PRESENT STATUS OF THE COAL TRADE

Month of May No! Any More Satisfactory Than Its Predecessors.

FOR THE LAST FIVE MONTHS THE DEMAND FOR ANTHRACITE COAL HAS BEEN SO SMALL THAT THE COLLIERIES HAVE WORKED ONLY FOR ALL CONCERNED.

The following about the anthracite coal trade is from the June letter of the Anthracite Coal Operators' asso-

The month of May has not proven more satisfactory for the anthracife trade than did April. At its beginning, there was a temporary activity in the New England market. This was brought through an advance in barge rates to seventy-five and eighty cents, owing to the fear that the war might prevent regular slipmer ts, but as this was found to be without good ground, the rates dropped, and those whose orders had not gone forward had them stopped, while other buyers decided to wait until the rates again reached a satisfactorily tow figure. Charters were obtainable for Uffy-five and sixty cents at the end of the month and were expected to go lower The market at Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington was without a feature of interest so for as the quantity of sales was concerned, but prices at these points have been extremely weak, and material concessions are known to have been given. In the west, at Buffalo and corre-sponding points, the same condition exlats. The market for the steam sizes has suffered seriously through the small production. Some orders for them have been filled with larger sized coal, but in prove business throughout the anthra-the majority of cases the consumers have cite coal regions. taken a quantity of soft coal which they have used either alone or with such amount of small anthracite as they were able to secure.

The outlook for June is far from encouraging. The consumption has been estimated at 2,500,000 tons, and while thus might not in itself be more than the ac-tual requirements, the usual excess in production above the estimate must be allowed for, and this may prove sufficient

Thus far prices have been exceptionally firm in and around New York and at New England points, but it is feared that the weakness in the Southern and Western markets may throw an abnormal quantity of coal to tidewater points and force sales at lower figures.

STATUS OF TRADE.

From the first of January to the first of June, of this year, five months, the demand for anthracite has been so small that the collieries have worked only about 51 days out of the 151 passed. During the latter two mouths many of the operators were able to work only four days a month. As a consequence of this, the cost of mining has been increased far ond the selling price, and heavy losses have resulted. The results of this are equally serious to the railroads and to the individual operators. Both are depleting their reoperators. Both are depicting their resources and losing money in their current operations. The railroads are mining coal at an actual loss to their coal departments and paying this from their traffic carnings, thus reducing their total earnings. The coal which they market from their own property is being taken from it without any return, thus reducing its value. This coal land is an asset upon which the greater part of the railroads bonds and stocks have been issued. The foundation of these securities is three fold: First, that the coal in the ground is worth a certain amount per ton, a price which would be received for it if the rallroad owning it were to exebe from 30 to 50 cents per ton, as royalties are at present, and this figure should, therefore, become a part of the cents. therefore, become a part of the cost of mining when the railroads operate on their own property, in order that the return to the property account should maintain its value and be sufficient to pay the taxes and charges on the property, and interest on the investment, both actual and as represented by its relation to the bonds for which it is se-marketing coal there is assumed to be a profit. In order to do this work, heavy expenses have been incurred in sinking shafts and other mining operations, and in constructing buildings for the preparasale of their bonds has been used for this the expectation that, in carrying on the work of mining, there will be sufficient margin of profit between the cost of operating and value of the coal, when delivered, to pay the interest on the money thus invested, and to repay the principal within a reasonable time.

DEPEND UPON COAL.

Third: The ratironds which reach into tion of the Pennsylvania, depend upon anthracite coal for the greater part of their traffic. These roads have been built | tarday at great cost, with money secured from the sale of securities, and since the traffie earning from anthracite are their principal dependence, it is expected that this shall be carried at a sufficient price to pay its proportion of the operating costs and leave a profit enough for the interest and principal on the securities chargeable against it, and that this traffic shall continue for a length of time suf-ficient to repay the money which has been expended in creating and carrying

These are all sound business propositions and represent only such conditions as every business man must consider before investing, and which he must observe in operating. They are the conditions under which the individual operators are mining.

The manner in which the anthracite mining and carrying railroads are being conducted is exactly the reverse of this. They are mining on their own lands without charging themselves the current royalties which they would receive if the land was lensed by them to others. They are conducting their mining opera-tions at an actual loss and they are charging against authracite an extertionate and unjust freight rate from which they derive little benefit, since from it they derive little benefit. must be paid the losses of the other de

It is self-evident that such a condition is one in which the railroads are lowing and which is at the same time a gross in-justice against the individual operators. These latter must pay their royalties; their mining costs, and a sinking fund to re-imburse their investment in the plant, and then are compelled to pay heavy freight charges to a market. When they lose in operating, they have no railrand which will assume the loss.

