

GOVERNOR HAS A PLAN Way Pennsylvania's Next Quota of Volunteers Will Be Made Up.

TO FILL UP COMPANIES That Is All Regiments Will Be Allowed to Do.

NEW COMPANIES WILL COME FROM PLACES THAT ARE NOT REPRESENTED BY MEN WHO WERE TAKEN TO FILL THE STATE'S QUOTA ON THE FIRST CALL FOR MEN—LIEUTENANT INGLIS APPOINTED TO THE POSITION OF ACTING QUARTERMASTER OF THE THIRD BRIGADE.

Special from a Staff Correspondent. Camp Alger, Va., June 3.—According to Colonel Albert C. Logan, of Pittsburgh, quartermaster general of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, who is now on a visit to the Keystone companies at Camp Alger, the men who are recruiting regiments and companies, in and about Scranton, in the expectation of commissions are going to be disappointed.

Governor Hastings plan, so Colonel Logan says, is to recruit the present companies to their full quota of 106 from their home towns and allot new companies to be organized to such portions of the state as have not had a chance to secure representation in the volunteers. Eastern and other cities of equal size and importance are clamoring for the privilege of sending a company to the front under the second call for troops and the governor feels that they are entitled to recognition.

Localities that had National Guard companies, have had about their full share of glory. Other places must be given some consideration. Lieutenant W. W. Inglis, of Company D, was today appointed to the position of acting quartermaster of the Third brigade by Acting Brigadier General Courson. T. J. Duffy.

BETTER WATER SUPPLY.

General Graham Promises to Give Relief to the Thirtieth. Special from a Staff Correspondent. Camp Alger, June 3.—The Thirtieth regiment was the fourth command to put in an appearance at Camp Alger, arriving here May 19, two weeks ago. It was promised them that arrangements to provide a good and sufficient water supply would be made within a few days the Thirtieth would be provided with plenty of water. The promise has not as yet been fulfilled and no steps have been taken to keep the promise good.

Yesterday Acting Colonel Stillwell and Acting Surgeon Major Keller went direct to Major General Graham and told him in plain terms that the Thirtieth wants a better water supply and that right away. General Graham called in Colonel Girard, chief surgeon of the corps, and interrogated him about the Thirtieth's water supply. Just what the nature of the interrogatories were or what replies Colonel Girard made is not known, but it is very evident that the general's questions were rather pointed, for when the chief surgeon emerged from the interview he went over to the Thirtieth's officers and told them in a roundabout way that they were too fresh; that the complaint should have been transmitted to him through the brigade surgeon and that they were discourteous, if not to say insolent, in taking the matter over his head to the commanding general.

That was just what Lieutenant Keller was waiting for. It was expected the chief surgeon would be heard in just about that strain. "That is very true," said Lieutenant Keller, "but when the prescribed means do not bring the desired relief other means must be tried." Colonel Girard wanted to know what he meant.

"Just this," rejoined Lieutenant Keller. "Major Park sent a complaint to the medical board of the war department two days after we arrived here, setting forth that the water supply was scant and of a poor quality; that it was in danger of contamination from surface and sink drainage, and that a sanitary officer should be appointed to look into the matter and make recommendations for the betterment of the conditions.

"You were sent here at that time as chief surgeon on General Graham's staff with special instructions to give the water supply your first attention. A few days later Major Park's complaint came back to him with a message to the effect that he must be mistaken, as Colonel Girard found the water supply to be all right. We are responsible for the health of the men in our regiment and in line with what we regard as our duty we have made this direct complaint after finding that the former one has been ineffectual."

General Graham had joined the group while Lieutenant Keller's little speech was on and heard the greater part of it. Before Colonel Girard could say anything, General Graham broke in with "Colonel, we will ride over and personally investigate this matter." With a big string of aides and accompanied by Colonel Girard, General Graham proceeded to the Thirtieth's camp.

