DEFENSE SCORES IN THE MARTIN TRIAL

Additional Evidence of the Strikers Riotousness is Presented.

Men Forced to Join the Strikers Against Their Will and Assaulted When They Refused .- Life and Property Menaced and Law and Order Virtually Upset -- Strong Case Made Out in the Sheriff's Behatt.

Wilkes-Barre, Feb. 24.-Additional witnesses for the defense of Sheriff Martin and his deputies were called today to prove the riotous conduct of the strikers before the Lattimer shooting occurred. William H. Gardner, of Silver Brook, said that he ran from his house when the strikers came, but they saw and pursued him. He said that ing through his coat.

August Hulside, of Silver Brook, testified that he was eating his breakfast when his house was surrounded by strikers. One man with a club stood over him while he was eating and told him to finish quickly, if he did not want to be hurt. When he had finished they made him march to McAdoo, There they tried to find Superintendent Jones, and thinking he was in a house to which a woman refused them admittance, they threatened to burn it down. She finally let them go through and they searched or Jones, but could not find him.

Peter Rinker, of Silver Brook, said one of the strikers had told him that if any English people went back to work they would be killed.

· Rudolph Heinzman said he saw several families driven out of their houses at Silver Brook by the strikers. The men fled to the brush. Witness was caught and compelled to march with

Robert Airey testified that he saw a number of McAdoo strikers start for Harwood to stop the breaker there, They were armed with clubs and iron

RIOTOUS

William Long, superintendent of the Silver Brook colliery, testified as follows:

"On Sept. 3, one week before the shooting, I heard the strikers were coming ever to our colliery, and, knowing they had injured some men in te washeries nearby, I told our men to go home as fast as they could. The strikers rushed into our breaker and with their clubs broke about 300 window panes. They then stopped the engines and blew the whistles. They also broke the windows of the black-smith shop. When I tried to stop them one of them struck at me with a big club. I slipped and the club descended and struck my shoulder instead of my head, as had been intended. They also chased a lot of our men into the woods, the men running there to escape them. Charles Meikrantz, of Silver Brook, testified that he was captured by the strikers and compelled to march with them. He escaped and being recaptured was beaten with a club. Henry Gustin, of Beaver Brook, warned off the strikers with a pistol when they tried to make him march Richard John, engineer at the Beaver Brook colliery, was compelled to stop his engine under threats of being hurt. He feared if he resisted a lot of men in the mine would be killed.

Glovanni Turpini, an Italian fruit peddler, said his wagon was stopped by a big crowd of McAdoo strikers, who took all his fruit. They were all armed MEN FORCED OUT.

William J. Hays, the outside foreman at the Lehigh Valley colliery, No. 1, at Yorktown, said that the McAdoo and Honey Brook strikers raided his col-llery on Sept. 2. He first heard that they were at Audenried and went down there to see what they were doing They were armed and riotous. While he was there they started for Beaver Brook, and knowing they would attack place next he turned back. He fixed the whistles so they could not be blown. When the strikers reached the breaker they forced out the men. Hays protested, whereupon the strikers threatened him with clubs.

I was never in a more embarrassing position in my life," said Hays. "In the midst of it all word came that my frightened for my safety."

He said that all of the 156 tenants of the company were in a state of terror some time previous to the men being driven out and afterward, District Attorney Martin, in crossexamination, tried to get the witness to tell the names of each of the 156 tenants and to say in what condition of terror each were, but the court would "We will not take time for that," said the judge. Levi Bellit, of Yorktown, said: "One of the Italian strikers threatened to run a knife into me if I did not join them. I marched a little way with them and then escaped.

