Strange Submarine Monsters in the Waters of Susquehanna. NEXST CAMP OF THE VETERAN ASSOCIATION—NIGHT LUNCH WAGON AMONG FUTURE IMPROVEMENTS. A BIRD-EATING FROG DISCOVERED—NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE RAILROAD BOYS ALONG THE LINE.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Susquehanna, June 7.—Some very strange submarine monsters have been seen in the waters of Susquehanna county during the quarter of a century past. Few of them have been captured. In 1873 a black monster was seen in Crystal lake. It was thirty feet long, with a head as big as a barrel, and a tail like an eel. It was said to be a species of sea serpent, which had crawled overland from the sea coast. In 1876 a creature puzzling to local naturalists, with a mane and sharp tail and of a length nine or ten feet, was seen for months in Wright's lake, Thompson township. Earnings offered $7,000 and a season ticket for its capture. In 1881 they dug up a fossil "sea serpent" near Clifford, a gigantic creature of the lizard type, and a year later Harford people came upon a delicate creature in Jones' lake. It was of a dark grey color, yellow underneath, and tastefully decked out with bright red spots, and possessing, in addition to the customary mane and projecting eyes, a pair of formidable horns and a book like that of a bulldog. In 1893, a creature scarcely less interesting revealed itself in Heart lake, near Montrose. It was forty feet long, and with luminous eyes of an attractive green and red.

SUSQUEHANNA COUNTY SUNDRIES.

The Veteran organization of Susquehanna county at its recent meeting re-elected Captain H. F. Boardley general commander. The next engagement will be held in Montrose, on a date yet to be fixed by the general commanding. George W. Lindsey, Jr., of Lawsville Center, has been appointed district deputy grand sachem of the Improved Order of Red Men, of Susquehanna county. A well attended and very interesting Sunday School institute for the Second district of Susquehanna county was held in Uniondale on Friday. There is talk of a street railroad extension from Binghamton to Montrose. The term of the "Summer Normal," now in session in Montrose, is four weeks. Mrs. Mary D. Summerton, of Great Bend, has been appointed district deputy of the Degree of Josephants, I. O. R. M., of Susquehanna county.

MR. DEWEY SUGGESTED.

The man who kicks a banana peel from the sidewalk is a humanitarian. An exchange speaks of "a young man aged 82." The young woman of that age has not yet appeared. A Great Bend merchant, having had a strong discussion with his better half, put up the shutters and affixed the following notice: "Closed during alterations." Always go to the corner grocery if you want to know where some one lives in that neighborhood. Lightning has no fears for a man who has been kicked by a mine mule a couple of times. A Binghamton girl's heart is on the right side, and all the doctors of the city are puzzled about it.

HOME HAPPENINGS.

The school teachers of Scranton will invade Riverside Park, Lansboro, on Saturday next. The seven-mile stroller ride up the river will be a splendid one. The funeral of Miss Johanna Zorn, an estimable young lady, for many years a popular teacher in the public schools, was very largely attended from the family residence on Saturday afternoon. Rev. D. I. Sutherland, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiating. The funeral of Mrs. Mary Tierney, an aged resident, occurred and was largely attended this morning from St. John's Catholic church. Requiem high mass was celebrated, and the remains were interred in Laurel Hill cemetery. Isaac Burros, of Carbondale, will probably establish a night lunch wagon in this place. Isaac never sells boiler iron sandwiches. Under the will of the late Charles W. Rossegue, the senior proprietor, the Tarnsett-Ledger will be continued at least one year as in the past, under the name of Birchard & Rossegue.

A BIRD-EATING FROG.

A bird-eating species of frog has recently been discovered in the swamps of Susquehanna county. Farmer Cochran, of Red Rock, had his attention called to the bird-eating propensities of the frog by the cries of a bird in an adjacent swamp. Thinking it had been seized by a snake, he hastened to the spot and saw a beautiful red and green bird in the mouth of a large, greenish frog. Only the bird's head was visible, and its cries were becoming fainter. The frog was killed and the bird released. Its feathers were all wet and slimy, and for some days it could be distinguished in the garden by its ruffled plumage. The same species of frogs swallow chickens, and recently a duckling was rescued from the same fate. These frogs constantly make a chuckling sound so exactly like a hen calling her chickens for food that whole broods have rushed toward the swamp where they supposed the hen to be. The big croakers are very wary, and it is difficult to find them except by the screams of their victims.