Whether it was that someone who overheard the conversation, hastened to the camp by a short cut and gave notice of the coming of the general or whether it just happened that all the company cooks wanted water at that particular hour cannot be said with certainty, but at all events, when the general and his party was led into the camp by Miss Stillwell and Lieutenant Keller, sixty or seventy men with buckets and rollers stood around the little spring waiting their turn for water.

the spring, glanced at the crowd in waiting and at the others coming down the hillside. That was enough on the score of quantity. "What is the quality of the water?" he asked of Colonel Girard. "The water is not bad, but as a precautionary measure I have ordered that it be boiled before being used for drinking purposes." "Have you barrels for storing the water after it is boiled?" the general asked of the waiting corps of cooks. One of the number answered in the negative. The general asked Colonel Girard why barrels had not been supplied each company as had been directed. Colonel Girard replied that the barrels were distributed as fast as they arrived. General Graham then turned to the aide in charge and in an unnecessarily loud voice directed him to "go over to corps headquarters and have those empty barrels that are piled up there distributed to companies that are not already supplied with them, and to the quartermaster and find out how soon he expects those other barrels I ordered."

General Graham then informed Major Stillwell that the artesians well on the parade ground was as much the property of the Thirtieth as of any other regiment and that until better arrangements could be made, he should secure one of the army wagons and carry water in barrels from the spring to the camp.

General Graham continued his investigation into the other camps and a likely result of the Thirtieth's kick is an energetic move on the part of General Graham to relieve the only hardship the soldiers now have to endure. T. J. Duffy.

GOSSIP OF THE CAMP.

From a Staff Correspondent. Camp Alger, June 3.—In anticipation of the order to recruit the regiment to the newly prescribed standard, headquarters has been at work for the past two days formulating its plans and having at where the needed men are to come from. Colonel Courson says he understands from the local articles in The Tribune that the four additional companies can be secured without much trouble. Ex-Captain Frederick Stokes, ex-Lieutenant John Lewis, of the West Side, John Moir, Victor Burschell, of Dunmore and the Sons of Veterans, he is informed have companies ready to volunteer and anxious to become part of the home regiment. Other places throughout Lackawanna and adjacent counties, according to the newspaper reports also have companies ready to fall into line at the first call.

To secure the 224 men necessary to fill out the present eight companies will also be quite easily accomplished the colonel thinks. The war department's order directs that the recruiting squad from each regiment shall consist of three officers, a non-com and four privates. One of the officers will be a surgeon. A contingent of volunteers will be established in Scranton, where volunteers will be examined, and as fast as a squad of a dozen or so are accepted they will be sent on to the camp in charge of the most competent one of their number. Upon arrival here they will be assigned to the commands they are elected to join or if that company happens to be full, then they will be given their choice of joining some other company.

Many new officers will result from this enlargement of the regiment. First of all, there are four captains and eight lieutenants in the line of the new battalion, and if it is understood here a right there will be a third lieutenant for each company when the membership reaches the new quota of 106, which would open up places for twelve more lieutenants. A battalion major and adjutant will also have to be chosen and possibly another assistant surgeon as the regulations contemplate a surgeon for each battalion. The selection of the captains and lieutenants for the new companies will in all probability be made as they were at Mt. Gretna.

The governor will nominate the officers who report themselves as temporary commanders of the company and with the approval of the colonel to whom the command is assigned will give them commissions. It is said here that Major W. S. Miller will be asked to accept the position of major of the Third battalion. Colonel Courson said today that Major Miller would be highly acceptable to him and that he was confident the regiment would be glad to have its old adjutant back again.

All the plans of Chief Surgeon Girard have undergone another change. Surface it to say, until such time as something definite and final has been decided upon that the scheme of making regular army men of the surgeons and hospital men has been abandoned. They are to remain attached to their regiments of regular army men, mounted on horses and the like, and will be assigned to division work just as officers of the general or sentries are. There were so many objections to contend with in perfecting the former plans that the chief surgeon gave them up in despair.

The Washington Brewing company is building a large depot on the grounds right in the heart of the camp. We will see war in earnest when the bellicose prohibitionists of Fairfax see a procession of beer wagons arriving at the depot every morning.

There has not been a Pennsylvanian in the division hospital as yet, and it has been established now nearly a week. The only sickness in the Thirtieth is a case of measles.

Railroad Man Receives Good Advice from Fellow Workmen

The Whole Story Told by His Wife—It May Help You. "When my little boy was six years old he had an attack of the measles, and after recovering he was restless at night, had no appetite, and was cross and fretful. Later on, large blotches and sores broke out on his face and limbs. We were told they would heal in a few days; but these few days grew into months. One day my husband, who is a well-known railroad man, was advised by some of his fellow workmen to give the boy Hood's Sarsaparilla. We concluded to do so, and after he had taken the first bottle we noticed some improvement. We kept on giving him this medicine until he had taken three bottles, when he was completely cured, and he has been well ever since." Mrs. E. J. MILLER, Bennett, Pa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier. Sold by all druggists. $1; six for 45c. Hood's Pills grip. All druggists sell.

teenth is three cases of light fever, resultant from vaccination. Major T. O. Summers, surgeon of the Second, Tennessee, is the famous yellow fever expert. A 150-pound box of "goodies" for the Montrose boys arrived yesterday. There was a slim response to Company G's mess calls today.

