Worked Out Diamond Vein at Hyde Park Mine Supposed to Be Responsible for the Trouble -- Funerals of Mrs. Thomas Williams and Patrick Coleman -- Entertainment at the Jackson Street Church Was a Success .- Personals and News Notes

Now it is Weber's grove, Blind man's road and the immediate vicinity from which reports of caving come. This last affected territory lies on the hillside just above and across from the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Valley branch and extends about a half a mile in width.

Thus far only cracks have appeared, but these are large and grow wider each day. The first ones appeared in Weber's grove, which lies on the crown of the hill and marks the tailing out of the vein which is causing the drouble. Early yesterday morning the water in the well upon the property of George Houck disappeared, and if the crack at the well's bottom widens a good airshafe or refuse hole will be formed. On down the hillside cracks are appearing, even affecting the Back Road

This dip is the centre of the affected territory and is somewhat toward the immense bank belonging to the Hyde Park shaft, and it is the Diamond vein workings of this same shaft operated by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, which run under the territory disturbed. These workings have been going for at least twenty-five years and hitherto no Lately, however, large areas have become affected, lending strength to the idea that the supports in the vein are giving away generally.

A GRATIFYING SUCCESS.

The animotoscope exhibition given last evening at the Jackson Street Baptist church, was a gratifying success to the members of the Baptist Young People's union of the church who had arranged it. Several young ladies, dressed in white, gave tableaux representing life from childhood to the grave.

These tableaux were very accurate and were accompanied by an appropriate recitative and song part. The ladies who participated were: Mrs. William Lewis, and the Misses Elizabeth Widdick, Nettie and Ida Lewis, Martha Nicholls, Anna Thomas, Mary Thomas and Viola Evans.