RAILROAD BRIEFLETS.

It is reported that the Erie will run the first Sunday train of the season, from Binghamton to Lansboro, June 26. Has the war with Spain knocked out the projected Tunksamock-Nicholson-Lansboro railroad? Another instance of the good dying young. The Erie has purchased a meat train on the Jefferson division. The Erie is determined that its trainmen shall know all about the air brake, and schools of instruction are being held on the entire system. Excursions are already going to the Delaware and Hudson's beautiful Parkville. Few roads possess such a bonanza. IN A LINE OR TWO. The "Village Improvement Society" is getting down to work. The harvest

IS IT COMING?

The Possibility of a Summer Epidemic and a Few Words of Warning. Rumors of yellow fever have already been reported at Key West and two cases reached New York. The quarantine authorities are exercising unusual care to prevent the coming of cholera during the forthcoming summer. It is hoped these rumors are unfounded, but it is not even should they not, there has been so much rain, and there is so much poison in the air and the water, that the greatest care should be taken to keep in perfect health. Most summer diseases are dangerous and cannot be cured, but nearly everyone of them can be prevented. But how? By heeding what the highest known medical authorities emphatically state. Prof. Austin Flint, the leading Professor in Bellevue College, in writing on this subject, says: "The judicious use of alcoholic stimulants is one of the striking characteristics of progress in the practice of medicine during the last half century." The sentiment of the medical editors throughout the country is in the same direction, and Dr. J. E. Harper, editor of the "Western Medical Reporter," of Chicago, says in connection with the same subject: "Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey should be given. It is meeting with special favor from... There are no higher authorities than those above named. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey will absolutely prevent summer diseases; impure whiskey will not."

Day by Day Gossip of the Capital

Bureau of the Tribune, 135 Pennsylvania avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C., June 7. THE opinion is gaining ground in political circles that the ticket nominating at Harborside, last week, will be elected by an unusually large majority despite the talk of an independent ticket being put in the field. The ticket, from top to bottom, is an exceptionally clean and strong one, one that no man need be ashamed to vote for in public company. It is composed of men who have served in public capacity, to the entire satisfaction of the constituencies which they have represented, and there is no good reason why any man who calls himself a Republican should vote against any one of the nominees. The fact that David Martin is reported to be anxious to retain control of the city and county organizations in Philadelphia is taken to mean that he and his followers will not dare oppose the state ticket for the reason that two can play at the same game. The combined forces have not forgotten the Crow fight two years ago and he will no doubt soon announce his intention of supporting Colonel Stone in the coming state election. For similar reasons Chris Magee is expected to "turn in" for the ticket. Colonel Stone is Magee's home candidate and if he were to oppose him he would precipitate a local fight which would endanger his leadership in Allegheny county in the future. For the above and other reasons it is believed there will be no serious fight against Colonel Stone and his associates on the state ticket. If the state ticket is elected there will be no danger about the complexion of the next legislature, and if Senator Quay desires to succeed himself he ought not to have much trouble in doing so. It would be difficult to form a combination to defeat him, if the legislature should be controlled by the Democrats and anti-Quay Republicans it would be difficult for them to agree upon a candidate whom they all could support. The Democrats would insist upon a member of their party being chosen and the independent Republicans would do the same. A deadlock would follow, and with Colonel Stone in the governor's chair he would naturally appoint Senator Quay.

THE DEMOCRATS ARE IN DECIDEDLY WORSE SHAPE THAN THE REPUBLICANS.

The Democrats are in decidedly worse shape than the Republicans. The chances of the coming election are extremely remote. The Democratic leaders are divided, and the Democratic party is in a state of confusion. The Republican party is in a state of confidence and is expected to win the coming election. The Democratic party is in a state of confusion and is expected to lose the coming election. The Republican party is in a state of confidence and is expected to win the coming election. The Democratic party is in a state of confusion and is expected to lose the coming election.

