J. A. Lansing, president of the Scranton Stove works, is having a handsome residence erected on Clay avenue, between Vine and Olive streets. The style of architecture is what is known as gambled roof Colonial and the building will be very homelike in appearance. It will be constructed of vood on a substantial foundation of dressed stone. One of the features of the specifications marks a new departure in local building operations. Mr. Lansing has provided that no material of any kind shall be stored on the street in front of the house or on the sidewalk. They must be kept perfectly clear and open. A general use of such specifications would improve the appearance of the streets of the city and put an end to the inconveniences in operations are being carried on.

The main entrance to the building will be from Clay avenue, but there will also be an entrance from the handsome portico covering the carriage way at the side of the building. Both of the entrances will open into a spacious reception hall tinished in mahogany. Off of this opens a reception room finished in white namel and gold. Doors from the reception hall also lead into the dining com and library. The library will have a large fire-place and the finishing of the room will be mahogany. QUARTERED OAK USED.

In the dining room the finishing will be of quartered oak. On the first floor besides the rooms mentioned will be the cook's closet, lavatory, pantry and kitchen. The second floor will have four chambers and two bath rooms, any time afterwards. ne connected directly with the main hamber, which will also have a closet and dressing room. On this floor will be one of the unique features of the use. It is an apartment over the portice and will be Mr. Lansing's

In size it will be 35 feet 6 inches by 51 feet and its style is perhaps best described as Corinthian. One of the imposing features of the building provided for by Architec: Blackwood, who made the plans for the structure, is a half-circufar porch with columns running up two stories and supporting an artistic pediment. There is a roomy balcony at the second story. The main entrance opens into a large half which traverses the length of the building and from which opens the parler, library and dining room. The latter is in the rear of the building and its windows command a fine view of the valley and the West mountain. The kitchen, pantry, etc., are also on this floor. Off the library will be Mr. Lynett's sanctum and the parlor is provided with a cosy nook that will admit of much embellishment at the hands of the decorator. The second floor has four large chambers, a bath room, sewing room and closets. Leading to the second story will be a staircase which will be one of the most artistic features of the house. The third story will have one large chamber. Charles Schlager is completing the work of remodelling the exterior and interior of the house on Clay avenue he purchased several months ago for a residence. The interior is finished almost entirely in second growth cherry and quartered oak and the effect is most imposing. The staircase is undoubtedly the most unique in the city,

BOROUGH OWES HIM MONEY.

That Reason Ex-Secretary Walsh kept the Books.

Ex-Secretary Thomas F. Walsh, of Winton borough, by his attorneys, Warren & Knapp, filed an answer yesterday in Prothonotary Copeland's office to the writ of alternative mandamus prayed for by the present secretary, James Strong, Mr. Strong asked the court to compel Mr. Walsh to turn the books and papers of the borough over to him, and the court directed the latter to answer why he refused.

The answer was that the borough owed him some money for services and he thought he was justified in holding the books until the amount was paid. He has been advised since that his claim did not constitute a lien upon the books, and has agreed to deliver them up. That ends the case.

> THE MEN WERE ENGAGED IN THE COAL BUSINESS IN THE THIRD WARD AS PARTNERS, IT IS AL-LEGED, AND AFTER MR. WAY-KINS DEATH IT IS CONTENDED THAT MR. HUGHES RAN THE BUS-INESS FOR HIS OWN AND SOLE

An equity suit was begun in the office of Prothonotary Copeland yesterday by Attorney Charles L. Hawley, representing the estate of the late Thomas E. Watkins, against Benjamin Hughes.

The bill alleges that during the latter part of the year of 1878 or in the beginning of the subsequent year the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western ed to supersede the ordinary series Railroad company made a lease to Mr. now in use; so that postmasters may | Hughes of the right to mine coal from the Diamond vein, underlying about seven acres of land known as the Clark property in the Third ward of Mrs. Watkins died on Jan. 30, 1893, and one of the sons, George W., died on Feb. 15, 1895, leaving his wife, Addie, to survive him. She is heir to one-third of the original estate.

The bill in equity recites that none of the heins of Thomas E. Watkins ever sold or parted with any of their interest in the lease made with Mr. Hughes, but that since the death of their father, Mr. Hughes has refused to share any of the profits of the lease with them and collects them all and turns them to his own use. The bill maks for a decree by the court ordering Mr. Hughes to render to the plaintiffs a just and true account of the management, conduct, increase and profits of the business and to pay to them any sum shown to such acounting to be owing to them. The defendant is the well-known superintendent of the mines of the Delavare, Lackawanna and Western, and Thomas E. Watkins was foreman at the Cayuga shaft for many years preceding his death. The suit involves several thousand dollars.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY.

Participated in by Two of Nealis? Horses on Lackawanna Ayenne. While standing at the Central Railroad station on West Lackawanna, yesterdny afternoon at 3 oclock a team of forses owned by James Nealis attached to a cab was frightened by an engine passing on the Ontario tracks, and made a dash agross the bridge, the east end the team van into the stone retaining wall and demolished the pole of the vehicle. The team was unhitched and the driver, a colored fellow, had proceeded another dash and went up the crowded avenue at a terrific speed. At the intersections of Luckawanna and Franklin avenues, two young women, but for the alertness of Patrolman Haggerty, who almost dragged them to the sidewalk, would have been trampled upon. The maddened team then took to the sidewalk and were captured by the natrolman, who brought them to a stor at the entrance to the store of Weichel, the jeweler. No injury was done the horses, and later the cab was return ed to the stables.

Miss Sadie Jones recited a selection and the Misses Finn and Smith sang solos very sweetly. It was Miss Finn's first pubic appearance and she demonstrated that she has a mezzo-soprano voice of great sweetness and range. Her singing proved that her voice has been carefully and intelligently trained. Arrangements regarding the North filed conference in July were made, Miss Emma Hays, state secretary spoke on the spiritual side of the association conference. Miss Van Nort then told of the recreation and rest that comes from attendance and college songs were sung by all present. Miss Bessie Sloat recited and the pleasant evening ended.