The citizens of Lowell, Mass., sent to each soldier in the Sixth Massachusetts, two suits of underwear, a pair of shoes, two pairs of socks, and a black shirt. Newark sent the First, New Jersey, a ton of provisions. The Sixth, Illinois, has a check in its possession which it will never cash, it is said to say. It is for 53 cents and came from a little girl of Moline, Ill., Alta Walker, by name, who "heard mama reading in the newspapers that the soldiers were in need of something to eat and to wear." She innocently told the regiment to spend it all; that she could save up the money. When Colonel Jack Foster had the letter read to his men there was a cheer that made the Welkin ring.

Private George Phillips, of Company C, is headquarters orderly today. Hon. James A. Hooper, who was a commander of the Second brigade before his election as governor, is the guest of the Pennsylvania boys. He is heartily received wherever he goes.

Today the rearrangement of the camp will be commenced. The regiments that have to pull up stakes and take other locations are: Sixth, Illinois; Sixth, Pennsylvania; First, New Jersey; Sixty-fifth, New York; Seventh, Ohio; Fourth, Maryland; and First, Rhode Island. The removal of the two first named regiments is for the purpose of enlarging the parade ground. The others are being brought in from distant points, and given positions nearer the heart of the camp.

Private W. J. Colvin, of Company A, has been transferred to the Sixth artillery, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Myer. He was for three years a member of Company F, Fourth artillery, stationed at Fort Riley, Kansas. The boys were made happy yesterday by the news that the generous contributions of "Miner's Delight" from the Clark & Snover and Leonard Tobacco companies.

Guard manuals dated 1883 were yesterday distributed to the officers of the volunteer regiments. They were shielded with disgustful disdain. Illustrated rosters of the different companies printed by an enterprising Buffalo firm are meeting with a ready sale. They are being sent home for preservation.

The captains of the Pennsylvania companies are sending for the camp pay due the "moes" and "cripples." Congressman McAleer has volunteered to pay for all the ice water the Pennsylvania boys drink during their stay at Camp Alger. The Pennsylvania Y. M. C. A. tent contains the tank from which the boys will gratefully draw upon the famous Philadelphia's generosity.

Company F's ball team yesterday defeated a team from the Fourth Missouri by a score of 10 to 2. The feat was the work of the "ring" of Fred, Neuman, or Nick Loomis, as he is possibly better known in Scranton. The southerners didn't take kindly to his guying way of coaching at first, but his real and refreshing wit soon won them over and they evidenced quite a marked enjoyment in his antics and jokes as did the northern players and spectators. The Thirtieth's team was made up as follows: Hughes, c.; Fellows, p.; Robinson, s.s.; Lewis, lb.; Mallott (Company B), 2b.; Decker, 3b.; Williams, l.f.; W. Phillips, c.f.; Walsh, r.f.

FILLING UP REGIMENTS.

Opinion of Congressman Grosvenor of Ohio With Reference to It. The following remarks by Congressman Grosvenor, of Ohio, on the subject of a second call for volunteers will be of interest hereabouts:

The two plans differ in this respect: One is to raise the maximum number of men to fill the regiments, and the other is to absorb a sufficient number of the existing regiments and call in filling the regiments that have been raised under the first call to the maximum.

