DELICATE BIT OF ARBITRATION.

Three City Officials Are Mixed in Peanut-Stand Dispute.

Three city officials have been separately called upon to arbitrate the question of ownership of a small plot of ground on which someone wants to conduct a peanut stand. The plot is next to Roche & Fadden's Lackawanna venue scloon at the eastern terminus of the bridge.

Mr. Hull, who owns the store next the saloon, leased the plot to parties who wanted to build the peanut stand. The permit was secured from the street ommissioner but Roohe & Fadden objected and Chief of Police Robling was asked to be mediator. He couldn't decide the question and referred it to City Engineer Phillips. His verdict was in favor of Mr. Hull.

Roche & Fadden summoned Chief Robling the second time when the erection of the stand was about to begin and it was finally agreed to submit the question to City Solicitor McGinley,
