Lawrence Band Is to Give an Open A i Concert in the Near Future.

PLACE WHERE IT WILL BE GIVEN HAS NOT YET BEEN SELECTED. JUNIORS OF THE Y. W. C. A. WILL HAVE A MAY PARTY IN CON-NELL'S PARK TOMORROW-ASCEN-SION DAY SERVICES AT THE CHURCHES-OTHER NEWS NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Lawrence band, of the central city. will in a few weeks give an open air concert on this side, and the only detail yet to be arranged is the location where the concert will be given. The beauiful plot adjoining the offices and residence of Mrs. M. Robinson is the most acceptable place, but whether this lady will give the band permission to use her ground has not yet been ascertained, and the "orchard" is also a location desirable, but it is not as central as the aforementioned plot. The coming concert will be the initiative of a series that will be given this season, the Germania and Guth's bands having signified their intention of giving our people a similar treat, Y. W. C. A. NEWS. The Juniors of the association will have a May party at Connell park tomorrow afternoon, and if the weather is favorable, the young girls will spend a most pleasant day, Miss VanNort, the secretary, has arranged a good programme, and among the features will be a May pole dance. In the event that the weather is too inclement for an outing, the entertainment will be given in the rooms.

In the rooms this evening, the Loyalty club will conduct an All Nations feast, and the young women will be attired in costumes worn in the respective countries, and edibles served in those lands will also be served to the guests and participants.

Rev. Mr. Aldrich, of the Grace Reformed church, will preach at the gospel meeting Sunday afternoon, Seventy-five Names Have Been Re ceived for the New Company.

A GENERAL MEETING WILL BE HELD IN ST. DAVID'S HALL THIS EVENING-DRAMA GIVEN BY ST. CECILIA'S SOCIETY IN MEARS' HALL-COMPLAINTS ABOUT THE THEFT OF FLAGS AND BUNTING ARE MANY - CHARGE AGAINST JOHN GRIFFITH.

Seventy-five names had been secured up to last evening for the purpose of organizing a United States volunteer ompany from this side. The quarters formerly occupied by Company F. Thirteenth regiment, National Guard, have been open every evening during this week and either ex-Captain John H. Lewis, Sergeant Major Albert Davis or Sergeant John M. Edwards have been there to receive names. The list was always left at Jenkins' pharmacy during the day and many signed there.

The personnel of the list is fairly good. Judging from outward appearances, nine out of evey ten ought to pass the examination. Many have come from outlying suburbs and one man who signed lives at Meshoppen. Pa. A general meeting of all who have signed will be held at St. David's hall this evening at 7.30 o'clock. The three men who have been arranging matters will be present and all are urged to attend. The plans for the future, so far as drilling and selecting officers will be brought up for discussion.

GRIFFITHS ENTERED BAIL.

Though once friends, Thomas D. Howells and John Griffiths, both residents of this side, are now not on intimate terms. It is all owing to the failure of Griffiths to return a baritone instrument which Howells loaned him as far back as last March. A warrant was issued by Alderman John at Howells' request and Constable Jones made the arrest. Larceny by bailee was the charge.

Griffiths did not deny that he had prowed the instrument, but claimed he had in turn loaned it to a friend and had not received it back as yet, He was held in $300 bail for his appearance at court.

A BIRTHDAY TEA.

Miss Margaret, daughter of Funeral Director and Mrs. M. F. Wymbs, reached the termination of her fifth year yesterday and in honor of the event a tea was served to a party of her little friends. There were about fifteen misses and masters present and a very pleasant afternoon was spent. The recipient of these honors given several timely presents. Mrs. Wymbs, assisted by Misses Celia Connors and Anna Wymbs, looked after the comfort of the little guests.

TOO MUCH PATRIOTISM.

This sort of patriotism which leads me to drape bunting around his porch railings, etc., and to hang out flags for the gentle breezes to blow about has received a damper on several occasions on this side. For several days past bunting and flags, either in part or whole have been disappearing from several residences along South Main avenue. It has now become somewhat prevalent and complaints are made.

In one case the party to the theft is known and steps may be taken to recover the property. In the other instances, the display of flags and bunting will, no doubt, adorn some one else's house front and the result is the same.

FARCE IN MEARS HALL.

Mears hall was well crowded by an audience which thoroughly appreciated the efforts of the members of St. Cecilia's Total Abstinence and Benevolent society, of this side, to provide first class entedtainment last night. The entertainment afforded was the capable rendition of a laughable farce entitled "Caste, or the Eccles Sisters," Those who were to participate have been rehearsing faithfully for sometime under the efficient direction of Miss Margaret Glbbs. They did credit to themselves and teacher last even-

The society was provided with the necessary stage furniture by P. W. Tague, furniture dealer, of South Main avenue.

At the close of the drama, a social was held for which Miss Mame Sheamis provided the music. Those who participated in the play were Misses Gibbons, Margaret Horn and Mame Flaherty and Daniel Regan, John Burns, Patrick Madden and Michael Reap.

MINOR NEWS NOTES.

Rev. D. W. Skellinger, of Washington, D. C., a former paster of the Washburn Street Presbyterian church, delivered his lecture upon "Ben Hur" last evening to a large audience at the above church. The lecture was finely illustrated by 120 views, many of which are original ones belonging to the speaker. It was a very interesting lecture, Miss Daisy Poole played the plano solo for the chariot race scene with good effect. In addition a selection was given by a quartette comprising the Misses Heiser and Saxe and Dale and Hall. This evening the Chi Upsilion's will tender Rev. Skellenger a reception in their rooms at the church and a pleasant evening is anticipated. Last evening's ngair was conducted under the auspices of Bible class No. 19, of the Sabbath school,

Quite a number of persons partook of the supper served at the Simpson Methodist church by the Ladies Aid society. It was styled an "initial" supper from the fact that the names of the ladies in charge began with the letters of the alphabet from L to R. REPORTING IN ENGLAND.

