HAPPENINGS OF SOUTH SCRANTON

Large Attendance at the Entertainment of the St. Aloyslus Society.

His Subject Was the Irish Insurrection of 1798 -- Others Who Had Numbers on the Programme -- Bare of Their Friends.

The spacious auditorium of St. John's church hall was thronged last night with the friends of St. Aloysius T. A. B. society, to listen to a programme of evening was the oration of Attorney P. A. O'Boyle, of Pittston. The sub-ject assigned to him was "The Irish Insurrection of 1798," Mr. O'Boyle is a brilliant and an eloquent speaker, and his masterful parration of the atrocities of that epoch in the history of Ireland was charmingly replete with pathos and humor. He said that he would rather not dwell too long relating the incidents of that time, but it would be more pleasing to him and to his hearers to listen to a discourse on Irishmen as statesmen, soldiers, poets, diplomats and litterateur. Mr. O'Boyle went on at length and spoke of the immortal fame of Grattan, Emmett, Goldsmith, Chatham and a host of Cuba with Ireland in its struggle for freedom, and he brought thundering applause when he said: "Ireland owes no allegiance but to the stars and stripes, the land of the free and the friend of the oppressed.

Mr. O'Boyle told of Irishmen as patriots, and referred to the men of Irish blood who lost their lives in the disaster of the battleship Maine. He was again heartily applauded when he remarked that a bad Irishman made a had American citizen.

The hall was decorated in an exquisite manner with the stars and stripes, intermingled with the shamrock and harp. Thomas Donahoe, president of the St. Aloysius society, was chairman of the evening, and in his opening remarks he thanked the large assemblage in behalf of the society for the great assistance rendered them in many ways and on various occasions.

The opening number was a selection. "Echoes From Ireland," by Cusick's orchestra, which pleased the audience so much that an encore was insisted on. Miss Belinda Byron sang "Kath-Maroureen," and a pantomime drill, by the senior girls of St. John's parochial school, dressed in green, followed. Miss Kate Reardon, the planist, was the next. "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls" and "The Lakes of Killarney" were rendered in a creditable manne M. J. Coyne Thomas Foy, Peter McCormack and Miss Reardon delighted the audience with rendition of Irish airs.

Josie Osborne, a little tot, recited and responded to an encore. The duet of Misses Melvin and Fitzhenry was well received. A selection by Cusick's orchestra was the conclusion of the anniversary celebration of '98,

FOUGHT IN THE ORCHARD.

The many hundreds who cross the Orchard," returning from work, were last night the witnesses to an occurrence that is somewhat out of the or dinary. The cause of the large gathering was a prize fight in open air. The go was between Tom Mahon and Charley Dangle, promising young fightra and well known in amateur boxing ADDRESS BY ATTORNEY O'BOYLE circles. Mahon fought Moran at the recent tournament of the South Side Sporting club, and he being the winner has received more than a passing notice from the other of the galaxy of the ambitious.

Dangle and Mahon both work in the Knuckle Prize Fight on the Orchard North Mill, and have been talking fight Last Evening -- Mr. and Mrs. Joseph all week, but neither would agree to the terms of the other or set a date. Hannon Give a Dinner to a Number At dinner hour yesterday the friends of both came together and decided to pull the fight off after work, and the 'Orchard" was chosen as the most convenient and cheapest place. According ly the men and their friends reached the scene as quickly as possible, acempanied by all of the employes of rare excellence. The feature of the the North Mill. A ring was drawn out in a smooth place, stakes put down, and ropes stretched. Dick Griffin was chosen referee, and Michael Noll timekeeper. A dinner pail, struck with a piece of iron, was used for calling time.

The men, after having the advice and suggestions of all their friends thrust at them, went into the ring. Gloves were not convenient, conse quently bare hands were used. In the irst round Mahon did the leading, and landed a terrific blow on Dangle's mouth which brought first blood, and the crowd cheered. When Mahon in the same round, sent another heavy one that reached Dangle's nose, and caused another spill of blood. It looked like a knockout for Dangle, but in the others whose deeds and works will live third round, he pounded Mahon around on until the end of time. He contrasted the ring, and in the next two rounds he aimed telling blows on Mahon's neck and face.