BLOOD THICKER THAN WATER

Here is the song sung by Miss Harriet Vernon which is setting London theater-goers wild. John Bull is a sound and solid man, and so is Brother Jonathan. What'er the strain will firm remain their friendship fast and fond; Despite some thousand miles of sea must be blood that war their bond. That's why the broad Atlantic's ever called the "Herrin Pond."

CHORUS.

For blood is thicker than water, Eh, John Bull? Blood makes differences shorter—Say, John Bull? Not far from where I live in one boat—May we together pull. Then lick the world could Uncle Sam And old John Bull.

CHORUS.

Sometimes, no doubt, they both fall out, and then hard names are thrown about. They go it strong, but ne'er for long can they be unfriendly. Old Uncle Sam and Cousin Jack for Freedom's cause stand back to back. Let tyrants quake while we clasp their hands across the sea.

CHORUS.

To crush some tyrant's cruel sway the world may find some future day. The Union Jack and Stars and Stripes are side by side unfurled. Though countries differ, then unite to teach the creed of "Right, not Right." The foe must fall that meet in fight "The English Speaking World."

NOT A JUNKET.

From the Wilkes-Barre Record. Announcement has been made in the papers of the appointment by Governor Hastings of commissioners to represent Pennsylvania at the exposition now being held in Omaha. The popular impression is that such representation is always made the occasion of a junket to be paid for out of the state treasury, but in this case such is not the fact. The commissioners are to be appointed by the governor, and they will have to pay their own expenses. The scandal of last year's junketing expeditions in the state legislature is still as fresh in the minds of all honest people and it is gratifying to know that there is to be a reaction. The state treasury has been plundered too long by persons eager to tour the continent in public cars and to charge the expense on the public expense. Governor Hastings is to be congratulated on putting the Omaha commission on a proper basis and there is nobody who will be better pleased than will the appointees themselves.

ANGLO-SAXONDOM.

New York Commercial-Advertiser. Commercial and industrial union of Anglo-Saxondom, against a continent frankly committed to destruction of the trade of one and the industry of the other, is dictated by the common instinct of self-interest and self-preservation. This requires no secret treaties or permanent pledges; only common action.

NEW TIMES AND NEW MEN.

From the New York Times. In the new relation to the other nations of the earth upon which we have already entered, even if we assume the responsibility of no new possessions, there will be need of the highest ability, scope for its exercise, and ample rewards for its success. Ambition will be rekindled by a revival of opportunity. The people, finding that men of capacity are willing to serve, will desire the best of their seeking, and by a wiser choice at the polls will restore the golden age of our politics, when a debate in the senate made a difference of permanent value to American literature and our public papers were memorable examples of wisdom and recognized models of form. This prophecy is the fruit of a buoyant optimism that, we are well aware, will provoke the derision of those who have long been devoting their spare moments to the labor of chiseling an expository and analytical epiphon upon the tombstones of the past. They are wrong in their gloom. It is their chief joy, for ourselves, we have no doubt whatever that the war with Spain will be followed by a renaissance of the nation. The "fees of stagnant waters" will be purified by a brisk stirring. New thoughts will come to men's minds, new issues to our politics, a broader view of our place in the world and in the world's history will impart a deeper interest and a larger influence to the exercise of an American citizen's duties. The next century will open upon an era of advancement already set in which will carry the republic as far beyond the ken of men now upon the stage as the destruction of the last hundred years has transcended the aspirations of the fathers for the nation they had founded.

The whole civic attitude of men in place and out of it is changed by the raising up of questions of elemental justice that are common to all the nations of the world. They sober the judgment and deepen the sense of responsibility. Though the front of the world should be changed and the map of the world should be changed, the front of the world should be changed and the map of the world should be changed. The front of the world should be changed and the map of the world should be changed. The front of the world should be changed and the map of the world should be changed.

SEIZE HAWAII.

From the Washington Post. Secretary Alger's letter to the Speaker of the house clears the situation wonderfully. It is now known officially that the administration proposes to move promptly upon Cuba with a force sufficient to "conquer the island. More than this, the country is now known officially that the policy of the administration to hold the Philippine Islands, Cuba, and Porto Rico, in permanent connection with the United States by cable lines is asked. There will be no necessity for this action unless the new territory is to be retained.

