

OUR NEW WHEEL SHOES FOR GIRLS

In a short time the girls of Scranton have discovered the many merits of our New 10-inch Golf-cut Wheel Shoe. It supports the ankle better than an Oxford and is not so confining as the Knee Boot. We have them in black and brown soft Vici Kid, also with plaid tops.

We are selling them for

$2.50 the pair

SCHANK & SPENCER, 410 SPRUCE STREET.

The Wilkes-Barre Record can be had in Scranton at the news stands of M. Meinhardt, 119 Wyoming avenue; Mac Lackawanna avenue.

Attorney C. H. Welles yesterday offered the will of the late William T. Smith for probate, but owing to the absence of one of the subscribing witnesses the proceeding was postponed until today.

Surveyors connected with the railroad department of the Delaware and Hudson company are laying out a line for a new siding from Carbon street crossing to Linden street bridge for switching usage.

The funeral of the late Michael Walsh will take place from the residence on Carbon street, this morning, at 10 o'clock. Peter's eulogium will be read by Rev. J. F. Doyle, and a high mass of requiem will be sung, commencing at 9 o'clock. Burial will be made in the Dunmore Catholic cemetery.

The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company will pay its employees at the Hyde Park and Continental mines today. The Delaware and Hudson company will pay at the Mayfield mines and the agents, clerks and superintendents at Scranton and Carbondale.

A large number enjoyed foot cycling at the armory on Adams avenue yesterday afternoon and evening. It is an innovation that is destined to become highly popular. The foot cycle is constructed somewhat like the roller skate. Instead of our rollers it has but two, one in the front and the other in the rear of the skate. The tires of the rollers are rubber.

MEETING IN PENN AVENUE CHURCH

Dr. W. C. Webb, of Philadelphia, Spoke About the Evangelical Alliance.

THE WORK IT IS ENGAGED IN

Sometimes It Is Contested with the Christian Alliance, the Speaker Said, and Again They Are Called the Faith Healers—One of the Objects of the Alliance is to Educate Public Opinion—Meetings This Afternoon and Evening.

The "mass meeting" or rally which was advertised for last evening at the Penn Avenue Baptist church, secured about thirty people as an audience. The character of the meeting really defied the larger hearing. The speaker, Dr. W. C. Webb, of Philadelphia, gave a brilliant and interesting address. As colleague of Dr. Josiah Strong, whose book, "Our Country," made such a sensation a few years ago, his position and talent are well known. Rev. J. W. Ford presided and opened the meeting with reading from Ephesians, iv. Rev. G. T. Price offered prayer.

Rev. Dr. Webb then gave an exposition of the meaning and aims of the Evangelical alliance. He said that a great deal of ignorance exists with regard to its object. Sometimes it has been confused with the Christian alliance which it antedates by many years. Its leaders have been called faith healers and various other mistaken ideas have prevailed regarding it. He then said that the Evangelical Alliance originated in London about fifty years ago. Eight hundred clergymen representing fifty different denominations, came together from all parts of the world to promote Christian unity. As the result of their deliberations they organized the International Evangelical Alliance.

BUT LITTLE UNITY. At that time there was very little unity among the various professing Christians. Instead of fighting the common enemy they were engaged in fighting each other.

"During the Peninsular war," said the speaker, "a captain of artillery served a gun with admirable precision against a body of men posted in a wood to his left. At the moment the great duke rode up, looked through his field glass in the direction of the shot, and then quietly remarked: 'Well aimed, captain, but no more of that! They are our 39th.' That mistake has been repeated too often in the history of the church."

As the result of the work of the Alliance and of the Young Men's Christian association, and in more recent years of the Christian Endeavor, Christians have come to know each other better and to respect each other. But we must come closer together yet. We must come together in hearty cooperation. We can co-operate in moral reforms and in the defense of our cherished institutions. Some of our greater and most beloved institutions, like the Christian Sabbath and the public school system, are in danger. In order to save them we must educate public opinion and quicken the popular conscience.

DISTRIBUTION OF LITERATURE. This Alliance proposed to do by the distribution of wholesome literature. Leaflets were being prepared by the brighter minds and it was proposed to employ the young people to distribute them. These leaflets are to be translated into different languages for the perusal of the foreigners who come to our shores.