It Is Not the Pleasant Task That It Is in the United States -- Newspaper Methods There and Here.

From the London News.

A greater contrast is presented by the way in which newspapers are cor ducted in England and America than by any other institution common to the two countries. A smart New York reporter would get his paper into a libel suit, or find himself in jail for conducting his work here in the American way, almost as quickly as an English reporter would find himself discharged from a Yankee paper, for not knowing news when it was handed him, if he followed the cautious lines he has been accustomed to in Great Britain. One striking difference in the jour nalism of the two great English speaking countries is the giving out of details, or assignments, to reporters. In America a man comes to the offic about noon and receives the very latest information to hand by post, wire, or "ticker" (the tape), while in England members of the staff, if they do not receive an overnight letter or wire from the office, at their home in the morning, are free for the day and draw their salary just the same. In this country the valuable man is the "literary chap with the neat gift of throwing together stereotyped phrases. In New York the man who makes the money is the wide awake, enterprising, up to date fellow who gets out his own assignments and comes to the office every day primed with ideas for working up good news stories. Here a reporter who brings in an idea is apt to be considered impertinent. On this side a reporter looks on an engagement as a gallery man in the house as a big thing; there he considers all routine work beneath him. Here a man goes out on an assignment and if the person sought does not wish to express his views, he comes back empty handed. There a reporter who returned thus a few times from interviewing trips would lose his position. NOT WELL THOUGHT OF.

In England nearly all reporters are first-class shorthand men; in America shorthand writing among newspaper men is almost unknown. Probably on account of the larger leisure class here English readers want exactly what a speaker has said, and then draw their own conclusions from it; here what is wanted is a bright, enterprising article, with the salient points made the most of, the rest fading away in the perspective.

Among the first things that an American newspaper man discovers in this country is that he is not so well tion at St. David's hall, North Main aveconsidered here as he is at home. Here nue. Scranton, Fa., Monday, May 23, 1898, errybody takes you for a penny-a-liner, at 3 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of nomerybody takes you for a penny-a-liner, It is a little puzzling to understand how a well dressed man can be set down this way, often by people who do not make half what he does in the course of the year, but that is the general impression. I went into a Bond street leweler's when I first came to England, to ask an explanation of a curious thing I had noticed in the window, with the intention of writing it up if I found it newsy. The dealer, who took me for a probable purchaser, explained what I would have redoubled his efforts to First ward. Fifth district please, and tried to get me to make an article on the subject. This man said, Second ward, Second district after a little, "Now, that will make a Second ward, Third district lot of 'copy' for you, won't it?" I had Second ward, Pourth district intended writing a half column on what was realy an interesting subject; but Third ward, First district the patronizing remark settled it. I put it in the paper in about six lines.

NON-COMMUNICATIVE OFFICIALS. But it is in trying to obtain important information from the houses of parliament and about the foreign and colonial offices that an American reporter learns | Fifth ward, Third district how surprisingly ill served the English are content to be, as regards news, No Sixth ward, First district alderman in New York, no legislator at Albany, no congressman at Washington, hardly the president of the United States himself, would dare to be so scant of courtesy and disobliging to ven an unimportant American newspaper man as are some private secretaries, and even liveried attendants, in English official life to representatives, not of the news agencies alone, but of the biggest London dailies. It is almost impossible to get an interview with a man like Chamberlain; people are content to gather his views in the report of one of his speeches at some country hustings, and wait for an explanation of an important diplomatic ove on the floor of the house. The nearest the most expert, enterprising and capable reporter can get to an acount of a cabinet meeting, or a hint of the premier's policy, is a nod or smile from one of the private secretaries to the effect that some wild guess the reporter has hazarded is not altogether wrong, or a flat denial of some canard the reporter has brought in. An American newspaper man in his own country who could not get, at first hand, fresh news from the biggest politician would soon make life not worth living for that politician. Only a few days ago I saw in a copy of the most widely read social paper in America a paragraph which ran like 'Mrs. Blank, the intimate friend of Mr. and Mrs. McKinley, is not meeting with anything like the social success in Washington which her wealth beauty and position gave her the right to expect. It is an open secret that Mrs. Blank's social failure is due to her cool treatment of the newspaper representatives who were at Canton in he closing days of the campaign." The lady's name was printed. INTERVIEWING IN ENGLAND.

Another surprise awaits the American reporter in England when he goes out interviewing. Objectionable as some features of American journalism are, the general respect for a reporter over there is such that never once, even when I have had such a disagreeable assignment as going to a house where father or husband, son or brother, lay dead, in order to get up facts for an obituary, have I ever been received with anything except the greatest courtesy and given the information wanted. The average for courtesy, certainly, for polish, is higher here than it is there, but an Englishman can never get it out of his head that an interviewer is an intruder. He has not been educated up to the fact that his business is also other people's business. It takes more tact and diplomacy to find out from an Englishman the merest detail of everyday life than it would to make good friends of Francand Germany. To interview a man for anything except something he wants to get into the paper as a "puff" is an art. You try to make a good first impression on your victim, then endeavor to give him an idea that it would be no harm to anybody and a great favor to you if he would tell about a few unimportant little facts. Of course, this is only the A B C of the science. Sometimes a man too artful to be easily caught is surprised into telling all he knows by a "bluff" of knowing all about it anyway, or by telling him that some outrageous canard floating about is what you are going to print the following day, if he cannot aid you by showing how false RETRACTIONS
