FUTURE RECRUITS FROM SCRANTON

Not Likely They Will Be Accepted as a Regiment. BELIEF IS GENERAL THAT THE 75,000 CALLED ARE TO FILL OUT MANY REGIMENTS NOW IN SERVICE TO A THREE-BATTALION FORMATION.

From information received here yesterday there is to be disappointment in Scranton and elsewhere to those who have hopes of recruiting regiments for service as regiments in the present war. Further, it is indicated that if any individual force of more than one company goes into service, it will not be larger than a battalion of companies of one hundred men and three officers each.

This view is based on the belief that the call for 75,000 troops is for men to fill out some of the regiments now in service to the regulation formation of three battalions each instead of two each, as many regiments are now constituted. For instance, the announcement is made by telegram from Chickamauga that the Ninth regiment of Pennsylvania volunteers is to have another battalion of four companies added to it at once.

This statement is not particularly encouraging to Colonel Keck's command, Sergeant Kline, who has recruited one of the Wilkes-Barre companies, has tendered his own and its services to the Ninth and it is likely the other Wilkes-Barre companies and the one Pittston company will follow his example.

ONE DOLLAR EXCURSION. It Will Be Conducted to Binghamton June 8. The ladies of the Home for the Friendless announce that Bauer's band will accompany the excursion to Binghamton on June 8 and will arrange to present one of their first-class concert programmes at Ross park during the afternoon. The bicycle race meet of the New York State circuit will also occur at Binghamton on the 31st. The Home excursion offers an excellent opportunity to local wheelmen to attend those races at small cost. Prominent riders are advertised to take part in the events and the most promising to be one of exceptional interest.

Binghamton offers many inducements to the casual visitor. Ross park is more pleasant and enticing than ever, with its new pavilion, while the merry-go-round and amusements offer constant amusement for the children. The ride by electric cars to the State hospital for the insane and the view from its forty height will long be remembered by all who are privileged to make the trip. No one should omit the delightful ride to the Casino.

The Casino is situated upon the bank of the Susquehanna river about eight miles from Binghamton. It is reached in thirty-five minutes by electric cars and the ride and road will be a revelation to Scrantonians. Once reached, the Casino offers an attractive steady park upon the bank of the river. Games of all kinds are provided, while a well-equipped cafe will care for the inner man. Entertainments are provided every afternoon and evening during the season, and the Casino is fast becoming the most sought of all local resorts by Binghamtonians.

The fare for the round trip will be one dollar.

FOUND IN THE RIVER. Body of 6-Year-Old Hungarian Boy, Drowned Thursday Above Carbondale, Recovered.

The body of Peter Manzak, a 6-year-old boy who was drowned last Thursday at Simons, was discovered yesterday afternoon in the Lackawanna river near Priebeburg by some boys playing on the banks. The boy was fishing from the river Thursday and fell into an eddy.

The rains had swelled the stream up high and the current was strong. He was carried swiftly out of the reach of other boys who were near by engaged at similar work. The place he fell in was far from the old tannery above Carbondale.

The body was very much disfigured, and the clothing was nearly all torn off from contact with the rocks, roots, and logs along the stream. It was taken to Jones' undertaking establishment in Scranton, where Consumer Longstreet will view it this forenoon and empanel a jury, after which it will be removed to the home of the father, Michael Manzak. Manzak is a Hungarian.

OPINION AGAINST CLARK & SCOTT

Firm Restrained from Using Its Former Tobacco Package. INJUNCTION WAS HANDED DOWN SATURDAY BY JUDGE EDWARDS IN A LUCID OPINION DECLARING THE PACKAGE WAS AN INFRINGEMENT ON THAT OF CLARK & SNOVER—THE DEFENDANT FIRM CAN USE ITS NAME AND OTHER DEVICES AS OF OLD BUT THEY MUST BE OF DIFFERENT DESIGN.

Judge Edwards on Saturday handed down an opinion containing the injunction in the case of Clark & Snover against Clark & Scott. The court said, in part:

It is evident that the sole purpose of the defendants was to manufacture and put up their tobacco packages resembling the plaintiff's packages so closely in style, form, general appearance, arrangement of words and letters and device as to amount to a fraudulent infringement of plaintiff's trade mark and that the packages of tobacco put upon the market by the defendants bear such a strong resemblance to the plaintiff's packages and are such close and successful imitations that the defendants are calculated to deceive purchasers and are liable to cause great injury to the plaintiff.

Whether the imitation is accidental or the result of design is immaterial; nevertheless the limitation in this case is not an accident. We are of the opinion that the purpose was to produce a package resembling the plaintiff's packages so closely as to deceive the public and secure some of plaintiff's trade. The device or cut is certainly used intentionally, because the defendants claim the right to use it. If this claim is honestly maintained the use of the device would not be fraudulent in fact, although its tendency to deceive would be the same.

Mr. Scott, one of the defendants, was for years in the employ of the plaintiff and of Clark & Snover and he knew their business as it is seeking a partner he secured one by the name of Clark. Of course Mr. Clark had an undoubted right to go into the tobacco business with Mr. Scott, but one would hardly think that Mr. Scott, being entitled to 50 per cent of the profits and Mr. Clark to only 15 per cent, the name of the firm would be Scott & Clark & Co., and not Clark & Scott. It is by the use of such a firm name that the defendants have been able to make the initials C. & S. prominent and thereby infringe so closely upon a part of the plaintiff's trade mark.

Judge Edwards says that monopolies are odious to the law; competition should always be fostered, because, according to the common saying, "it is the life of trade." But there must not be any unfair competition. The owner of a trade or business should be protected from a fraudulent invasion of that business by other persons.

Clark & Scott are not enjoined from using their own names, or putting their names on in any size of packages they desire; nor are they restrained from using the words "Scranton Pa." or "stippled smoking," but they cannot use the pictorial device or the initials C. & S. in the same style of type as Clark & Snover use them.