"I saw some of the strikers throw stones at Superintendent Hays," said Paul Dinloffer, one of the Yorktown employes. Court then adjourned until the afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

When the afternoon session opened Oliver Smith, of Hazleton, said he was at Cranberry when the Harwood men marched through the town en route for Lattimer on Sept 10. The Cranberry oreigners joined them and four of hese pursued and captured a man who was running away, and beat him severely. These men then ran back to their homes and two of them were given revolvers by their wives. Of the Cranberry men at Lattimer two were killed, but witness did not know which Dennis McGovern, of Yorktown, was forced to join the McAdoo strikers at Yorktown but ran away, jumped in a wagon and escaped, but not before one of the strikers had struck him in the face with a club, cutting his mouth and breaking some teeth.

Superintendent Joseph McFarlane, of the Jeansville colliery, told how the McAdoo strikers had driven out the men there, with many threats and much display of force. Many of the men were compelled to join them. The whole neighborhood, he said, was terrorized. Allen Weir, manager of the company store at Jeansville, told the same story with some slight variations.

John McFadden, a boss at the Jeansville strippings, said he and his men were surrounded by the strikers and stopped work without any resistance. The strikers then forced them to march along for several miles, guarding each of them closely, and threatening them with injury if they tried to escape.

ATTACKED IN HIS HOME. His dog, "Tige," rescued William Kershaw from the strikers, Kershaw was surrounded by a lot of strikers and told he had to march along with them. He refused and one of them tried to pull him along. He slipped from the man's grasp and ran home. There he thought he was safe, but he had hardly got inside before a big striker, armed with a club, came rushing after him, FOR DAYS A REIGN OF TERROR They grappled and Kershaw was being overpowered when his dog, Tige, sprang upon the man and bit his leg. The fel-low knocked the dog away with his club and turned on Kershaw again. The dog then sprang on the man's back and getting his teeth in the fellow's coat collar bore him to the ground. This gave Kershaw a chance to escape. He ran out of the house, jumped over the back fence and got safely away. Henry Matthews was chased away from his work at Jeansville by the strikers and hid on top of a high trest-

> William Colkin, of Jeansville, was called out of house by six strikers armed with clubs who threatened to brain him if he did not march along with them. "We went as far as West Hazleton and heard the strikers say they would not let the police prevent them from marching.

> Dennis McGinley, a conductor on a Lehigh Valley railroad coal train at Cranberry, was stoned and badly cut by the strikers and forced off his train at the point of a miner's "needle" a sharp piece of iron four feet long. On Sept. 2 Samuel Barlow at McAdoo and Ebervale, saw 200 armed strikers stone the breaker, flourish their knives and shoot revolvers. They were very beisterous and threatening. On Sept. 7 they drove the Ebervale men out and attacked the office there and tried to assault Superintendent John Scott, who was obliged to draw a revolver to protect himself. The defense had no more witnesses whom they desired to be heard today and court adjourned at 5 o'clock.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Feb. 24.-The slump in th tock market this morning was as sudden and so violent that the trading al-most took on panic conditions, but the avaianche of liquidation was practically over in less than half an hour and there was some quick recovery. The duffness and the recuperative tendency that fol-lowed showed that the determination to let go at whatever sacrifice had been quickly abandoned and a late drive by the bears found prices by no means so unre-sisting as in the morning. The covering of shorts worked a substantial rally be-fore the close. The early slump ranged from one to nearly five points in the standard shares and from that up to an extreme decline of 12 points in Metropol-itan Street railway in the specialties. nickly abandoned and a late drive by the Recoveries, though sharp in some shares, were at no time complete in any stock, the later tone of the market suggested that the early break was at least encouraged by manipulations and the substantial character of the buying at the extreme decline corroborated the view that to secure stocks at a lower level of prices. But the fact was obvious nevertheless that apprehension over the Cuban situation was more acute than at any time heretofore. There were evidently a mass or orders to seil at the market when trading opened and communication hose report that these came from many sections of the country indicating an uneasy desire on the part of holders to realize on their securities. The holders to realize on their securities. The character of the buying is evidence that here are owners of large capital who believe that the situation has been fully discounted in the decline which have been nade.
