BOARD OF REVISION AT WORK.

Listened to Complaints About the Sixth Ward Assessment. The board of tax revision and appeals yesterday began the task of revising the city assessment recently completed. The revision is made, if thought just, after hearing the complaints of those assessed. H. T. Fellows is chairman of the board and the other members are: John Reagan, Joseph Oliver, W. J. Thomas and James A. Manly. Between forty and fifty complaints against the assessment were made by Sixth ward property owners yesterday. Today appeals from the Seventh ward will be heard.

MRS. WINTERMANTLE IN CUSTODY.

Will Be Held Until Her Mental Condition is Ascertained. Mr. Anthony Wintermantle was removed from her home on Alder street, South Scranton, last night in the patrol wagon, by Lieutenant of Police Zang and Patrolmen Flaherty and Quinnan. She was taken to the central police station where she will be kept pending an examination of her mental condition. The arrest of Mrs. Wintermantle last night, however, was upon a warrant issued from Alderman Peter Robling's office in the Eleventh ward by William Hauser, who alleges that Mrs. Wintermantle smashed the glass in his front door, threatened to harm Hauser bodily and divers other things. The woman gave the police a great deal of trouble about five months ago. She was at that time sent to the Hillside Home and has only recently been at liberty. She has a family of several children.

MRS. DUGGAN ARRESTED THEM.

Two Boys Who Play Pool Against Parental Wishes. Mrs. W. B. Duggan left last night's meeting of the board of associated charities, of which she is agent, and went to a pool room on Penn avenue near Mulberry street at the suggestion of the mothers of several young boys who frequent the place. Mrs. Duggan with the assistance of Patrolman Sartor placed under arrest Frank Courtey, of 245 Raymond court and Lena Van Valen, of 325 Brock court, two boys under 18 years of age. After a period of promise-making at police headquarters the boys were discharged. The proprietor of the pool room, Mrs. Duggan says, will be prosecuted.

FACTS WERE ALL FALSE.

Attacks Made Upon Mrs. Duggan Shown to Be Entirely Without Foundation. Real Facts of the Case.

At the board of associated charities meeting, last night, attention was called to charges that had been publicly made against the board's agent in the Kitty Donohue case, and it was suggested that some action should be taken in regard to them.

After some discussion as to the propriety of noticing the accusations, it was decided that it might be well, out of consideration for the person attacked, that the board should publicly record its approval of the agent's course in the case in question, having satisfied itself that the allegations were baseless and evidently malicious misrepresentations.

The representation in the uncalled for attack that clothing had not been prepared for the child was false as the agent had and still has clothing ready for the child at the hospital. It was said that the agent was responsible for the bill against the girl's trader, being ignored by the grand jury. The bill has never been before the grand jury, but is being held by the district attorney until certain legal conditions necessary to the drawing of the indictment, be fulfilled.

To the charge that the board's agent became surety for Mesher, the accused trader, a transcript of Alderman Millar's docket was produced, showing that he was allowed to go on his own recognizance. The agent is not a property holder and could not under any circumstances become a bondsman.

Further it was shown that the board for the girl was paid to Mrs. Reap in full; that the girl willingly and gladly left there to go to the Scranton private hospital, and as to her being taken away at a time when she should not have been disturbed, it was shown that the physical conditions alleged, do not even yet exist and it was over a week ago that she was removed. The St. Vincent de Paul society is paying for her care at the hospital.

The reason that the clergyman, who was called to perform the marriage, hesitated is that he was not sure that the girl is not weak minded and he did not want to risk committing an offense against the state and his church.

In this connection it was also directed that instructions be given the telephone company to place the board of charities telephone on some line other than that running through the office of the poor tax collector. At the last meeting of the board it was ordered that the Parfrey boy be returned to his mother. Afterwards it developed that the two persons whose names on Mrs. Parfrey's petition had influenced the board, had signed the petition under a misunderstanding and this coupled with the fact that the managers of the Home of the Friendless protested against giving the child care at the hospital, dissuaded the board's agent to hesitate. Last night the board approved the agent's action, recommended the motion of the last meeting and resolved to let Mrs. Parfrey proceed at law to recover her child if she cares to do this.

It was also decided to issue periodically a confidential bulletin to be sent to the board's patrons, giving a list of the names of the questionable solicitors that may come to the town and such other information as will tend to protect them from the frauds that are daily practiced.