SEIZE HAWAII.

This being the case, the course of the President is clear. The Hawaiian Islands should be annexed by executive action. There is, according to a published statement, a law under which this can be done. Already there has been too much temporizing and delay. The military forces in the house and senate, the majority in congress is undoubtedly in favor of annexation, and under ordinary circumstances, this majority could secure the passage of its will. Unwarrantable obstacles, however, have been interposed in the house, and even if that body should finally be allowed to act, which is not probable, the lack of any method in the senate by which a vote can be secured without great delay gives to a small minority a strong leverage by which to prevent executive action. If, therefore, the president is determined to hold the Philippines, as indicated in Secretary Alger's letter, he will not fail to use his power by his hands which the islands can become a part of the United States. In his action, no matter how radical, the country will support him. He has emphatically declared himself in favor of annexation. He appealed to congress when the occasion did not present one-thousandth part of the necessity which now confronts us. With our Admiral Dewey cannot be relieved; without our Admiral Dewey cannot be relieved; without our Admiral Dewey cannot be relieved.

SEIZE HAWAII.

Rock-a-bye, hush-a-bye, baby, my sweet, Pink little fingers and pink little feet, Soft is your pillow, your cradle is white—Rock-a-bye, hush-a-bye, baby, good night! Rock-a-bye, hush-a-bye, sleep and grow strong; Life is a journey, the pathway is long; Soon must the baby feet fall and away—Rest, little pilgrim, oh, rest while you may, Drop the white curtains with fringes of brown; This is the way into dim Slumberland; Six misty bridges that melt as we pass, And street after street that is waving with grass. Rock-a-bye, hush-a-bye, baby is gone, Wandering far till the peep of the dawn, Soft every footstep that passes the sill! Smile and be dumb when the cradle hangs still. —Boston Pilot.

OUR STAND AMONG NATIONS.

From the Pittsburg Times. While at the opening of the war with Spain there may have been doubt as to the attitude to be expected from some of the leading nations of the world, the gradual display of strength by the United States has brought them all from under cover, and there is none today that does not make a protest of friendship and the best of all is that that protest may be relied upon. As for the motive, that may be open to question, but if so it is another matter, and one of smaller consequence. When Great Britain gave such unmistakable evidence of sympathy for the United States, some of the other leading powers were disposed for a moment to regard such a possible affiliation as the United States and the United Kingdom. But when it became apparent that those two great powers were not making a closer compact than one of common interest, involving no particular duties one toward the other, whatever animosity may have been felt by the jealous outsiders was speedily dissipated. When France, England, Germany, Italy, and the United States, the wisdom of entertaining friendly relations with the United States, not alone because of the value of mutual peace, but because the republic is so strong that it is preferable as a friend than as a foe. Russia has spoken her sentiment, and it is quite similar. Whatever doubt may have been felt at the beginning is cleared away. The nations of the earth are with us; the big ones because they see the value of position, and the little fellows because they wish to be anywhere else if they wished.

SPAIN'S FIGHTING MEN.

From the Chicago Record. The army of Spain is divided into three classes: A permanent army of 9,315 officers and 70,229 men, an active reserve of 183,572 men, and a second or sedentary reserve, which on Jan. 1, 1898, was estimated at 1,083,395 men. All Spaniards between the ages of 19 and 45 are numbered in the second reserve, and are liable to be called upon for active service at any time they may be needed. All of them are supposed to have served at least three years in the first, or active reserve, which corresponds to our militia. Every boy, upon attaining the age of 19, must enter either the permanent army or the first reserve, and serve three years. About 100,000 come within the provisions of that law annually, so that there is a constant change from the permanent army to the first reserve. Then, after six years, when the citizen has reached the age of 25, he goes into the second reserve, and is subject to military duty only in time of war and after conscription. It may be said, therefore, that 250,000 men are constantly under arms in Spain and its colonies. The first reserves are used for coast guards, rural districts, and are likely to be detailed for service in the city police, which corresponds to our civil militia and the gendarmes of France. Voluntary service is accepted at 18 years of age, but the pay is so small, only 20 cents a day, that very few Spaniards think of enlisting until they are compelled to do so. By the payment of $300 any person may purchase exemption from military duty.
