THE HAVANESE

A Spirit of Resistance to Americans Reported.

LOYAL TO THE TOTTERING THRONE

The Press Attacks "Jingoes" and Gen. Lee -- Editorials Full of Belli-Provisions Rising in Cuba's Capital -- Ready to Make the Reconcentrado's Suffer Anew.

Havana, April 20, 9 a. m .- Quiet prevails here; the weather is warm and the war preparations continue,

The Union Constitutional, in an editorial today, commenting upon the resplutions adopted by the congress of the United States, says: "Intervention means war for Spain, but it is easier to vote than to execute. So far, Spain has treated the United States with contempt. Now she will kick her and

Many residents of Havana do not believe war is imminent, though, doubtless, they would like to think so. The full details of the diplomatic negotiations have not yet arrived to form a basis of definite judgment. But it is safe to say that as soon as the full situation is ascertained from Washington, this, together with the bellicose and patriotic reply from Spain, will provoke the whole royal population to great indignation and desire for war. They are convinced that victory over the Americans is assured.

The press of the entire island attacks the "jingoes" and the "sensational American press," especially singling out General Lee as responsible for the destruction of the harvests and plantations in Cuba, for the prolongation of the war, the shedding of blood in the present campaign and the blood that is to be shed in the conflict that is coming. All the articles are written at high tension and are full of bellicose ardor. The writers recall the history of Spain, and particularly the diplomatic victory over Prince Bismarck in the Carolines. The Spanish are easily excited to enthusiasm at the prospect, placed before them by these inflammatory articles, of adding to their country's glories a triumph over the powerful American people. They take it as an insult if American superiority is suggested even in a

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF WAR.

From the Washington Post.

It would require some supernuman power of divination to indicate an issue from these througing clouds into the bright path of peace. Little by little, with ountless checks and haltings, but ways pressing forward to the melancholy goal, we have at last come face to fac with war. There may still be some means of escaping the dread consequence. It is not absolutely impossible that, in the eleventh hour of the crisis, a way shall be opened for us. But no ordinary mortal can imagine such a thing at this moment. Look where we will, no avenue of avoidance is discernible.
