PRACTICAL BEGINNING.

Invitations had been sent to memers of the large manufacturing firms of Wilmington to inspect the car Tuesday afternoon and many of them responded. The car had been previously quipped with samples of the books and papers used by the schools and these vere explained to the callers. Thus at the outset the car was made to serve its business purpose as there had been for several days at work in Wilmington a permanent corps of solicitors under the direction of Norman Foster. The corps will remain there several weeks after the departure of the car.

Following is a minute description of the car, somewhat technical, perhaps, but none the less calculated to be understood by the lay as well as the me-Performed Last Evening at St. Luke's | chanical mind:

The length of the body is 50 feet and the width 9 feet and 8 inches over the sills. The interior is divided into compartments as follows: First is a reception room, 18 feet long, furnished n quartered oak and fitted with bookcases, center table, wicker chairs with cushions, couch, carpet, curtains, etc. There are four sleeping sections of upper and lower berths, eight in all, occupying 12 feet and 6 inches of the length, giving sleeping accommodations for eight persons. Each bed is taffeta silk, with lace trimming, and fitted with mattress, pillows, blankets, and the other necessary bedding. The seats forming the lower berths are covered with plush and are fitted with headrests. Tables are provided to fit between the seats for holding books, writing materials, etc.

The storage room is 14 feet and 6 inhes long and is fitted in baggage car style for the storage of books. There are two lockers in this room, one for lothing and the other for books and upplies At the extreme end of the car there

SOME GOOD REASONS.

Scrantonians could better appreciate the reasons for the special car idea and its great expense if they comprehended the enormity of the International schools, their absolute reliability and the fact that certain large publishing houses have recently inaugurated so-called correspondence systems and that the Scranton concern hopes by means of the car to forestall ome of the fraud and injury the publication schools are working upon susceptible mechanics and young men.

It has cost the International schools over $200,000 for the preparation and writing of instruction papers, exclusive of the cost of printing and publishing. There has been invested in the business over three-quarters of a million dollars. Its operation requires the emplayment of over 400 employes, exclusive of nearly 100 solicitors and agents. It is admitted by the officers that the best way to secure a technical education is to take a course in a regular technical college but the claim is made that it is not possible for busy men to attend colleges. To fill the place of these, the International system is not intended, but there are some respects in which the International

The system of instruction thus originated has developed into the largest technical school in the world, has overcome the difficulties which attend these classes in their efforts to educate themselves at night school or by home study with textbooks, has placed technical education within the reach of thousands who would otherwise have remained in ignorance of the theories of their trades, and has helped hundreds to be come superintendents, foremen, draftsmen, engineer, etc., who, without it, would never have obtained such posi-

IT'S EASY TO DYE

DYES IS PLEASANT AND PROFITABLE.

Beautiful and Brilliant Colors That Will Not Fade .- Diamond Dyes Have Special Colors for Cotton and Mixed Goods -- How Wise Women Economize in Hard Times -- A Ten Cent Package of Diamond Dyes Saves Ten Dollars.

In these days of enforced economy t should be a pleasure to any woman to learn how she can save the cost of new gown for herself and suit for the little one, or can make her husband's faded clothing look like new, Diamond Dyes, which are prepared especially for home use, will do all this. They are so simple and easy to use that even a child can get bright and beautiful colors by following the directions on each package, There is no need of soiling the hands with Diamond Dyes: just lift and stir the goods with two sticks while in the dye bath, and one will not get any stains or spots. In coloring dresses, conts, and all large articles, to get a full and satis-factory color, it is absolutely necessary to have a special dye for cotton goods and a different dye for woolen goods. This is done in Diamond Dyes, and before buying dyes, one should know whether the article to be colored is cotton or wool, and get the proper dye. Do not buy dyes that claim to color everything, for their use will result in failure to be compelled to receive her in the county jail. Judge Archbald was moved to compassion and when District Attorney Jones nodded his acquiescense, his honor said, "Very well, $500." It developed, however, that the man who was offering himself as bondsmap did not have the deed of his property on record and the court would not hear to his being accepted. Attorney Boyle called after Judge Archbald as he was leaving the bench:

'He says he will record the deed in the morning, your honor." "Very good, bring the prisoner around in the morning." and the judge continued on his way to his chambers. Grandinetti will likely receive his mother in the county jail.

EXHIBITION OF ANTIQUES.

Some of the Interesting Things to Be Seen at Universalist Church. Those who like to look back now and then to the days of old and who were present at the Universalist church last evening enjoyed a treat long to be re membered. The little chape, was fairtransformed into a treasure house. Everywhere was the flavor of the days long gone. One center of interest was an old fire place with crane, andirons, tongs and other things in keeping. On the shelf were old lanterns, candle sticks, candle molds, dipper, gourd,

A long table reaching nearly across the chapel was loaded with relics. Among them hand-spun linen and blankets, old garments and needle work, deeds, books, pewter, china and brassware, coins, pictures, bullet molds, powder horns and swords. Among things not old but interesting were a marine spy glass and minerals from various parts of the world. The chief attraction was no doubt the spinning E. Loomis and Mrs. Mary Champlin kept the large wool wheels humming, and Mrs. P. T. Collins quiet-spun flax on the small wheel. The spinning is really a great rarity in this day and generation, and the fiving wheels furnish a great deal of food for thought and imagination Light refreshments were served and the evening was one of much enjoyment. The exhibition will be contin ued this afternoon and evening.
