Ownership of a Dog Caused a Controversy Before Alderman Roberts.

FORLMAN HAS RESIGNED MINE

George Martin Will Be Succeeded at the West Ridge Colliery by Mr. Edwards, of Olyphant--Schubert Glee Society Contemplates Holding an Eisteddiod--Garfield Lodge Proposes to Have a Celebration on Tuesday Evening -- Other News.

A dog caused much controversy in Alderman Roberts' office last evening, The principals in the case were Kastanzo and George Malozansky and Peter Paistus. During the proceeding latter stated that he bought from the Malozanskys a dog which they rep-resented as belonging to them and for which he gave $1.75. While exercising the canine he chanced in the vicinity of Penn avenue, and during his promenade he was accosted by J. J. O'Boyle, who identified the dog as one which was stolen from him.

He explained to Paistus the circum stances and the dog was turned over to the rightful owner. Palstus then began negotiations for the return of his money, but his efforts were barren of success. Last evening the Malozanskys refused to settle and were held in ball for their appearance at court.

TOLD IN A FEW LINES.

By the resignation of George Martin as mine foreman of the West Ridge colliery, which took effect yesterday, the responsibilities of the position will assumed by a Mr. Edwards, of Olyphant, who will take charge today. During the period he was foreman at the West Ridge colliery Mr. Martin won the high esteem of his workmen and employers, who are loath to see him leave. Mr. Edwards, the new foreman, comes highly recommended.
