

QUIET AT THE MARTIN TRIAL

The Proceedings Unmarked by Sensational Incidents.

MORE DEPUTIES ARE IDENTIFIED

The witnesses have no difficulty in pointing out several of the men who carried guns—George Yamchak describes action at Cross Range.

Wilkes-Barre, Feb. 10.—The Martin trial resumed its even tenor today and the examination of witnesses was continued without any sensational proceedings. Morris Engleman, of West Hazleton, was first called. He said that on the day of the shooting he was on the road near the deputies. This was at the time the strikers were entering Lattimer. He testified that he was told by the deputies to go into his house, as he was in danger of being shot.

On cross-examination Engleman said he thought the deputies were doing all they could to preserve the peace, and disperse the strikers in a peaceable manner without violence. He did not see the strikers carrying arms, but admitted that they might have been armed, as he did not see all of them. Daniel Ferry, a grocer of Hazleton, who was driving along the road near the deputies at the time, testified that he saw the strikers, who were marching, and they were quiet and orderly. They were talking quietly among themselves. He also said he saw the shooting at Lattimer, being near the deputies at the time. He heard first a single shot, and saw a striker fall. Then there was a volley, and several fell, and after the volley there was a number of separate shots.

The witness said he saw a wounded man, who was lying on the railroad track, get up and try to walk away, but he was shot down again. Ferry said he remembered seeing Deputies Edward Turnbach, William Raught and John Turner at Lattimer. He said he saw W.M. Raught after the shooting became general, run after the strikers as far as the railroad track and shoot at a striker who was running toward the school house.

Counsel for the defense asked the witness if Sheriff Martin was not in as much danger of being shot as any of the strikers, when the shots were fired by the deputies.

"No, sir," replied the witness, "he was quite out of danger. He was out of line of the fire."

WHAT JOE ZAPP SAW.

Joe Zapp, one of the men wounded at Lattimer, was the next witness. He said when the strikers reached Lattimer the sheriff stopped them, "I was some little distance away," he said, "and pushed forward to hear what was said. The sheriff told the leaders that they could not go on to the mine, but the leaders said they were going, and the sheriff again stopped them. After the shooting became general, he pushed past the sheriff and the shooting commenced. I ran and got on the other side of the railroad track before I was hit. The ball struck me in the back. I fell and got up again. Because I was afraid of being shot, I ran a short distance and then fell again, and didn't know anything more."

Daniel Murphy was then called. He said he saw Deputy A. E. Hess give water to a wounded striker, and together with Alonzo Dodson and A. M. Eby carried some of the wounded men to the cars.

He could not identify a Winchester rifle as being of the kind the deputies carried, but the next witness, Herman Pottinger, did so.

August Catski said that the deputies pushed and prodded the strikers at West Hazleton and forced them out of the road; that he and Martin Locka, although some distance from the other strikers, were followed by two deputies who struck them with their guns. The witness said he was standing near the car on which the deputies embarked to go to Lattimer and he heard one of the deputies, whom he does not know, say, "I wish they would shoot at Lattimer and they would shoot them."

Catski said he was not at Lattimer, but his brother and several of his friends were wounded there.

Catski said the strikers were especially notified at the meeting at Harwood the night before the shooting, not to carry any arms because some of them might not know they were violating the law by so doing and would be arrested.

John Penrick, who reached Lattimer after the shooting, said he helped several wounded men, but could not tell where their wounds were. Upon the calling of John Ulrich the defense agreed to admit the following facts in order to hurry the trial along by avoiding a continuing repetition of the same questions: First, the meeting of the strikers at Harwood; second, the presence of the deputies and strikers at West Hazleton; third, the fact that the deputies were armed; fourth, the fact that apparently the strikers were not armed.

DEPUTY IDENTIFIED.

Ulrich pointed out Thomas H. Hall as the deputy who struck a striker at West Hazleton cutting his head and breaking his arm. He denied on cross-examination that he had struck Deputy F. Milner Morris on the arm at West Hazleton or that he threw stones at any of the deputies. He also denied

CONCERNING THE CAPITOL CASES

Judge Simonton's Opinion is Expected Soon.

