THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE-TUESDAY, MARCH 8, 1898.

Only Walting for the Sailing Day of Their Ship.

PARAPHERNALIA BEING PACKED

Druggist Votter's Party Has Its Arrangements All Made and Will Leave Here One Week from Next Monday ... Who Comprise the Party and Some of the Main Features of Their Plans -- Some Talk of Returning in Eighteen Months.

Two weeks from yesterday will witness the departure of Scranton's Klondike colony, more familiarly known as Vetter's Klondike cadets.

While the newspaper paragrapher has been having his little joke with the project and the projectors, the cadets have been quietly but determinedly making their preparations and now they are orly waiting for the sailing day of the ship which is to carry them to fortune and frigidity-surely one if not the other.

According to present calculations the party will number possibly eighteen, probably eleven, likely nine and barring unforseen obstacles, assuredly, eight. The eight who have put up their pro rata assessment as an ernest of their intention to go are:

P. J. VETTER, druggist Penn avenue KITLACK, carpenter, Beech ADAM

SAMUEL RINGSDORF, ex-hotel keeper, FRANCES E. EHRGOOD, blacksmith, Inamore ALBERT GISNER, engineer, La Plume. GEORGE H. SUTHERLAND, machinist.

JOHN SWEET, prospector, Mt. Pocono, mine foreman, Peck-

ATTER.

The dashes represents a member of the party, who, for some reason not made known, desires that his name should not appear in the papers in this connection, until after he has started. at loant

TOOLS, CLOTHING, ETC.

The rear room of Mr. Vetter's drug store is already assuming the appearance of a young warehouse. Boxes and barrets and cans, containing tools and medicines and clothing and the like are piled ceiling-high and more consignments of these and like articles are coming in every day. A forceps for pulling teeth and celluloid eye-protectors to guard against driving snow in the winter and mosquitoes in the summer which are among the paraphernalia give an idea of the attention which the party has given to details. A sectional hand drill, with two bits and 40 feet of pipe, to be used in prospecting is on hand and has been tested in Mr. Vetter's back yard.

The underclothing, chamois vests, Marlin rifles, Colt revolvers, magnifying glasses scales and such like have atso been purchased here and are in the boxes in the back room of the drug store. Sleeping bags are on their way from New York. what other tools are needed, together with the provisions will be purchased at Seattle. The expenses are paid out of a common fund and whatever they make is to be divided share and share alike. They even go so far as to agree that if any-three specialists removed the offending boney tumor from the young lady's face under the most distressing circumstances and in doing so encountered most unexpected difficulties, and the patient is relieved and progressing rapidly to complete recovery. A new nose was made by artificial means, by chiselling through an inch of bone which obstructed the breathing space of the nose, and after the external wound had been sewed up, the patient presented not only a countenince not disfigured, but, on the contrary, her features was decidedly improved.

Mantell's New Play.

To those who can disassociate Robert B. Mantell from the particular character in which he was so excellent, "Monbars," his newest character, Louis de Beaumont in "A Secret Warrant" must be in every way satisfying. It is the same style of character as Monbars in almost every particular but it is not as well-fitting ! various respects. There is a something about it that must make even his most ardent admirers feel that they do not see ardent admirers feel that they do not see him at his best. "A Secret Warrant." withal, is a very entertaining play. The author, W. A. Tremayne, a Montreal newspaper man, has seized upon a fruitful incident in French history and has made, it can be fairly said, the most of it. The time is laid in 1729 during the regency of Philippe, Duc d' Orleans. Gabrielle de St. Victor, a Duc d' Orleans. Gabrielle de St. Victor. desperate and scheming woman, who is favorite beauty with the regent, is rath er rudely thrust aside by the dashing careless but hypocrite-detesting Louis de Beaumont, captain of the King's guards Louis encounters Marguerite Bertrand daughter of a pleblan goldsmith, who secures entree, or, rather is led into court circles by a bargain between her title-hunting father and aunt and the fortune-seeking St. Victor family, affaneing her and their dissolute son. Hearl de St. Victor. Beaumont and Henri quarrel. To save her brother from Beaumont's sword that he may marry the rich goldsmith's daughter, Gabrielie induces the regent to confine Beaumont in the bastile. John Law, the comptroller general, who is a bosom friend of Beaumont, secures his release on condition that he quits France, On his way abroad Beaumont stops at an inn just outside of Paris where he finds the St. Victors and the Bertrands assembled to sign the marriage contract. Beaumont presents himself and vows that he will have the duel out with young St Victor. Gabrielle dispatches a courtier for a letter de cachet, a warrant with the name left blank. The regent sends it, Beaumont captures it and writing young St. Victors name in the blank space is roady when the regent comes on the scene on his way to a stag hunt to vir-tually dictate terms, the regent well knowing that it needed but a disclosure such as Beaumont could make to arous ulace that was then on the exoding point Harry St. Maur as the Marquis de St.

