While Patrolmen Rodham and Jones were patroling in the vicinity of the Dutch Gap station Wednesday night. their attention was attracted by cries distrees. They made a diligent search but were unable to locate the place from where the cries originated. Later Patrolman Rodham met Special Officer Lee Wright who had under ar-rest William Staples, of Priceburg. He turned over his prisoner to Patrolman Rodham. At the station house Staples was found to be bleeding profusely from bad wounds about the Efforts were made by the officers to check the flow of blood, but to no avail and thinking that he was suffering with serious wounds Dr. Bessey was summoned who found the man suffering from bad scalp wounds.

He stated at the hearing yesterday morning that the wounds were indicted by his wife and mother-in-law who were the prosecutors in the case. Alderman Fidler held him in bail for his appearance at court.

From the Philadelphia Press. On one of his latest visits to New York Mr. Bruce told of an experience which he had just after he was elected Senator from Mississippi, and it was an experience which illustrates the tact and good sense which always characterized him, and which explained much of the success and respect which he gained by his public life in Washington, It was announced that the Senator would go to Washington from his Mississippi home by one of the Mississippi steambouts, at least as far as St. Louis, on his way. The captain, a an of the name of Lathers, was a typical Mississippi stemboat captain, and he was reported to have said that would show the black Senator when he got aboard of his boat that he would have to keep his place on that boat, and if he put on any airs because he happened to be a senator, the captain would teach his manners. As soon as Bruce boarded the steamwat he sought the captain, and he said to him, "Captain Lathers, I am going to Washington, and a part of the way as passenger on your steamboat. My name is Bruce, and possibly you and move me." Yesterday morning may have heard of me. What I wanted Thomas James gained his freedom by to say is that I know perfectly well what the feeling of many people who About 1.45 o'clock yesterday morning are travellers regarding persons of my shots were heard by Patro an color is. The same quality served Bruce admirably in the Senate, and it was one of the most impressive of Washington sights to see the mulatto Senator and his colleague, the aristocratic Lamur walking daily together up the avenue to the capitol. Lamar, the scholar, the orator, the fine type of Southern chivalry and cultivation, had the highest respect for Bruce and preferred his ompanionship in the daily walks to and from the capitol to that of any other senator, Afterward, when Lamar became Secretary of the Interior, Bruce went to see him, and said that he had procured a good many appointments in the Interior Department; in fact, a good many more than his share, and he had come to see his former col-league so that he might take counsel with him in respect to such action in the way of removals as Lamar might have in mind.

Thereupen, Lamar said to him. "Bruce, not one of the men who have been appointed in this department at cour recommendation shall moved while I am here, except for such cause as would make you remove themyourself if you were Secretary of the Interior."

Tenth Anniversary of the Ladies' Aid Society of Presbyterian Church.

MEMBERS ENTERTAINED AT THE HANDSOMELY REMODELLED HLACKINGTON RESIDENCE - RE-PORTS ABOUT THE CONDITION OF THE SOCIETY-MRS. W. F. GIBBONS ENTERTAINED THE MEMBERS OF HER SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS AT HER HOME .

Yesterday Mrs. A. D. Blackinton, for the first time since its renovation, threw pen her beautiful residence, Homestead," on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the Ladies' Aid society of the Dunmore Presbyterian The many friends church. thronged the house would never have recognized the stately old home as it was beneath its ancestral elms, so great are the changes that have been wrought. Remodeled in the style of the Renaissance and painted a soft green, in its white pillared elegance, it is now one of the most magnificent places in all this region. Within, the beauty of design and harmony of color entrance the eye. The spacious halls are hung in crimson burlap and carpeted in pleasing accord. The dainty French drawing-rooms are exquisitely cool and delicious in their silvery green tones, with rare Louiz Quartoze cabinets and furnishings. The library is an immense and rarely beautiful room in old blue with the faintest pink relief in garlanded walls and rugs. The quaint open beams set in the ceiling add much to its richness.

The dining room is a marvel of luxurious taste and elegance, with its lavish paneling of mahogany and brilliant tapestried walls. The coloring here is green, and it is not too much to say that the exquisite combination of tints and rich accessories of furnishing and decorations are seldom equalled. The living room in green oak, the den furnished in red, and the new conservatory come in for much admiration. The rooms on the second floor are lovely in decoration and furnishing. One, a delft sitting room, being especially charming. The anniversary exercises of the day preceded an elaborate tea, and many guests were entertained. A tribute spontaneous in its enthusiasm and vehement in effect, was paid the hostess when she proposed withdrawing as resident of the society, after a faithful service for a number of years. To say that she was re-elected by acclamation is to express it but mildly. The other officers were re-elected as follows: Mrs. L. R. Fowler, Mrs. W. F. Gibbons, Mrs. M. E. Close, vice-presidents; Mrs. H. Higgins, secretary; Mrs. M. W. Chamberlin, assistant secretary; Mrs. Joseph Comstock, treasurer. An interesting feature of the affair was a historical sketch read by Mrs. Comstock. This was beautifully written and comprised an interesting story of the church since its beginning, and with touching allusions toward those who had left it forever. In most of the work of building and improvements the brought tears to his eyes. society had borne the chief burden Much of the great sucess of the organization was due to Mrs. Blackinton's generosity and superior executive abil-ity. In the memorial to the dead the following names appeared: Mrs. John Chemberlin, Mrs. W. D. Warfel, Mrs. to 1880, died at his home in this city to Sarah Potter, Mrs. Allan Secor. Mrs. day. As the tribute was paid to these departed ones an enormous basket of flowers was quietly placed on the table at Mrs. Comstock's side as a meorial to the dead, to the list of which were appended names of the faithful friends, Mr. John B. Smith and Mrs. Galpin. At this point Mrs. duB. Dimmick sang "Some Day We'll Understand," in a manner that touched the hearts of her listeners. Mrs. Dimmick also sang "The Swallows' and "Only Remembered by What We Have Done." Miss Nellie Griffla

The treasurer's report gave the astonishing statement that about $13,000 been raised by the Aid society while at this time $600 remains in the Connolly. treasury, a truly worthy example of what a little band of women can do, The announcement was received with applause that the following had pledg-
