STATE POLITICS AS SEEN AT WASHINGTON

Some Soreness Over the Work of the Harrisburg Convention.

JOHN WANAMAKER BELIEVED TO BE NEGOTIATING WITH THE PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRACY WITH A VIEW TO A UNION OF ANTI-STONE FORCES—NAMES OF POSSIBILITIES ON THE DEMOCRATIC SIDE.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Washington, June 6.—The action of the Harrisburg convention last week naturally left a few sore spots. All political conventions do. Just how deep-seated this soreness is only time can determine. Judging from the manner in which some of the anti-Quay-Stone people are talking they would not only like to see at least the head of the state ticket defeated but a legislature elected which would be opposed to the senior senator's re-election. Mr. Wanamaker's post-convention speeches seem to indicate that he and his friends are going to carry on the war they have been waging against the so-called machine in the Republican party and bring about its defeat regardless of the future. In other words, they prefer to see the Democrats carry the usually rock-ribbed Republican state of Pennsylvania than to permit the majority of their own party to remain at the helm. It is a pure case of rule or ruin with them.

It is even intimated that to accomplish this end the "Independents," as they choose to call themselves, are already negotiating with the leaders of the Democratic party for a share of the spoils in case the ticket nominated at Harrisburg on Thursday last is defeated and an anti-Quay legislature is elected. Of course, Mr. Wanamaker can hardly hope to succeed to the United States senate, even if Senator Quay is to be knifed by members of his own party, for the reason that he comes from the wrong part of the state. But, then, there are others in the "independent" wing of the party who have an eye on Senator Quay's seat in the senate.

SENATORIAL BEES.

In fact the woods is full of ambitious gentlemen. There is Representative John Dalzell. He has had a longing to be a member of the upper branch of congress for some years. He tried his best to defeat Senator Cameron eight years ago but failed. He is now said to be getting ready to run up his senatorial lightning rod again. The trouble with Dalzell is that he cannot do anything politically without the consent and assistance of Chris Magee. He could not be elected to the house of representatives if the Pittsburg chieftain willed otherwise. Mr. Dalzell is about the most helpless man in Pennsylvania politics. He is absolutely "in the hands of his friends," or rather at the mercy of one man.

In case the next legislature is anti-Quay and not entirely in the control of the Democrats, Mr. Magee may take a notion to step out of the state into the United States senate. He is said to like official life pretty well as far as he has gone, and it is not at all likely that he would lose an opportunity to come to the senate just to please his protege, Mr. Dalzell, for whom he has done so much in the past.

Then, there is Representative Charles W. Stone, the defeated candidate for gubernatorial honors. If the occasion should present itself he would no doubt be a candidate for the senate. There are other Warwicks ready to enter the field if the opportunity presents itself who are now in the background, notably Attorney General McCormick.

DEMOCRATIC HOPES.

The eligible list in the Democratic party is also quite large. If, by some strange act of Providence, the Democrats should control the next legislature, and the anti-Harrityites are at the helm Senator Quay's successor will, in all probability, be one of the following four men:—Colonel J. M. Guffey, of Pittsburg; Hon. Joseph A. Sibley, of Venango; Hon. James Kerr, of Clearfield, or Judge James Gay Gordon, of Philadelphia. If the latter is nominated for governor and is elected he will not be among the senatorial possibilities. In all probability the man most likely to capture the prize is Colonel Guffey, as Mr. Sibley prefers to have the backing of the Democratic delegation to the next national convention for the vice-presidential nomination. If it is found that Guffey cannot be elected he will throw his influence to Kerr if the latter desires it or to any other the managers might decide upon. There is a perfect understanding between this quartette. Either of them would step aside to elect the other.

But, then, what is the use of further speculation on Democratic possibilities? There is a mighty slim chance of that party winning either the governor or the legislature in Pennsylvania this year, despite the fact that a rupture in the Republican ranks is threatened. The latter are great people for getting together at the last moment.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review

New York, June 6.—The stock market started this morning with every appearance of Saturday's brisk upward movement being continued. Later on there was a general fractional decline but the market remained fairly steady. Many of the leading Grangers and internationals, however, closed nearly a point under the best prices of the day. The whole list lost something from Berlin prices in sympathy but the lower priced stocks were firmly held and very conspicuous strength was shown by People's Gas, Sugar, Metropolitan Street railway, Northern Pacific preferred, Cleveland, C. C. and St. Louis and some other stocks. Net gains are thus made to predominate in spite of the weakness at some points which were emphasized by the falling off in the east bound tonnage from Chicago and disappointing traffic returns from some prominent railroads. Total sales were 475,000 shares.