THE INJUNCTION AGAINST COBB

Suggestion is Made That a Decree Be First Entered in the Dauphin County Courts—Counsel Agree to Aid in Speeding the Final Disposition of the Case.

Harrisburg, Feb. 10.—Judge Simonton is expected to hand down an opinion within the next twenty-four hours in the proceedings brought by Attorney-General McCormick to restrain the capitol building commission from awarding a contract for a capitol according to the plans and specifications of Henry Ives Cobb.

This morning the attorney-general requested counsel for the commission to meet the judge with him at chambers, which they did. The attorney-general stated to the judge that in cases of this character, where an appeal is taken by either party to the Supreme court, the court is required by act of assembly to hear and determine the case as though it had original jurisdiction and the application for an injunction had been made to said court. In view of this act of assembly he suggested that such decree might be entered by the Dauphin county court, as it deemed proper without argument of counsel on either side.

General McCormick further stated as an additional reason that the suggestion had been made by the court in the course of the trial that it would be a waste of time for both courts to practically try the same case as courts of original jurisdiction. He also said that the fact must be recognized that no matter what the decision of the Dauphin county court might be, an appeal would lie in to the Supreme court by the one side or the other.

He thought a submission of the case and an early decree or the court here would greatly speed its final determination and stated that if the decision was adverse to the commission, an immediate appeal would be taken to the Supreme court. Counsel for defendants agreed to aid in speeding the final disposition of the case, however it might be decided, and it was therefore submitted to the court without argument of counsel.

MINOOKA POLLING PLACE.

Changed Again Yesterday by Order of Court.

Next Tuesday the voters of the South district of Lackawanna township will not make their marks and do other things that they are accustomed to do on election day at a little building expressly built for such purposes alongside John J. Coyne's hotel.

Court yesterday made an order directing that inasmuch as it appears that the said polling place is not on the property designated by court, that the legal location be changed from the place established by the former order to the vacant lot belonging to Martin McDonough, on the corner of Elm and Main streets, Minooka. The county commissioners are directed to erect an iron booth at that place.

An order was also made fixing the property of Joseph Kramer, corner of Prospect avenue and Maple street, as the polling place for the Second district of the Nineteenth ward.

The houses of Messrs. McCloskey's hall, as indicated in yesterday's Tribune, was fixed as the polling place for the Third district of Poll township.

Appointments of election officers were made as follows: Fred Proyer, majority inspector of Second district; George T. Bugdon, Judge A. V. Bover, majority inspector, Third district; Louis N. Boyle, Judge, Second district of the Third ward of Ollyphant; L. C. Hathaway, Judge, First district of the Second ward of Ollyphant.

SELLING GOLDFISHES.

The Useful Little Net with Which They Are Dipped Up out of the Tank.

In a store where home aquarium supplies are sold there are, besides the usual varieties of goldfish, some of the ugliest, a number larger than goldfishes, various shapes and sizes, in which stock is kept for sale. The tanks themselves are, of course, sold if there is a demand for them.

Lying across the corner of the largest of these tanks is a little net, the hoop no more than five or six inches in diameter, and the handle about a foot long. This is to scoop up the goldfishes when they are sold. When a new outfit is sold complete the fishes are delivered in the globe or tank. It often happens, however, that the person already owning a globe wants to replace fish that have been lost, or to add to his stock, and he goes to the store where such things are sold and buys one or more goldfishes. Just as he would buy any merchandise, except that instead of sitting down at a counter to make his selections, he bends over a tank and indicates among the fishes swimming about the ones he wants. He makes his selections the dealer scoops them out with the little net, and as likely as not the purchaser carries the fish he has bought, a single fish or half a dozen, or whatever the number may be, right away with him in a tin snail.

Little goldfish of the commoner kinds can be bought for a few cents apiece. Some of the rarer varieties cost dollars.

No Chance for a Habit.

There was once an Irishman who sought employment as a diver, bringing with him his native enthusiasm and a certain amount of experience. But he had the Hibernian smile which is convincing, and the firm chance to need a new man. And so on the following Monday morning Pat hid his smile for the first time in a diving helmet.

Now the job upon which the crew to which Pat had attached himself was working in comparatively shallow water, and Pat was provided with a pick and trowel to use on a ledge in the manner with which he was already familiar.