Then again a state Alliance had been formed with a view to bringing the sentiment of the better element in the community to bear upon state legislation. Furthermore, the churches should co-operate for the study of sociological and industrial problems. The speaker referred to the unrest and discontent that pervaded society and claimed that the only remedy was the application of Gospel principles to social relations.

Rev. Dr. George Elliot will address the meeting at the same place this evening on the subject of "Social Conscience." Dr. Webb will speak to clergymen this afternoon.

GRAND LODGE SESSIONS.

Extensive Arrangements Are Being Made for the Event.

Much interest is being taken by the members of the lodges of Luzerne and Lackawanna counties in the seventy-fifth anniversary celebration of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows, which will be held in this city on May 16-20. From reports to the chairman of the various committees it is estimated that the number of delegates who will be in attendance during the week will be over 1,500.

The demonstration committee has given out the contract for decorating. It includes six arches and the decorating of Odd Fellows' hall, on South Main street, and Hoffman lodge, on West Market street. Four arches will be placed on Public Square and one near the depot and another on West Market street, near the bridge. To accommodate the various bodies Nesbitt theater has been engaged for the grand lodge and the Ninth Regiment armory for the Patriarchs' militant. The Daughters of Hebeah will hold their convention in Grand Army of the Republic Memorial hall, and nearly 500 delegates from the state will be in attendance. The Grand Encampment will also hold its sessions in Memorial hall.—Wilkes-Barre Record.

MAYOR HAS SIGNED THEM.

Gave His Approval to a Large Number of Ordinances.

Mayor Bailey yesterday signed another big batch of ordinances. Among them, however, those providing for a main sewer on North Main avenue, Providence road and Philo street; providing for the paving of Providence road and North Main avenue from Court street to the city line, and granting the Dunn Sprinkling company the exclusive street sprinkling franchise, were not included.

Among the ordinances signed were the following: Exonerating Holy Trinity Lutheran church from its Mulberry street paving assessment; providing for sidewalks on West Linden street between Ninth street and North Main avenue; for the creation of the Nineteenth sewer district and its construction; for sidewalks, paved gutters and curbstones on Clay avenue between Myrtle and Pine streets; appropriating $82.50 and $50, respectively, for street repairs in the Eighteenth and Fifth wards.

Nine electric lights were provided for at the points named in the following: In the measures to which the mayor's signature was affixed: Corner of Dorothy court and Summer avenue; Olyphant road and the boulevard; Decatur street between Lafayette and Sweetland streets, Landis street and Corbett avenue, Landis and Dodge streets, Hyde Park avenue and Sadio court, Jackson street and Morris court, Raymond court between Spruce and Linden streets, Oakford court and Linden street.

THE WYOMING CONFERENCE.

Begins at Norwich, N. Y., on Wednesday, April 13.

At the Wyoming conference sessions to be held in Norwich, N. Y., April 13-15, the question whether or not there shall be equal lay and ministerial representation will again be brought up. At last year's conference it was defeated by a vote of 40 to 104.

Of the members of the conference the following conclude this year the full term and must be present: Rev. Lyman Abbott, D. D., Chauncey M. Depew, General Nelson A. Miles, and Octave Thanet. But this is exactly the treat prepared for readers of the great Philadelphia Sunday Press for next Sunday, April 2.

Each of the famous names will be represented by exclusive contributions on current topics of vital interest. There will be a host of other exclusive features which can be found only in next Sunday's Press. There will be fifty pages altogether, making the Sunday Press the largest of Philadelphia papers, with an eight-page comic section in color, so funny that it will literally make you laugh until you cry. Then in addition to all this a splendid picture of the cruiser Philadelphia in eleven colors will be given free to every reader.

You will make a mistake if you do not order next Sunday's Press today.

GREAT TALENTS UNLAYERED.

Remarkable Combination of the Work of Famous Men and Women.

It is not often that it is possible to obtain at one time and at moderate cost the best work of such leaders of public thought as Rev. Lyman Abbott, D. D., Chauncey M. Depew, General Nelson A. Miles, and Octave Thanet. But this is exactly the treat prepared for readers of the great Philadelphia Sunday Press for next Sunday, April 2.

