BROWN AND WHITE HAS ITS INNING

Lehigh University Club Has Its Annual

WAS AN ENTHUSIASTIC AFFAIR

In Point of Numbers It Was Comparatively Small, but in the Matter of Spirit It Was Decidedly Large. Professor Franklin Attends and Speaks About the University -- Address of President Long .- W. R. Butler Acts as Tonstmaster.

Nobody slept in Hotel Jermyn last night until nearly 12 o'clock, unless it happened to be a guest that was deaf or one who had become inured to noise during a long service in a boiler shop. Why? Because the Lehigh University club of Northeastern Pennsylvania was in the breakfast room, wining and dining and speechifying and singing and giving their ear-splitting "Chee Haw" and "Hoo-rah-ray! Hoorah-ray! ray-ray-ray! Lehigh! Lehigh! Lehigh!" There were only twenty-one of the Lehigh University Club of Northeastern Pennsylvania of them, but they were as good as a whole grand-stand, when it came to uncorking enthusiasm. No more really collegiate dinner could be imagined. The banquet tables were arranged in the shape of a Greek cross, and there were lavish decorations of brown and he was identified with it up to the time white, the Lehigh colors.

THOSE AT THE TABLES.

Arthur Long, the president of the club, presided at the dinner. On his right sat the guest of honor, Dr. W. S. Franklin, professor of electrical engineering, at Lehigh university, and on his left was the toastmaster, W. R. Butler, of Mauch Chunk. The others present were: H. Kemmerling, Morgan Davis, jr., W. R. Pierce, C. P. Turner, Walter Briggs, W. A. James, Charles Straw, Edward N. McIlvain, John M. Beaumont, H. W. Rowley, H. H. Stock, J. J. Clark, J. T. Reese Scranton; H. S. Drinker, Philadelphia; R. P. Linderman, Bethlehem; G. E. Shepherd, Wilkes-Barre; Charles Gra-ham, jr., Kingston; W. T. Hutchins, Wyoming; H. L. Manley, Hazleton.

After discussing the excellent dinner served by Landlord Godfrey, and sing-ing first of all "America," and their various college songs, the speechmaking began with the address of the president, Arthur Long. It was an elo-quent and interesting effort and was reference to Lehigh or anything pertaining to Lehigh being the signal for "yell." Mr. Long said, in substance Fellow Alumni: We meet tonight with four years of happy incidents and ex-periences at dear old Lehigh, and to kindle anew the fires of college fellowship that gleam so brightly in the shadow of each of us. As president of the Lehigh University club of Northeastern Pennsylvania, it gives me unbounded pleasure to welcome gives me unbounded pleasure to welcome you—each one of you—to this feast that awakens us to the memory of a happy past. And especially does it give me pleasure to welcome to this banquet our dear friend, Dr. Franklin, A stranger to many of us perhaps, but not to the world, who know him by the deeds he has wrought and the good he has done.

I was not born in the right time of the moon to have been endowed with the moon to have been endowed with the gift of speech-making, but I would take this opportunity to briefly illustrate the relationship of a college education

REALIZE IT NOW.

Blessed with the exhiliration of youth and many vigor, burdened by no cares other than those that lean lightly upon us, we did not comprehend while at colege the systematic training that so judic-ously aids now to spur us on to greater efforts; yet when we look at and think of the great men-great statesmen-our college machinery has developed, then is is we point with pride to the years spent on hill and vale in the dear old city of South Bethlehem. College education disciplines mankind.

It's the careful, painstaking, well-direct-ed forces and professions inculcated into the minds of the youth that leads to the ripened fruit of experience and thought-fulness in mature years. Compare the businesses of today with those of years ago, when competition was naught and struggle less great. Compare the inven-tions of modern ideas with those of our forefathers. True, perhaps, the seed was sown. Yet, so with the college life. Then it was the hard-fisted merchant who amassed fortunes. Now it is the result of advanced education and ideas; the practical, thoroughly cultured mind—the nind that grasps the details and deyours them as the fly would grasp the in-

What a pleasure it is to us today, when in our ordinary pursuits of life, we read of, or in some way feel associated with the great army of able men whose training came from within the walls of old Lehigh. For go throughout the length and breadth of this great country—yes, cross the seas, if you like, and here and there you'll learn of those whom nations here or teday, and who developed their honor today, and who developed their seeds of aspirations in the same seats and the same study rooms that dealt so kindly with all of us. Not that men have been born and at-tained greatness without a college educaion. Oh, no! For there are many whos wits have been sharpened by the fierce and continued struggle: whose pulses throbbed for hours 'neath the weight of burdens greater than ours.

THE GLORY OF LEHIGH. The great glory of Lehigh men is that influence weilded, there is moted and inculcated into mankind loft-er ideas of life, thought and action. To many of you, perhaps, the old appela-tion of Alma Mater seems sentimentally weak. We should not lack the commun-ity of feelings which occur as dreary things. The old familiar scenes and fa-miliar faces cannot fail to arouse in us the sacred memories and constant charm the sacred memories and constant charm in the life we led there. We ought to have a pleasurable sense in these com-mon memories that would make our loyally to Lehigh all the more secure.

Our club tonight celebrates its seventh annual banquet. We are honored by the presence of friends from all parts of the state; men whose walks in life lead in various directions; men of position, whose presistent diligence at coltion, whose persistent diligence at college has inured to them in business suc-

We had expected that our beloved preswe had expected that our beloved president, Dr. Drown, would be with us, but his health would not permit. Yet I am gratified to know that he is rapidly regaining his health—so long encumbered—and that soon he will be able to resume his official duties at the head of the College.

