NATURE'S HANDIWORK.

The Laden Boughs Present a Picture of Grandeur at Farview.

The hills of this vicinity present an exceptionally picturesque appearance, but never before has there been such a scene of grandeur as now meets the gaze at Farview. The ice-laden boughs of that altitudinal summer resort loom up like ledges of adamant and glisten as a mountain of the rarest gems.

Humidity and cold have converted twigs of lead pencil size into limbs laden with diamond, borne tree tops to earth and made weeping willows of veritable monarchs of the forest. Telegraph and telephone wires in that vicinity have been snapped by the weight of the ice collection and all nature is in the icy grasp of the Frost King.

The surpassing beauty of Winter's handiwork will repay anyone for taking a trip over the far-famed gravelly road. Several persons of this city will visit Farview this morning and if this weather should continue another day or two it is fair to presume hundreds will avail themselves of this unusual privilege.

THAT HORSE CASE.

No Cause of Action—Each Pays His Own Costs—Exit May and Lowry.

That celebrated horse case at Alderman Baker's First ward court and in which H. E. May was plaintiff, and Dr. W. J. Lowry defendant, has been settled, as far as the original action is concerned.

Tribune readers are familiar with the points at issue. They were ably argued by Attorney R. D. Stuart for the plaintiff, and Milton Lowry, equine defendant. The alderman has considered the decision that there was no cause for action and divided the costs.

DEATH OF MRS. W. J. LEWIS.

Mrs. W. J. Lewis, wife of the pastor of the Welsh Methodist church, died at the residence on South Church street, yesterday. She was taken with convulsions and remained unconscious up to the time of her death.

Deceased was born in Cefu Coad, Cymmer, near Merthyr, South Wales, and was about 44 years of age. She came to America forty-five years ago and had lived in Carbondale for the last five years.

Mrs. Lewis is survived by her husband and three children, M. W. Lewis, of Plymouth, Mrs. Edwin Owens, of Dallas, Texas, and John Lewis, of the Indian territory.

The remains will be interred in Hyde Park but the time of the funeral has not been fixed yet. The announcement will be made as soon as advices have been received from distant relatives. Deceased was a woman who by her excellent traits of character had made many friends here, by whom her demise will be sincerely mourned.

BORNE TO THE TOMB.

The remains of Miss Kate Gallagher were laid to rest in St. Rose cemetery yesterday morning. The funeral cortege left her late home on Spruce street at 8:30 and made its way to St. Rose church. The procession was a large one. A high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. W. Edward Owens, who preached a more than usually impressive sermon from the text, "Dust thou art, to dust thou shalt return." He spoke in touching terms of the life of the departed.

The floral offerings were numerous and among the most beautiful ever seen in this city. They were carried by C. P. O'Connor, Edward Burke, F. S. Collins, Joseph Monahan, Joseph Boylan, of this city, T. Duffy and Frank McCann, of Scranton.

The pallbearers were T. G. Coughlin, Dr. W. H. McGraw, John Bridgett, M. F. Neary, Frank Kelly, D. P. Byrne, Frank Brown and P. A. Duffy.

TAYLOR NEWS.

A Successful Entertainment—Annual Report of Board of Health—Fair at Stewart Memorial Church—Personal News.

The entertainment which was so admirably arranged and conducted by Professor John H. Brandel and Miss Susie Powell, together with the church choir at the Welsh Baptist church on Tuesday evening, proved a rare treat to the large and appreciative audience. The choir under the direction of Professor Francis rendered several grand selections. Mr. Francis' ability as a director of music was admirably illustrated. The solo rendered by T. De Witt Edwards was particularly pleasing, strong and resonant. The selections of the quartette was also pleasing. The recitation given by Miss Mary J. Davis, of Avoca, and Miss Blanche Williams, of this place, were of a high order and were received with much applause. The church auditorium was filled to its utmost capacity, and no doubt the church realized a snug sum from its contents.

SHE KEEPS BOARDERS.

Woman in That Business Know How to Take Care of Herself in Court. From the Washington Star.

"The woman was on the stand, and she was a very nice-mannered, respectable woman, who kept a cheap boarding house, and it was the desire of one of her guests to be dishonest that had brought her to the court to make him pay his board."

