Memorial church lost their spires and sustained other damage.