In speaking of the work of the board Rev. Mr. Reagan said on Mrs. Parfrey's petition that during the year 1897, twenty-one girls had been rescued and started on the right path by the agent of the society. Letters from some of these saved girls were read and it is safe to say that the praise that they showered on the board and particularly on its efficient agent more than repaid those who heard them for the little labor that their connection with the society costs.

CHARGED WITH SALE OF IMPURE FOOD

Agent of Department of Agriculture After Scranton Merchants.

CONFERENCE WITH SOME OF THEM

When Agent Simmers Found That Impure and Adulterated Articles of Food Were Being Handled by These Merchants, He Asked Them to Meet Him in Alderman Millar's Office--Eighteen of Them Responded--Conference on Next Wednesday.

Eighteen merchants or representatives of merchants doing business in this city met in Alderman W. S. Millar's private office yesterday afternoon and conferred with Robert M. Simmers, agent of the department of agriculture, for the state department of agriculture. The bone of contention, or rather the bone which brought about the conference was "Impure Food," found in the respective business places of the eighteen by Agent Simmers in his rounds. Sooner than prosecute the eighteen, sooner than have them each and severally brought before a committing magistrate, Agent Simmers had the merchants sent to each of the accused and by these means were they gathered.

There were twenty-two letters sent out, four of the merchants failing to answer the summons. They will come, however, said Agent Simmers to a Tribune reporter, if a constable has to bring them.

MUST APPEAR WEDNESDAY.

Each and every one must be at Alderman Millar's office next Wednesday afternoon to settle the cases against them. If they do not trouble will follow.

Agent Simmers has been here, off and on, since last November. He has visited nearly every store in the city and also in Wilkes-Barre and Carbondale and towns and villages between. In this city alone he secured 44 samples of impure food including not only oleomargarine but also imitation of olive oil, spices, vinegar, mustard, and other groceries. Talking to Agent Simmers one would think this city was being visited by a pestiferous plague.

He mentioned the case of one butcher who has been arrested five times for selling oleomargarine. This butcher, when last arrested, paid $15 to settle the case and then he was compelled to register a written agreement to sell no more of the stuff. Spices, olive oil, vinegar, the articles which lend themselves most easily to imitation were found in abundance.

Agent Simmers told the reporter that instead of 49 samples he could have retained several hundred. He selected those, however, he said which could be traced to the wholesale jobbers. After sitting out these he sent out his "call" last Friday to the twenty-four in this city.

MEETING WAS PRIVATE.

The meeting in Alderman Millar's office was not open to reporters. It was learned from good authority, however, that Agent Simmers had agreed to settle the case upon receipt of a trivial fine and the costs in each case. The penalty for a single offense of selling impure food, as proscribed by the law, is a fine of not less than $50, and not more than $100, the costs of prosecution, and a term of imprisonment not to exceed 90 days and not less than 30 days.

WHEN THE MEETING NEXT WEDNESDAY

held States' Attorney Joseph H. Shoemaker, of Philadelphia, will be present.

"NEVER AGAIN" AT THE LYCEUM.

Taken in its entirety "Never Again" is the most entertaining farce presented in Scranton this season. It was seen at the Lyceum last night by a large audience and what is perhaps of more importance, an audience that gave every evidence of thoroughly enjoying the production. The farce is being served up on the stage in Frohman's best style.

The farce is borrowed from the French and of course, is built on the faithfulness of husband to wife and to husband. A French farce, or for that matter, any other form of stage production that bears that stamp, would seem to us untrue to its origin if it did not deal lightly with matrimony and reveal in domestic infidelity. The general tone of the farce is such that a thoughtful guardian might be justified in denying the young person the privilege of a closer acquaintance with it than is afforded by the bill boards, but the situations are constructed and acted with great delicacy.

There is action a plenty; in fact every act teems with it, and the farce moves with a dash and swing from beginning to end sufficient to keep the interest of the audience constantly keyed up. Charles Frohman has supplied a cast for "Never Again" that would be sufficient to make a success of the most ordinary kind of farce. The company is headed by E. M. Holland, who will be remembered by Scranton theater goers for his marvelous piece of acting on his last appearance here as Hamby, the servant in "A Social Highwayman." Last night he was a sportive old boy who is supposed by his admirers to be an excellent manager to have a larke now and then. The history made during one of those larke scenes was that of Mr. Holland is nothing if not natural and his work last night was a decided treat.