"How old did you say you were, madam?" inquired the lawyer, with no reason on earth, for an elderly landlady is no more anxious to lose a boarder than a young one.

"I do not say, sir," she responded, flushing to the roots of her hair.

"Will you be kind enough to say, madam?"

"It's none of your business."

"Objection sustained," smiled the court.

"Um," said the lawyer, rubbing his chin, "how much did you say the amount was the defendant owed you?"

"Twenty-five dollars."

"And for how long was that?"

"Five weeks."

"That's five dollars a week, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Five weeks at five dollars a week is twenty-five dollars. I believe you said?"

"Yes, sir."

very thought of a witness talking like that.

"Don't be facetious on the witness stand, madam," said, assuming a tone of warning, "this is a serious matter, madam. I have asked if your prices were not exorbitant and you have seen fit to answer lightly, madam. Now, madam, I ask you in all earnestness if you mean to tell this court that your prices are moderate, and that if I should come to your house to board you would charge me $5 a week? Answer directly, madam," and the attorney sat back in his chair and assumed an imperial manner.

The witness was not at all abashed. "No, sir," she said simply, "I would."

"I thought not, I thought not," interrupted the attorney, rubbing his hands.

"No, sir," continued the witness, "I would not charge you at all. I would make you pay in advance."

Then the court forgot its dignity and everybody laughed except the attorney.

BREWING INDUSTRY IN 1897.

Comparative Production of Beer and Ale in the Several States.

Two interesting supplements are published with the February number of the Brewers' Journal; the first, a broadside, showing the sales of malt liquors in the United States for the year 1897, and the ten preceding years, and showing also the sales in the principal cities for the same eleven years; the second, an official directory of brewers and maltsters in the United States and Canada.

From the broadside, as condensed in the Sun, it appears that during the revenue year ending June 30, 1897, the sales of beer and ale amounted to 34,425,984 barrels, a decrease, in spite of the great amount of 1,492,939 barrels from the sales in the revenue year 1896. New York stands at the head of the states as a brewing state. During 1897, from her breweries 9,490,132 barrels of ale and beer were sold, a decrease of 557,217 barrels from the output of 1896.

six breweries, New Hampshire four; New Jersey got seventh place among brewing states by having forty-four breweries, two combinations among which stood about a one-third of the state's total amount. New Mexico had two and New York 264 breweries; North Carolina has one brewery, South Carolina two, and Wyoming four breweries. In fact, every state but four has at least one brewery, and these exceptions are Arkansas, Maine, Mississippi and Vermont.

At the recent Postal congress attention was called to the fact that two-thirds of all the letters which pass through the postoffices of the world are written by and sent to people who speak English. There are substantially 500,000,000 persons speaking colloquially one or another of the ten or twelve chief modern languages, and of these about 25 per cent., or 125,000,000 persons, speak English. About 90,000,000 speak Russian, 75,000,000 German, 55,000,000 French, 45,000,000 Spanish, 35,000,000 Italian, and 15,000,000 Portuguese, and the balance Hungarian, Dutch, Polish, Flemish, Bohemian, Gaelic, Roumanian, Swedish, Finnish, Danish and Norwegian. Thus, while only one-quarter of those who employ the facilities of the postal departments of civilized governments speak as their native tongue English, two-thirds of those who correspond do so in the English language. This situation arises from the fact that so large a share of the commercial business of the world is done in English, even among those who do not speak English as their native language. There are, for instance, more than 20,000 postoffices in India, the business of which in letters and papers aggregates more than 300,000,000 parcels a year, and the business of these offices is done chiefly in English, though of India's total population, which is nearly 300,000,000, fewer than 300,000 persons either speak or understand English.

Though 90,000,000 speak or understand Russian, the business of the Russian post department is relatively small, and the number of letters sent throughout the Czar's empire amounting to less than one-tenth the number mailed in Great Britain alone, though the population of Great Britain is considerably less than one-half of the population of Russia. In Europe, the Southern and Central American countries in which either Spanish or Portuguese is spoken do comparatively little postoffice business, the total number of letters mailed and collected in a year in all the countries of South and Central America and the West Indies being less than in Australia, Chili and Argentina are. In fact, the only two South American countries in which any important postal business is done, and most of the letters received from or sent to foreign countries are not in Spanish, but in English, French, German or Italian.