There are, of course, two sides to this question, and opinions will be based somewhat upon the standpoint from which observation is taken. The governors of the states, naturally, desire additional regiments, batteries, and troops, and I am satisfied that there would be greater rapidity in the filling of the second call, if that plan were adopted, but the law of April 22, 1888, is imperative, that before any new regiments, batteries, or companies shall be accepted the regiments under the first call shall be filled to such maximum as the president may decide upon, and one hundred and six is the maximum number of men in a regiment of volunteer infantry for one year, in the matter of its officers alone, amounts to a great deal of money. Here is the result in round numbers: Colonel $3,000 Lieutenant colonel 2,500 Three majors 3,500 Seventeen officers, with the pay of a captain, which is $3,000 50,500 Fifteen lieutenants, including the battalion adjutants, at $1,700 25,500 Twelve second lieutenants at $1,000 12,000 One surgeon 2,500 Three assistant surgeons, at $1,500 4,500 Total $102,000 This would make the gross pay of the officers for the fifty-two regiments $1,700,000. Then take the additional pay of the sergeants and other non-commissioned officers and you will find an aggregate of pay alone of not less than $6, 000,000 per annum, as the cost of official features of these fifty-two regiments which will be absorbed in the filling up of the skeleton regiments now in the service to the maximum. This is the money side of it, but if the volunteer army would be better, more efficient and more valuable under the system that will cost $6,000,000 more money, notwithstanding the immense sum of money it ought to be adopted, and in this connection it may be added that this is only, perhaps, an estimate involving half the additional cost, which will be included in additional camp and garrison equipage, additional transportation facilities, for each regiment must have its quota or complement of transportation, irrespective of the number of men on the rolls.

Now, would it be more efficient to take these skeleton regiments and send these regiments now drilling and training, and partly drilled and partly trained and becoming rapidly efficient, or to send them into new companies and new regiments under new officers? In the one case the recruit fresh from home is absorbed into an organized company, among men partly drilled and partly trained, and is rapidly seasoned, and is rapidly assimilated. In the other case, the recruit becomes a part of a new company, with new officers, and is rapidly drilled and trained. It must be borne in mind that fresh recruits are liable to sickness or disease incident to the remarkable change of conditions between home and camp, between ordinary occupations and marches and bivouacs, and the diminution of food, and the change of climate. It would, therefore, seem that the party of wisdom would be to make these companies as large as possible, and as possible, so that, at least, after deducting the sick and the inefficient, there would be from seventy-five to eighty or ninety men in each company ready to stand by in the hour of battle.

STORM AT LAKE ARIEL.

Damage Much Worse Than at First Reported—Various Notes from the Pleasant Resort. Special to the Scranton Tribune. Lake Ariel, June 3.—The damage from the hail storm of last evening is more severe than at first reported. Fruit, grain and garden truck have been cut down as if mowed with a scythe. Windblights were broken on the northeast side of every house in town. The Hotel Pines suffered the most, having eight lights out. The skylight of C. E. Jones was destroyed. J. W. Andrews' store is a wreck on the north side. The hail was accompanied by heavy rain, washing out the roads and filling streams to overflowing.

Hailstones were picked up that measured six inches in circumference, and this morning they lay in rows six inches deep. Fields of rye lay flat and corn will have to be replanted. As far as can be ascertained the storm took a path about a mile wide, starting at Lake Ariel and dying away beyond Salem. The picnic grounds have been much improved this year, having been spread with gravel. Trees have been trimmed and the waterway built up in good shape. Fifty new boats have been put on the lake. The swamp at the head of the lake has been filled and we are likely to have a splendid diamond there.

The Columbia hotel has been repainted and remodelled for the summer season. The first excursion of the season comes Saturday, being the Church of the Good Shepherd, of Green Ridge. The mammoth cottage of Dr. A. J. Connell is nearly completed. When finished it will be the finest at the lake.

Mr. Simpson, of the firm of Cleland, Simpson & Taylor, is erecting a large addition to his cottage. Dr. Ely, John W. Andrews and several of our townsmen are attending the Republican convention at Harrisburg.

Dr. E. Jones has added a new suite of apparatus to his photography gallery. E. M. Keene, of Elmhurst, is working on Simpson's cottage. C. D. Jones, of the Grand Union Tea company, has moved into his cottage for the summer.

H. C. Cary, of Dunmore, made a business trip here Wednesday. Mr. Harry Connell, of the firm of Mercereau & Connell, has erected a large cottage on the east side of the lake.

Mrs. Dr. Hand, of Scranton, is visiting at the home of Mrs. J. Bowen. Mother Mills is rallying from her recent illness. Mrs. F. S. Keene is visiting friends "The Hill" in Scranton. Architect John W. Duckworth has moved into his cottage.

A new time table took effect on the Erie and Wyoming Valley railroad on Wednesday. Parties in Scranton can get a train over at 5 a. m. and back at 6:30 or 8:41 p. m. The fishing season opened the first and many nice catches have been reported.