Grace Kimball, as the wife of Katzenjammer, the musician, was particularly entertaining and good to look at no matter how she was gowned, but it was hard to associate her with the frivolous, thoughtless ex-cook who won the affections of the exotical Katzenjammer. It is no small tribute to her to say that she is excellent in a character that seems removed from the class of work for which she has a natural bent. Other very clever members of the company were Maggie Hallway Fisher, Marie Derickson, a very pretty and graceful woman, Hugo Toland, Samuel Reed, George Martin and Anita Rotho. Some very pretty gowns were worn by the women during the three acts of the farce.

BENEFIT NETTED $400.

Executive Committee of the Davis Testimonial Meets. The executive committee of the George E. Davis benefit met in Reese & Long's office last evening, and, after receiving returns and making estimates, announced that the net receipts were in all about $400. The committee voted thanks to everybody who assisted and gave special recognition to the work done by William McBride, Frank Martin, A. E. Strong, J. R. Cohen, Frank Robbins, J. G. Reese and H. B. Long.

HE WOULDN'T BE CONVICTED NOW.

Clemon Arnold Discharged from the Eastern Penitentiary. Clemon Arnold was yesterday released from a one year and three months in the penitentiary, where he was committed December 5, 1896, for attempting to kill Joseph F. Hocking, of Carbondale township. Arnold was prompted to the deed by jealousy. During his incarceration his wife secured a divorce and married Hocking.

VERY SAVAGE TRAMP.

Assaulted a Man with a Knife Who Would Not Buy a Blanket from Him.

Somebody who slept last night without the usual lot of blankets on his couch will be glad to read this. Two blankets, both of a bright red color, were found in a room in the city and also in one case under quite serious circumstances. The blankets are now at police headquarters, just a few yards removed from a nameless tenement building in the city in his possession and is now in a cell.

This particular blanket stealer tried to sell his booty. To bring about the sale he used a knife on his unwilling customers, hence his forcible detention. He is a man of about 30 years of age, dirty in appearance and poorly clothed. Last night he was intoxicated. He knocked at the door of Michael Kierski's house at 256 River street, South Scranton, at about 8 o'clock in the evening. Kierski himself opened the door.

"How much will you give me for this?" said the man on the sill, presenting as he spoke a red blanket. "I don't want it," replied Kierski, suspecting a hornet in the lurid folds of the red cover.

"But you must take it," said the tramp, speaking fiercely. "I don't want it at any price," repeated Kierski calmly.

"I say you do," yelled the peddler angrily as he pushed through the door and into the room; "you've got to buy this blanket, see?"

"Now see here," spoke back Kierski, getting as warm as the blanket; "Kierski put his hands on the tramp's shoulders with the intention of removing him. When he did so the man dropped the blanket, quickly thrust his hand in his pocket and drew out a sharp blade he struck savagely at Kierski. The sharp steel cut a deep gash in Kierski's left wrist.

A border rushed to Kierski's assistance. A blow from the knife and he also bore a wound across his hand. But the combined strength of the two men was too much in the end for the tramp. He was thrown to the floor, pinioned and a messenger was sent for help to police headquarters. Patrolman John Hawne was dispatched to the house, and at 9 o'clock placed the tramp under arrest and took him with the blanket to the police station.

The fellow would not talk of his escapade, not even giving his name. He will be given a hearing in police court this morning.

At about the same time as the affair in South Scranton another blanket was located on Penn avenue, near Mulberry street, Jacob Suravitch, who keeps a store at No. 420, saw a man passing with a blanket in his arms. Suravitch rushed out to see the fellow, but he was seen first. The man dropped the blanket and made off toward the Capitol avenue at the top of his speed. Patrolman Block carried the blanket to police headquarters. It was red.

"Those who lost blankets may, act, as the lodge notices say, "accordingly."

O. B. Partridge made application for a divorce for Florence A. Fish, who complains of a cruel husband in the person of Robert E. Fish. They were married in Gilbertsville, N. Y., Dec. 24, 1878, and lived together until Jan. 29, 1896.

LUTHER LEAGUE SOCIAL.

Entertained at the Home of G. W. Schive, of Gibson Street. The Luther league of Holy Trinity church was very pleasantly entertained last night at the home of G. W. Schive, of Gibson street. There were about forty members of the society and their friends in attendance. Vocal and instrumental music and recitations by the company and a happy original sketch "A Brand New Dilapidated Hat," by Mr. Schive was a part of the entertainment. Refreshments were served before the party dispersed.

