THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE-SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1898.

Oh be merry while you may Lenten days speed hither. Dance and laugh the hours away Ere the roses wither 'Neath the astes of the morn When in deep repentance lying You must rue the gladness worn Down the days swift flying.

"Dear me," ejaculated a young w man this week, who has entered with spirit into the fad of the hour of sending missionary boxes away filled with garments made by the society leaders. and their friends. "Dear me, I feel sorry for the missionary or the frontier preacher who gets that box. If his wife doesn't' make him repent that he ever heard a call to the ministry, then I'm much mistaken. When she sees these queer looking things which her children are expected to wear she'll haven't got to wear 'em. Unless her children are constructed on a different plan from humanity in general they Mrs. William McClave, Mrs. Eugene S. never in the world can wear these aprons. Who ever cut them out designed them to be buttoned down the back. We've made 'em the other way round, and the sleeves turn upwards instead of down. One of the queer shaped outing flannel things which was intended as a nightle for the smallest girl we've made into a jacket for the oldest boy, and by mistake Helen and Alice have sewed up the piece of cashmere designed for Mrs. Minister's best gown, into a lounging coat for the minister himself. And now they tell us that he has no time to lounge and wouldn't know what to do with such an article of luxury. It's all lined with quilted satin, too. How hard it is to do charitable work.

The reception given by Judge and Mrs. E. N. Willard on Tuesday evening has been the much talked of large society affair of the week, A departure from the usual mode of entertaining on such occasion was a welcome feature. This was a series of monologues, readings and impersonations by Mr. Harry C. Peckham, of New York, who delighted the hundred or more guests with his versatility Elaborate floral decorations were arranged by Clark. Among the guests were: Rev. J. B. ESTIMATES COMMITTEE 'TO MEET

Will Begin Work on the Appropria tions Next Wednesday Night.

The first meeting of the estimates committee of councils to consider the annual appropriation ordinance will be held next Wednesday evening in the

It is later than usual for the initial consideration of the ordinance, but most of the members believe the committee's work can be performed with less confusion and more satisfactorily if too much opportunity is not given for interference. This idea is so geueral that scarcely more than one meeting per week will be held by the committee up to the first Monday in April by which time the ordinance must be finally passed by councils.

CATACOMBS UP TO DATE.

Tombs of Christian Martyrs Now Inspected by Electric Light.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

The visitor to Italy complains of modern steam tugs on the grand canal in Venice, and the new-fangled ideas of cleanliness in the streets of Naples and the new quarters in Rome, but the height of the prosaic seems to have been reached with the illumination of the catacombs by electric light. No more dim distances, in which one must take care not to be lost, no more monkguides holding lighted tapers, no more darkness, mystery and imagination, This being the feast of St. Cecilia, the catacombs of St. Calixtus, where the Roman virgin was buried in 177 A. D., were today for the first time all glowing and glaring with thousands of electric globes, and giving to the whole a mundane rather than a mystic air. These catacombs are outside the Porta San Sebastiano, on the magnificent Appian way, that the Romans called the Queen road, and near the world-renowned tomb of Cecilia Metella. St. Cecilia is not the only prominent martyr of the early Christian era whose name is connected with this burial place, for the remains lie there of several popes of the third century, as witness the original tombs of St. Antherus, St. Fabian, St. Luclus, St.

Cornelius and St. Eutychianus, who all sat in the chair of St. Peter. Thousands of Romans and foreigners have today visited this sacred spot. The crowd itself formed a picturesque view, as from below one looked up at the pilgrims descending and ascending the long steep flight of stairs or at the long processions of cowled monks and black-robed nuns, showing in vivid contrast to groups of students of the German College in their scarlet gowns, a garb that causes them to be called in fun the little cardinals. The corridors responded in echoes to their chants at the different altars, while there was a subdued hum from the less devout sightseer. What would be unperceived by the visitor if he were not preinformed is that the five miles of corridors and chapels are not on the same level, but form three different floors, one under the other. The most interesting spot is where St. Cecilia's tomb was found, and where also stands a copy of the statue of the saint, designed by Maderno, representing her after her martyrdom. Next stands a most interesting marble tablet, the inscription on which was originally a dedicated to Marcus Aupagan one relius. The Christians utilized the tablet by turning it and writing on the back a new epitaph to Pope St. Damascus

Bones and skeletons of the ancient nartyrs are found all along the walls. in three rows, one above the other. The lower room is the more disturbed, as almost every one tries to take something away as a sacred relic. But the electric light on these bones turns the catacombs into a museum,
