YOUNG MEN'S FORUM.

An Interesting Meeting Was Held in Y. M. C. A. Parlors.

The Young Men's Forum held its regular meeting in the Young Men's Christian association parlors last evening at 8 o'clock. Despite the unfavorable weather, a large number was present, and a very interesting program was rendered.

An address on "Street Sanitation," discussions on the Cuban question, the Hawaiian question and the late senatorial fight in Ohio were among the interesting novelties. Several new faces were at the meeting and several others are on the membership committee's list for presentation at next meeting.

The young men enter into the work with much spirit and the gatherings are pleasant and profitable.

MID-YEAR CONVENTION.

Programme for the Annual Gathering of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the Two Counties.

The Women's Christian Temperance union of the central city met in the reading room of Edin Park church yesterday afternoon. The large room was well filled with ladies deeply interested in the work of the union. Mrs. C. D. Simpson, the president of the union, presided. After preliminary exercises, Mrs. Simpson introduced Mrs. C. H. Cool, of West Pittston, who, according to programme, gave a reading of the fifth chapter of the Revelation. The chapter details what St. John saw in his vision concerning the book of records sealed with the explanation of what only the Lamb that was slain for the redemption of man's inheritance was worthy to open.

MRS. COOL'S exposition was on generally accepted lines and was a thoughtful and faithful explanation of what seemed hard to comprehend in the chapter. She dwelt at some length on the customs of the old Levitical law with regard to property transfer, and showed they were analogous to the vision of St. John as expounded. Mrs. Simpson presented the following programme of the mid-year convention of the Women's Christian Temperance union of Lackawanna and Luzerne counties, which will be held in Edin Park church, Tuesday, Feb. 11.

BLOOM AVENUE CULVERT.

Estimated Costs of Grading Prepared by the City Engineer.

The following information in reference to the cost of grading the approaches to the Bloom avenue culvert was yesterday prepared by City Engineer Phillips for presentation at tomorrow night's meeting of common council:

Resolution of Council: In answer to a gentleman requesting me to estimate the cost of grading the approaches to Bloom avenue culvert, will state that the necessary grading at the culvert, so that the street may be used at that point, will cost about $219. For a permanent grade from Block street to Warren street it will cost about $1,817.50. Before any work is done, under either estimate, it will be necessary to secure releases from the property owners releasing the city from any damages which might arise from said grading.

BANQUET OF LEHIGH MEN.

The members of the Lehigh University club of Northeastern Pennsylvania and a number of friends will banquet in this city on the night of Feb. 21. That much was decided upon last night at a meeting of the club held in this city, which was presided over by Arthur Long, the president of the club.

He appointed the following committee to arrange the details for the banquet: H. H. Stork, Charles Straw and Morgan Davis, all of this city. It is expected that the banquet will be attended not only by members of the club but by graduates of Lehigh who now reside in various parts of this and New York state. MRS. JAMES GLENN'S SAD DISCOVERY

Found the Mangled Remains of Her Husband at an Undertaker's.

SMILING WHEN SHE ENTERED

Could Not Believe That Her Husband Had Been Killed But as He Was Absent from Home She Thought She Would Look at the Body-She Completely Broke Down-Remains Were Taken to Glenn's Late Home on Bennett Street.

A young woman, blue eyes that sparkled, a fine round face that wore a merry smile, a trim figure dressed in a warm blue dress, a natty hat over beautiful light hair, the hat, like the dress, decorated with the flakes of yesterday's snowfall, entered the office of Raub, the undertaker, on Spruce street, and lightly asked: "Can I see the man who was killed on the railroad last night?" she said with a smile. "I just want to see him, you know," she continued, as Undertaker Raub was leading the way to the back room, where the corpse lay. "Some one mistook me for the undertaker, preparing to uncover the mangled form. "No," said the young woman, tossing her head prettily; "only * * * My God!"

That was the way Mrs. James Glenn, of 1018 Bennett street, North Scranton, learned that her husband, the father of their six-months-old child, was dead, a victim of the terrible iron horse. "Yes," said Undertaker Raub to a Tribune reporter; "she never suspected that it was him. She saw something in the morning papers about a man being killed and the description was quite like that of her husband, who didn't return home Monday night, so she thought she'd come here and feel sure that it was not him. She never realized that death could come to him on the tracks. He was a big, lusty fellow; he only left home Monday morning, and he was a railroad. She was right-hearted, and when she came through the door, but when she saw his face-well, she changed. She screamed and cried as if her heart would break. It was a lesson for me; I'll never let another woman identify a body-but, then, she looked so bright and happy; one couldn't suspect what was really going to happen."

REMAINS TAKEN TO THE HOME. Mrs. Glenn, the widow, left the office sobbing and went and informed friends of the death of her husband, but she did not return to the undertaker's.

The body was removed last evening to the late home on Bennett street. Glenn was a brakeman on the Delaware and Lackawanna, and his father, John Glenn, is a section boss for the same company. He was 26 years of age, and had been married less than two years.

The young married man left his home early Monday morning. He kissed his baby good-bye, as he always did, but didn't say where he was going. That was the last seen of him alive by his friends.

The police and doctors acquainted with the facts of the death thought there might have been foul play. The engineer of the passenger train reaching here from New York at 12:05, which train it is supposed struck Glenn, states that he felt no or any other sign of an obstruction on the track at this point-in the rear of the Phoenix engine house on upper Lackawanna avenue. The fact, also, that Glenn's head was the only part of his body outwardly injured made Chief Robling think a thorough investigation justifiable.

NOT FOUL PLAY. But nothing has developed to indicate foul play. Coroner S. P. Longstreet in his inspection of the body yesterday found that the head was crushed sufficiently to cause instant death. The man's clothing was torn, showing that he was dragged some distance. He had an overcoat when he left home, but the coat was not with him when he met death. Where it will probably appear later.

The name and address, "Annie Barrett, Hillside avenue, Kingston," found on a slip of paper in Glenn's pocket, is a mystery. The police communicated with the Kingston authorities yesterday, but no response was received. Notice of the arrangements for Glenn's funeral will be made later.