Our joy would know no bounds this evening could the doctor have shared this occasion with us, as well as the others of our beloved friends and faculty who are necessarily detained. Would that some disembodied spirit might bear to them our greating this night which bear to some disembodied spirit might bear to them our greeting this night; might beck-on to them the tidings that in the midst of our festivities, our thoughts went out to them; that without them, our ban-quet is incomplete—the only dark spot in our evening of pleasure.

But from their homes there seems to come the cry: "Our best wishes are with you; let not our absence prove a source of grief, not cast a shadow of displeas-

And now, gentlemen, it gives me great pleasure to introduce to you one, though not known to some of you personally, but whose name typifies one of the bright-est of our Alma Mater, that prince of good fellows, who will preside over us this evening, Mr. William R. Butler, TOASTMASTER'S REMARKS. Toastmaster Butler, in assuming his duties, made a very neat speech, in which he referred feelingly to the old days at Lehigh and to men who had helped make it famous. He was followed by Dr. Franklin, who responded to the toast "Lehigh University;" R. P. Linderman, president of the Bethlehem Iron company, who had "The Alumni" for his theme; W. R. Pierce, who told of Lehigh's "Athletics;" H. H. Stock, who dealt in "College Reminiscences," and J. J. Clark, who grew eloquent over "The Lehigh Girl." Bauer's orchestra enlivened the dinner with choice selections and played accompaniments for the songs.

DEATH OF A. F. M'NULTY

It Was Sudden and Almost Wholly Unexpected by His Friends.

Hon. A. F. McNulty, editor of the Archbald Citizen, died at his home in Archbald, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. McNulty had been ailing about three weeks, but his condition did not become alarming until Friday. Atlhough he received skillful medical treatment his complaint steadily became more dangerous, and yesterday morning he passed away. Death was due to heart failure.

Mr. McNulty was well and widely known. He was a resident of this valley since infancy, and he spent the greater part of the forty-five years of his life in Olyphant. Four years ago he founded the Archbald Citizen, and not, so he broke up housekeeping, went of his death. During his connection with the Citizen he lived in Archbald, and its pages, ever since its foundation, have testified to the interest he took in the affairs of his home, There were few men in the valley better known than was Mr. McNulty. His long connection with public affairs and with Democratic politics especially, made him a familiar figure, and there were few more willing to give time and energy for the success of his party than he. He was elected to the assembly from the Fourth district in 1881, and served with credit during the sessions of 1881-82. The measure with which he was particularly identified and which was always a source of pride to him, was the "mine prop" bill, but he was also prominently connected with other legislation intended to benefit the laborer. Many of the measures he introduced at that session have since been enacted.

Mr. McNulty was essentially a selfmade man. His education was acquired in the severe school of experience and his success was due entirely o individual effort. He was well in formed on public affairs, a ready talker a writer of remarkable rigor.

Mr. McNulty was a member of Archbald branch of the Catholic Mutual Benefit association, and also of Branch 28, Ancient Order of Hibernians. He is survived by his wife and eight children. These are: John, Frank, Bernard, Agnes, Joseph, Edward, Julia and Emmet McNulty, His funeral takes place on Wednesday morning at be sung in St. Thomas' church. Interment will be in Catholic cemetery.

EIGHT DIVORCES GRANTED BY COURT

In Five of the Cases Desertion Was Charged by the Libellants.

PARTNERS OF TWO WERE CRUEL

Finley W. Martin's Story Differed from Those of the Other Applicants for Divorces .- His Wife Left Him and Went Back to Her Parents Because She Only Had One Life to Live and Wanted to Spend That at

Eight more divorce decrees were yesterday entered on the Lackawanna court records. Mrs. M. E. Makely, of Penn avenue, secured separation from her husband, Melvin Makely, on the grounds of desertion. They were married April 18, 1876, and lived together until September, 1890. Application for divorce was made December 16, 1897. George H. Waterhouse was granted a divorce from Mercy M. Waterhouse on the grounds of unfaithfulness. The libellant is an engine inspector on the Ontario and Western road and lives at Mayfield. The respondent lives at Syracuse, which is the former home of the libeliant. Along in November last he heard some talk about his wife being intimate with an ex-boarder of theirs, one Oscar Higherfield, and one night when his wife endearingly addressed him as "Oscar" and then became greatly embarrassed, he began to get sus-picious. About two weeks after this currence he came back from a trip to Canada a few days earlier than he was expected, and soon thereafter instituted proceedings for divorce. They were married in April, 1868. DUNMORE CASES. Finley W. Martin, of Dunmore, had an unusual grievance to present as his grounds for asking a divorce. He was married to Georgie Martin Nov. 13, 1893 In 1895, without any cause or provocation, he alleges, she packed up he traps and announced that she was going home to her "ma," who lived two doors below. The husband tried to dissuade her, but she had only the one response to his entreatles: "I have but one life to live, and I am going to live that at home." The husband called on her frequently and tried to induce her to come back to him, but she would to live with his parents and after the prescribed two years had passed, ap-two months ago. Harriet Carter Davies, on the ground of desertion, secured divorce from her husband, Richard Davies, to whom she was married Aug. 3, 1881. He left her six months later. The parties are from Providence, DESERTION ALLEGED.

Annie T. Richardson, of 1729 Cedar avenue, formerly of Minooka, secured divorce from her husband, James Richardson, on an allegation of desertion. They were married Dec. 21, 1879, at Minooka. In 1887 he left her and she has not heard from him since, except to learn that he is living in Pittsburg. Elizabeth A. Griswold, by her next friend, John Brown, secured a divorce that he had wilfully deserted her. They were married Jan. 1, 1884, and the desertion took place Dec. 15, 1891. They ived on the South Side.

Annie Nizolek, by her next friend, R. Friedel, secured a divorce from Albert Nizolek, on the grounds of cruel treatment. The parties are Hungarians and live at the Pyne. They were