The sixth round was started by Dangle being knocked from his feet, and when he reached his feet he was hit under his left ear. The blow dazzled him and Mahon followed up his advantage and at the end of the round he had his man groggy.

Someone during the intermission after the sixth shouted "police," and a mad dash was made by the crowd, but it was a false alarm, and Mahon's friends allege that one of Dangle's admirers sent in the alarm because it looked as though Dangle was a goner. The Tribune reporter saw Mahon after the fight was over, and he stated that he will challenge Dangle today for a finish fight

Ex-Judge Ward Celebrates His Fifty. fifth Year in Scranton

HIS ACTIVE, HONORABLE CAREER

Came Here When This Part of the State Was Almost a Wilderness and Grew and Expanded With It .- Manner in Which St. Patrick's Day Was Observed .- Social Conducted by the K. of K's .- New Permanent Man of Columbia Company.

Yesterday marked the anniversary of fifty-five continuous years of residence n this city by ex-Judge Walsingham G. Ward, of 122 North Sumner avenue The subject of this sketch is now in his seventy-ninth year. He was born October 7, 1819, at Dover Plains, N. Y. Few of the companions of his earlier years of residence here, now remain in the city and fewer still in West Scran-

Mr. Ward comes of a New England family of some note. His parents, John Jackson Ward and Cynthia Sickler Ward were prominent residents of Dover Plains. He, himself, was the oldest of nine children, five daughters and four sons. Two of his brothers have attained even greater prominence in the law profession than the judge. Zebulon Marcy Ward, of Paterson, N. J., is noted throughout that sinte. Charles Edward Ward, of Michigan, olds a high place among the legal lights of that state.

March 17, 1843, Mr. Ward, then 24 ears of age, left his home to contend with the world. He came to Slocum Hollow, then a hustling village, and settled here. Among other ways of earning a livelihood he drove a mule team to haul lumber from Wilkes-Barre to Carbondale and do other carrying business. Even then the fires of ambition were burning within him and couple of law books were his constant companions. Many an hour was spent pursuing the dry pages while he rested his team in a shady spot on a warm day, or fed them. In the course of time he married a

Miss Maria White, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Three years later or 1850, after a course of reading under J. L. Alexander and the late Judge Dana, of Wilkes-Farre, upon motion of Judge Dana Mr. Ward was admitted to practice in the Luzerne county courts. At that time there was no Lackawanna county, but when the division was made, having his residence here he transferred to the Lackawanna county bar. He enlovs the distinction of being the oldest member now living of either bar. The passage of years brought many honors to him. In 1869 he was elected judge of the mayor's court. This court had a jurisdiction in the city of Scranton and all townships north and east of Scranton. Thus had he seen old Slocum Hollow from a village grow to a city and became one of its first court idges. He served continuously in the ourts were abolished by the state constitution. In that same year he formed law partnership with the present partnership was dissolved and George S. Horn became his partner and has continued to be ever since. The original house which stood upon the location of the present commodious structure occupied by Judge Edwards, on South Main avenue, was built by Mr. Ward. The property passed from his ossession to Mr. Edwards and Mr. Ward took up his residence on North

Sumner avenue and still resides there. Of recent years Mr. Ward has not enjoyed the best of health, but he continues in the active practice of the law. He is a congenial, whole-souled man and is possessed of a fund of information of the earlier days of what now is a city of 100,000 inhabitants. His old regard for West Scranton still remains, though many changes have occurred to alter what was once the most beautiful spot within the city limits. The venerable ex-judge always easily re-calls the day of his arrival here from the fact that it is St. Patrick's anni-

SAINT PATRICK'S DAY.