Victor, Mike Marie Booth Russell as Ga-brielle and Miss Rosalle Knote as Mar-guerite were particularly strong in their respective parts and the company, as whole, was very capable.

Fauntieroy Well Presented.

A small audience saw "Little Lord Fauntleroy" presented in a very satisfac-tory manner at the Academy of Music last night. Ellis Smedley assumed the role of the diminutive hero of the plec in a captivating manaer. He was sur The party goes as a co-partnership, rounded by a company of very competent fould happen to any of the par ty his family shall get his share even though he should not get as far as the gold fields. Just where the line will be drawn has not been decided as yet but it is likely to be agreed upon that when a man boards the ship at Seattle he or his heirs become a sharer in the profits no matter what should befall him, excepting of course, that he should commit some act that reasonably would cause him to forfeit his claim.

NO PLAYING FALSE.

There is also a provision in the agreement that any man found guilty of playing his fellows false by secreting gold or the like, he shall forfeit all claim upon the company and be drummed out of camp. The partnership is to continue until mutually dissolved.

The expedition will leave here Monday, March 21, going by way of the Delaware and Hudson to Pittston, thence via the Lehigh Valley to Buffalo and thence across the continent by the Grand Trunk to Seattle. There, on April 5, they will board the steamer Excelsior on which they have al-ready secured berths and start on a fourteen-hundred mile sail to Copper City, on Prince William sound, a couple of hundred miles north of Dyea pass, the common road to the Klondike region.

From Copper City they go overland thirty miles to Copper river. Here they will build their boats and as soon as the river permits begin their struggle against the stream to the north. Leaving the Copper river when the Siana is reached, they will tow up this tributary to a point which is only seven miles overland to a tributary of the Tamana, which latter is a tribu tary to the Yukon. They will sail down the Yukon to where the Koyukuk is met and thence up the Koyukuk to the central Alaskan gold fields, which are situated about a thousand miles to the west of the Klondike proper and about the same distance from the West Alaskan coast. In a straight line this point is about 300 miles north of Copper City. The route altogether is not over six thousand miles long. Some of the party talk of returning in eighteen months' time.

ADJOURNED UNTIL MARCH 22.

Formality Carried Out in the United States Courts Yesterday.

United States Marshal F. W. Leonard vesterday morning formally adjourned the United States district and circuit courts until Tuesday, March 22.

The courts were opened by Court Crier Jacob Snyder of this city and Marchal Leonard then read the orders issued by the United States district and circuit courts adjourning them until March 22.

is not often that a case of such difficulty presents Paelf to the surgeon as was operated upon last week at the West Side hospital. In fact, an operation, such as this was, has never been performed in the city of Scranton and is rarely met with in the records of hospitals of the larger cities, in this country or abroad,

Dr. Stein, to whom the patient first applied, recognized the severity of the case and called fit, consultation Dr. Carl Seller, formerly of Philadelphia, as well as Dr. Reed Burns. These

The Idol's Eye Tonight.

Lovers of light opera will tonight, at he Lyceum, have offered to them here the Lyceum, have offered to them here the latest fruit of the pens of Victor Her-bert and Harry B. Smith. Both gentle-mer, consider that "The Idol's Eye," the fittle of this production, represents the best work they have ever done. The story offers a great many situations for comedy work, and Mr. Daniels is said to have made the most of them. Mr. Daniels has a humor distinctively his own, and it was with the view to meet-ing it that Mr. Smith wrote as he has done. The opera abounds in catchy music FIRST-CLASS BOARD, WITH OR without room, special rates given to permanent boarders. Rooms heated by steam and lighted by electric light; cenbesides having much composition of a very high order. Mr. Herbert has given to the music the rich color of the Orient and has received much praise from crit-ics of other cities. #### The Prisoner of Zenda.

A source of considerable pleasure to doubt to many theater goers in this city is the announcement that the famed New York Lyceum success, "The Prisoner of Zenda," will be seen here on Thursday at the Lyceum. The play will be presented by Daniel Frohman's superb company in-cluding Howard Gouid and others who were conspicuous in the success of last years tour of the country. #### The Isle of Champagne.

Some people are so constituted that their very laugh is infectious, even though their very laugh is infectious, even though the thing they laugh about may be but a triffe. Such is the case with Richard Golden in "The Isle of Champagne" opera, which plays at the Lyceum Fri-day evening. All who have seen Golden in any of the plays in which he has starred, declare that it is the man who lends humor to the lines and not the nu-mor in them originally. The sixty mem-bers in support are pecule whose talent hers in support are people whose talent entitles them to act in a production so thoroughly first-class and to such a stellar light as Mr. Golden.