PAIR PROPOSITION Quite apart, however, from this mani-fest injustice to others, it is clear that the system under which the railroad mining and carrying companies are operating is against their own interest. Most of their mines are so unprofitable that, even their cost of production, apart from any question of royalties, far exceeds the sell-ing price of the fuel. Why these collier-ies are continued is not possible to ex-plain. If they were allowed to stand idle and their proportion of the tonning di-vided among all of the operators, each would have better working time, with a resultant decrease in the cost of produc-tion.

Further, and bearing directly upon the matters previously referred to, it must be clear that if, when the market for coal is insertive, the railroads would close their collieries, which can only be oper-ated at a loss, and divided the tonnage thus represented among the individual operators, there would be saved for the ABOUT ONE-THIRD TIME-REFORM

The raffroads would decrease their expenses railroads would decrease their expenses, conserve the value of their proporty and maintain their traffic earnings, while the individual operators, through being able to work more steadily, would reduce their mining costs while maintaining a full supply of fuel for the market. There are, of course, many details which must be considered in the case of each failroad, but the general broad principal holds good and is one that embraces both a sound business policy on the part of the railroads, and equity between themselves and the individual operators.

HARD COAL BOOMERS.

Two of Them from Mt. Carmel Are in City-Want to Extend Market for Anthracite.

According to the two Mt. Carmel men, their respective organizations seek to gain the proposed end through lower freight rates on hard coal in order to permit competition with the bituminous product. Increased sales and more work at the hard coal mines would follow.

Resolutions were recently adopted as follows by the Mt. Carmei special business men's organization:

Be it resolved by the business men of Mt. Carmel at a meeting held this even ing, and it is hereby resolved by the authority of the same, that the condition of affairs in the authracite coal region is deplorable, and that owing to the present system of op rating the cofficies by which they are worked only about on and a half days a week, the working-men are unable to earn sufficient broad to feed their families and the suffering throughout the region from actual star-vation is greater than has ever been known before; that the people are not asking charity but a fair deal; that if anthracite coal was granted the same trade rates per ton per mile as bitumin-ous the chlargement of the market would give us more than twice the present work; that owing to the eppressive freight rates anthracite coal is crowde. out of the market for nearly all steam and manufacturing purposes.

Resolved, That we invite the co-operation of all the business men of the different towns in the entire anthracite re-gion to bring this matter before the presence of the different coal carrying roads and see if it cannot be remedied, and and see if it cannot be remedled, and urge them to hold medings of their bus-liess people at once and appoint a com-mittee to meet with the committees from this and other town to adopt such measures that they may consider practicable to secure relief from the prevailing con-

DRAMA IN GERMAN.

"Heimat" Produced in Music Hall by Chicago Star Company.

A smaller audience than the excellence of the entertainment demanded was in Music Hall last evening to witness the Chleago Star company's presentation in German of Sudermann's drama "Helmut" (Home, Sweet Home) under the auspices of the Liederkranz. The central figures of the drama, "Magda" and "Marie," were assumed Mrs. Johanna Eisemann-Iffliand. Few more clover exponents of the legithmate dramatic art have been seen in Scrapton's theaters in recent years. The other members of the company are M. Eisemann, Grete Martens, Marie and Fritz Hambock, Franz Eolau and

MADE A FINE SHOWING

Over 3.000 Hibernians and 18 Bands in Line.

PIRST ORDER IN THE MORNING WAS A MASS CELEBRATED BY RT. REV. BISHOP HOBAN, THEN A PUB-LIC SESSION AT WHICH JUDGE SMITH, JUDGE GUNSTER, CITY TREASURER BOLAND, ATTORNEY M. F. CONRY, CITY SOLICITOR Me-DREW THE LOT TO PRESIDE OVER THE TEMPORARY ORGANIZATION. OFFICERS WILL BE ELECTED TO-

An eventful epoch in the history of the Ancient Order of Hibernians emanated from vesterday's proceedings n the state convention. The complete and satisfactory re-establishing of unity was consummated with the asembling of the delegates in the general convention in the afternoon. President Patrick O'Neill, of the Board America, and Acting President John P. Quinnan drew lots for the chairmanship and the latter won. Mr. O'Neill acted as secretary. This mornng the first order of business will be the election of officers.