The day was very quiet in West Scranton, nothing of any moment being held. In the evening, however, two appropriate affairs were held, both of which were well attended. At Mears' hall, Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, held forth. M. H. Healey was chairman of the evening and a well arranged programme was carried out. The chairman made a few opening remarks of welcome, and after the rendition of a solo by Edward Walsh, he introduced Rev. E. S. Phillips, of Hazieton, as the speaker of the evening. Father Phillips spoke in a general way of the day the Irish celebrate. The remainder of the programme consist ed of soles by the Missea Kate Sullivan and Elizabeth O'Boyle, Michael Donnegan and Thomas Ford; recitation by Henry Mellett: declamation by Gilroy and Duffy; piano solo, by Miss Jennie Burks, and comic sketches by Messrs. Stevens, Cole, Francy, Davitt and Salmon. At the conclusion of the exercises, dancing was in order for which Mrs. Agnes Malott provided the music. Division No. 20, Ancient Order of Hiernians, celebrated in the lecture room of Hely Cross church, Bellevue, and its caracity was taxed by the attend-and he introduced Rev. W. J. O'Donnell, pastor of Holy Cross church, as speaker of the evening. Father O'Donnell spoke entertainingly of a trip he made not long since through Ireland, during which he visited many of the scenes of the life of St. Patrick. The speaker's descriptions were rich and his requent poetical quotations were time-Neil McTague, of the Diocesan Recd, was then introduced and he spoke of how one year ago he had offered a he herewith took the opportunity of tendering them the prize. Common Councilman-elect Patrick Calpin acepted the prize in behalf of the division in a few well chosen words.

President Dawson was present and spoke. The remainder of the evening's programme consisted of solos by Henry Grattan, Andrew Coar, Peter Smith Charles Ruane, Professor W. A. Kelly and Miss Nolan, of Washington, D. C. Recitations were given by Thomas Handley and Harvey Grattan; piano solo by Mrs. Jackson, and a duet on the plane and violin by Miss Anna Madigan and Joseph Walsh.

IN THE CHURCHES.

The Band of Hope of the Sumner Avenue Presbyterian church gave a very fine entertainment and social at the church last evening. Alderman Bezalezi Davies acted as chairman and Mrs. John T. James was accompanist. The principal parts of the programme the phonograph selections by were Smith Morse, and the beautiful stereopticon views by Mr. Bradshaw. In addition, solos were given by the Miss-Lillian Tewkesbury and Norma Hughes; a duet by the Misses Norma Hughes and Marion Jones, and a recitation by Miss Mattle Hughes.

'pink' social followed. Cake, cream and coffee were served. An excellent entertainment and social was held last evening at the Scranton Street Baptist church. The concert part consisted of graphophonic selections by John Owens. These seections were twenty-four in number including a reproduction of an anthem recently rung by the church choir which was easily recognized by all present. Cake, coffee, cream and fruit were afterwards served in the church lecture room.

Another of the initial suppers which the ladies of the Ladies' Aid society of the Simpson Methodist church was served last evening in the church lecture room and was well patronized. supper comprising the season's delicacies was served from 6 until 8 o'clock. SOCIAL AFFAIR.

The members of the K. of K. Literary club were royally entertained Wednesday evening at the residence of Miss Jennie Thomas, North Rebecca avenue. Miss Thomas proved herself office until December, 1875, when such an efficient hostess, and every one thoroughly enjoyed themselves. In addition to other features, recitations were given by Charles Cadwgan, Joseph Judge H. M. Edwards. In 1877 this Hughes and J. A. Jones; Thomas Boston sang and Gus Eynon gave several piano solos. Dancing was also enjoyed and at a seasonable hour refreshments

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. B. Thomas, the Misses Jennie Lewis, Ledia Davis, Inez Zimmerman, Lillian Thomas, May Richards, Jennie Davis, Jennie Thomas, Mary Lewis, Gertrude Hughes and John and Luther Thomas, Gus Eynon, William Robertson, Charles Cadwgan, Emory Joseph, Henry Morgan, Bert James, Howard Davis and Thomas Boston.

NEW PERMANENT MAN.

The friends and fellow-members of Edward Pethrick, of the Columbia Chemical company, have been tendering him their congratulations during the past few days. He was selected for the position several months previous by the members of the company, though opposed by Lewis Parry and Henry Meyers, two other members of the company.

He will perform the duties of driver and is thoroughly competent, having been coached by Engineer Meyers, whom he succeeded. The company is well represented by its permanent men and the quarters are models of neatness. No team and apparatus in the Scranton fire department is better cared for.