THE LECTURE ON MICHAEL ANGELO

Delivered by A. V. Bower in the Auditorium of High School.

IT WAS A BRILLIANT EFFORT

Illustrated by Many Beautiful Views of Masterpieces of Angelo and Other Famous Artists--Mr. Bower Said Angelo Was Not Only a Sculptor, Artist and Architect, but a Poet Less Known to the World Than He Should Be.

A. V. Bower, of this city, appeared in the Standard course of the Young Men's Christian association last evening in the high school auditorium. The subject of his lecture was Michael Angelo. It was one of the best, if not the best, in the series. Mr. Bower is a brilliant speaker, and is a favorite in his home city, where his wide culture and delightful manner of presenting subjects are greatly appreciated. His scholarly development of the fascinating theme of last evening was heard with wrapt interest by a large audience.

In beginning the speaker said that he did not purpose giving a history of the turbulent times nor of the artist contemporaries of Michael Angelo, but to simply follow the one life, which, in its field of labor as architect, artist and sculptor, stands foremost. Capri, the birthplace of the great artist, was described with graphic touches, as were also his early days, when the triumph of the young genius began with his being bound by the elder Buonorroti to learn the art of painting with a master.

HIS EARLY WORK.

Michael Angelo was about twenty-four when he finished the Pieta, which still remains unrivaled for the union of sublime aesthetic beauty with profound religious feeling. The immortal loveliness of death in the recumbent figure of the Christ in the arms of his sorrowing mother, caused all previous productions to pass into shadow. With the production of the colossal statue of David he became the master of all Italy. His favor with Pope Julius II resulted in the commission for a tomb which would have occupied the greater part of his life had not the death of the Pope ended the project, which caused more sorrow, disappointment and misunderstandings than all his other efforts.

The work in the Sistine and the difficulties thrown round it by Bramante were described. The record of twenty months' toil resulting in seventy complete pictures stands unparalleled. It is said by Kugler that it contains the most perfect work done by Michael Angelo in his long and active life. The scenes from Genesis are the most sublime representations of these subjects. Here his great spirit appears in its noblest dignity, its highest purity. When we reflect upon the extent of the Sistine Vault, the difficulties presented by its curves, when we remember that this enormous space is alive with 343 figures in every conceivable attitude, some twelve feet high, those seated or prophets and sibyls measuring nearly eighteen feet when upright, when we see all animated with extraordinary vigor, presenting types of the utmost variety and vivid beauty, imagination quails before the intellectual energy which could first conceive a scheme so complex and then carry it with such mathematical precision in its minutest details, the results seem overwhelming.

MEDICI TOMB DESCRIBED.

The Medici tomb was described in detail, and a description of the great masterpiece, the Last Judgment, followed, and his work on St. Peter's was rapidly delineated, and then the speaker passed on to his genius as a poet, saying "He was not only a sculptor, artist and architect, but a poet less known to the world than he should be. So great was he in other respects that his poetry, his nature and all his heavenly mysteries the materials with which he created his intellectual masterpieces."

At the age of 91 the great artist died active to the last. To him life meant responsibility. He had no peace, even in old age. He never married, and his only bride was art. His father and brother were not friendly toward him, and yet he supported them, in order to do so sleeping with his workmen, instead of having his own room. The speaker's description of "Moses" was a piece of word painting seldom equaled. Indeed the entire lecture was filled with rarely good diction and graphic thought.

PICTURES SHOWN.

Among the beautiful views shown were the subject's portraits "La Pieta," the "David," the "Moses," the detail of the Sistine ceiling, including the prophets, sibyls, etc. and "Last Judgment," the bronze doors of Ghiberti, the tomb of Lorenzo di Medici in St. Peter's "The Captive," "The Madonna of San Lorenzo," "The Fury" and "The Fates." Besides these portraits of Savonarola, Dante, Raphael and others were given with pictures of famous artists.

Among these were the Bodenhausen's "Madonna," Coreggio's "Holy Night," Fougerac's "Lady of the Angels," Mantegna's "Immaculate Conception" and Raphael's "Transfiguration." These, with many other pictures of places, people and noted paintings, made up an entertainment invaluable to the art lover, the student or the general reader. It is to be hoped that Mr. Bower can be prevailed upon to repeat it where a larger audience can be accommodated.