The delegates were slow in getting o the hall after the parade, and it vas 5.30 when President John P. Quincan of the temporary organization alled them to order. Miss Nellie Mc-Kernan, of Philadelphia, secretary of the Daughters of Erin, was appointed official stenographer for the conven-

A motion was made that the report f the committee on credentials be faid ever until this morning. That was coted down. The list was then read y Secretary Alex, McKernan, Under tation in the convention is based upon the number of divisions. The president of each division is a delegate by virtue of his office of president, and the county president is also a delegate. Captain John T. Flannery, of the Ninth Pennsylvania volunteers, is president of a Pittston division, but is credentials were used by a substitute. That gave rise to the discussion whether or not a substitute could e allowed under the plain letter of the law as given by the right reverend ar-bitrator. If Bishop McFaul said the president of each division was to be a delegate, did he mean, in case of a outingency, that a substitute could be sent? President Quinnan ruled that a division in good standing could not be deprived of representation if its president were unable to attend. In such an event the division could name a substitute. When the report of the committee on redentials was read it included Hon. P. P. Smith, Judge M. F. Wilhere, C. G. Boland as delegates at large. motion to adjourn was made and voted down. A motion to go into the nomination and election of officers was made and was followed by a motion to lay on the table. The roll call was necessary on the motion to table, and t was carried by a vote of 131 to 123. It was nearly 7 o'clock and a motion to adjourn was unanimously wel-

DELEGATES ATTEND MASS.

At 8 o'clock the delegates assembled at the Jermyn, formed in line, and marched to the cathedral. Bauer's band led the way. The mass began at 9 o'clock, Rt. Rev. Bishop Hoban was celebrant; Rev. D. J. MacGoldrick was deacon, Rev. E. J. Melley cas sub-dencon and Rev. J. J. B. Feeley was master of ceremonies, Bauer's orchestra accompanied the choir in Cimarosa's military mass. Bishop Hoban preached the sermon and welcomed the delegates. The blessing of God, he invoked, upon their reunited order. God certainly has a grand mission of glorious goodness for the Irish people, the speaker said; for Ireland's missionaries have gone forth into every country of the world to preach the doctrine of salvation. No ther people stands closer to the throne of God than Erin's sons and daughters; for through long ages of persecution and distress of misery and wretchedness their zeal has not been diminished for the sake of religion.

Ireland refused to give up her faith when Cremwell tried to crush out the very race itself. Her sons still kept the fires of devotion burning with their masses on the hillside and in the glen when it was treason against the state to worship their God. The priests were hunted like wild beasts in the forest, and the teachers were scattered like the ravenous welves with a price set upon their head. She has lost her language, lost her independence, but not

The public session in College hall be gan after the mass, and was attended by an audience that packed the place. Bauer's band opened the session with the "Star Spangled Eanner." County President Dawson was chairman. He introduced Attorney M. F. Conry to deliver the address of welcome on behalf of the Hibernians of Scranton.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME. To perpetuate, he said, the union effeeted at this convention Hibernians need only to adhere to the teaching and doctrines of their religion, which is founded on divine truth. Throughout all ages, Ireland has spread the light of prayers, she has given architects, poets, sculptors, orators, patriots to the He referred in conclusion to the service Irishmen are giving in the present war. No one questions his heroism most beautifully expressed the sentiment of love of country in the lines Breathes there a man with soul se dead, who never to himself bath said, This is my own my native land." The speaker dwelt upon the reuniting of the two boards and complimented them on obliterating factional strife from

City Treasurer Boland was the next speaker. He took issue with Judge Wil-here on the identity of the man who fired the first shot in the present war, He was from Scranton, not Philadel phia. He discountenanced the Anglo-American alliance until such time as England gives to suffering and dis-tressed Ireland the liberty that the United States is new fighting for to give Cuba.

City Solicitor McGinley made an address, and touched upon light topics in humorous style so that everyone was laughing until he got through. Captain James Moir, chairman of the com-mon council, was introduced and he, too, was as witty as he usually is when called upon to say something. He was proud of belonging to the Celtic race, and is a great admirer of Irish genius. He asked the Hibernian delegates from other cities to take a charitable view of the deplorable condition of the city's asphalt pavement. It was not always thus, and will not be thus always.

JUDGE SMITH'S REMARKS.

Hon, P. P. Smith briefly welcomed he delegates to visit his home and he yould be proud to accord them a hearty eception. Judge Wilhere was not permitted to remain silent. He was called from an obscure seat at the rear of the hall. He was brimful of witty anec dote and kept the audience in roars for five minutes

The Daughters of Erin held a thirtyminute session after the mass and ap pointed a committee on credentials onsisting of Miss Pose E. Tulley, Miss Katherine Shields, Miss Margaret Furey. Miss Condron and Mrs. Keavin, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Mary A. Jones, of Montgomery; Miss Mary Grogan, of Schuylkill; Mrs. Shearan, of Wilkes-Barre, and Miss Bersie Gearhart. The regular work of their convention will egin this morning.

The parade in the afternoon was nagnificent one. It took one hour and ten minutes to pass a given point. There were eighteen bands of music, ninety carriages containing clergy, state officers and delegates, and upvards of 3,000 men in line.