FOR EASTER WEAR.

Public Views of a Grand Spring Exhibition.

ODD SHAPES; FINE TRIMMINGS

The Comb and the Roses—Circular Chapeau of Violets—Stringless Bonnets—The Flowers of Millinery.

Would you know what is the demerit in bonnets and what fashionable milliner is devising in the way of Easter hats to fascinate femininity and incidentally to beguile them into buying? Then listen—not to a tale of woe, but to a tale of fashion. For this will tell you of the very latest conceits in chic headgear. There are almost as many shapes, it seems, as there are wearers, and no two hats are exactly the same; some deft touch of the artistic gives them a cachet all their own, and the result is indescribably charming. The pompadour hat, the Roman hat, the spheroid hat and that perennial favorite—the short-back sailor, are all much in evidence, as is also the popular and becoming panama sailor and crash toque.

Satin and braid straws come in all the fashionable tints of leaf-green, Roman hats, violets, mauve and the burnt orange, particularly those of burnt orange. In almost every case, the crowns of the hats are of different material than the brim. Crushed crowns of tulle, liberty silk over wire frames are exceedingly chic, and when combined with the waving brim of satin in braid straw, an ideal picture hat is the result.

A Rembrandt hat of curious design is of black point despit drawn over pale pink moulin de soie, and is turned up in most original fashion at the side. The milliner has also a hat of white satin, each fastened with a small steel buckle. The trimming is the ever-becoming black ostrich feathers, held in place by a narrow clasp of cut steel. Another delightful novelty in the way of trimming is a high and handsome comb of cut jet mounted on tortoise shell uprising against the black lace straw, which is all sewn with glittering sequins and veiled with filmy lace. A circlet of pink roses defines the crown, while clusters of the same lie at the base of the crown.

The floral hat will also figure to some extent this spring, and little circular chapeaux of violets, mignonette and roses will be the correct headgear for evening wear and will even be worn. It is said, to brighten up the tweed walking gown or the tailor-made cloth creation.

Charming little bonnets, especially designed for women who cannot reconcile themselves to stringless headgear, are a feature of spring millinery, and many novelties are seen in that line. One of the prettiest is of fine mauve straw, the miller's velvet loop-like tufts divided by bunches of violets, while a sweeping black osprey and narrow black velvet strings complete a charming whole.

The newest flowers are shaded tulips, orchids in all their rich and varied tints, deeply colored fanlilies, white and mauve lilacs and all the dainty small flowers. These will be used profusely in red, white and pink.

These interesting details of "what to wear" are prompted because of the wonderful showing at the first annual spring opening of Jonas Long's Sons' yesterday. It was an event of rare importance in feminine circles, and they congregated there in large numbers from morning till night.

The store was one vast bower of flowers and potted plants. The Rotunda—beautiful in itself—was enhanced by the addition of a unique decoration in the way of a "Horn of Plenty," almost thirty feet in length, which rises from the top of the casino in the center. Flowing from the mouth of the horn are cut flowers of all kinds, and interspersed here and there are clusters of electric lights. From the apex of the horn, three strands of flowers reach upward to where are floating figures, typical of angels. The balconies of the rotunda are banked with potted plants, the effect of it all being very beautiful, especially in the evening. A special effort at electrical display is to be made by the firm Saturday evening.

The Millinery window, which the big store's chief decorator has put in on Wyoming avenue, is probably the finest exhibit of the art in dress that Scranton has ever seen. The entire background is of white, with a very delicate tinting of green foliage. Surrounding the background are thirteen huge pyramids—entirely white—from each of which protrude a cluster of electric lights, forming the name of the thirteen most prominent Parisian milliners, all of whom are represented in the showing of hats. In the center of the window, at each end are two mammoth columns of white, twined with flowers and foliage. From these columns to the uppermost parts of the window are immense strands of flowers, falling gracefully in curved lines at the sides. In the direct center, between the columns is a pyramid of flowers, on which rests a big doll, nautically attired, and holding in its hand an electric light bearing the inscription "Spring Opening." Scattered hither and thither are a number of pattern hats. The window should be seen to be appreciated.

Altogether the spring opening of the Big Store was most auspicious, and large crowds will doubtless gather there today and tomorrow, during its continuation.