DAY'S DOINGS IN NORTH SCRANTON

Successful Bisteddfod Conducted in the Welsh Baptist Church.

EXCITING COMPETITIONS

the Principal Contest Was on the Chorus "May Day" and Was Won by the Choir of the Puritan Congregational Church, Under the Direction of Prot. G. R. Davies -- Cars Collide on a Switch on North Main Avenue.

The eisteddfod in the West Market Street Welsh Baptist church yesterday was very successful. In order that justice might be done to the affair the committee divided it into an afternoon and evening session. The Welsh people in general were present in large numbers, and not a few of their neighbore of other nationalities were also present. So large was the list of competitions for each prize that a list of ability had to be introduced. Until the preliminary test had been passed the ambitious ones were not allowed to take part in the public competitions These trials were conducted in the Welsh Congregational church directly opposite. The feature of the eisteddfod was the success of the choir from the Puritan Congregational church. Their efforts in each instance was crowned with suc-

The afternoon session convened at clock when the large auditorium of the church was comfortably filled. In the absence of Hon, W. J. Lewis, who was previously designated to act as chairman, the Rev. J. J. Evans, pastor of the church, was chesen to preside. After a brief speech a call was made for the bards present, and many responded. Notable among them was Thomas Jehu, who has won an enviable position in bardie circles by his This was followed by the competition on the solo "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight." Eight children competed and after some deliberation the prize was given to Miss Elodwen Thomas.

BEST LOVE LETTER.

The contestants for the prize for the best love letter were many. It was wor by Thomas J. Snook. The bass solo was awarded to Benjamin Isaac The tide of attention, however, in this session was turned to the competition for juvenile choirs. Two choirs competed, the Puritan Congregational choir, under the leadership of Thomas Owens and the Welsh Baptist, with David Davis as leader. The singing of each choir was excellent. After brief consideration in the matter the adjudicator said the Puritan choir was the winner.

The afternoon's work was brought to a close by the audience singing the Welsh national hymn, "Hen Wlad fy Nhadau.'

The evening session, which was by far the most interesting of the two commenced at 7 o'clock with an audience which taxed the capacity of the church. Rev. J. M. Lloyd, of Taylor, presided over this session, and in openng it delivered a strong address. After addresses by the bards, the competitors for the tenor solo piece was announced A large number responded. This competition was won by William Davis. The competition duet was awarded to Gwilym Edwards and William J. Owens. Three five-minute addresse on health were delivered, Joseph Morris being the prize winner.

The trio competition was given to William Edwards and party. Miss Cora Griffin then delighted those present with an excellent recitation and was warmly applauded. The competition on "Dora," for men over 50 years of age, was given to Evan Lewis. Mrs. Gregory Saunders won the prize for the handsomest prize bag.

PRINCIPAL COMPETITION.

The principal event of the evening ollowed. It was the competition on "May Day." for choirs. There were three entries and they sang in the order named: The West Market Street Welsh Baptist church, under the leadership of David F. Davis; the Puritan Congregational church, with Prof. G. R. Davies as conductor, and the Welsh Congregational church, with Prof. David Lewis wielding the baton. The beautiful glee was rendered in fine style and each choir was encored uproariously. After considerable deliberation the adjudicator arrived at a decision, and after a brief criticism awarded the prize to the Puritan choir.

The officers of the eisteddfod were as follows: Adjudicator of music, Lewis Anthony, of Edwardsdale; of recitations, Rev. J. M. Lloyd and Dr. D. W. Jenkins; of love letter, Rev. J. A.

CARS COLLIDED.

A damaging crash was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon on the Scranton Railway company's lines. As it was, the cars which came together were somewhat injured. The accident occurred on the switch in front of Bright's carriage shop, on North Main avenue. A city-bound car was stand-ing on the switch awaiting when a large double-truck car going northward entered the switch. The hind truck was derailed and swerved the body of the car directly against the city-bound car, breaking all the windows on the side.

The passengers, with the exception of one woman, escaped without injury. She was severely cut by flying glass. She was taken to a drug store and her wounds bandaged.
