AN OPERATION AVOIDED.

Mrs. Rosa Gaum Writes to Mrs. Pinkham About It. She Says:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I take pleasure in writing you a few lines to inform you of the good your Vegetable Compound has done me. I cannot thank you enough for what your medicine has done for me; it has, indeed, helped me wonderfully.

For years I was troubled with an ovarian tumor, each year growing larger, and I was compelled to consult with a physician. He said nothing could be done for me but to go under an operation.

In speaking with a friend of mine about it, she recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, saying she knew it would cure me. I then sent for your medicine, and after taking three bottles of it, the tumor disappeared. Oh! you do not know how much good your medicine has done me. I shall recommend it to all suffering women.—MRS. ROSA GAUM, 720 Wall St., Los Angeles, Cal.

The great and unvarying success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in relieving every derangement of the female organs, demonstrates it to be the modern safeguard of woman's happiness and bodily strength. More than a million women have been benefited by it.

Every woman who needs advice about her health is invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass.

TOBACCO PIPES DIAGNOSED.

Medical Preference for Clay Over Wood—No Imitation Mouthpieces Taubed.

If tobacco smoking is justifiable at all on hygienic grounds, it is generally conceded that the pipe is the least injurious means. But the tobacco pipe differs considerably in material and shape, both of which must be important factors in determining the character of the smoke. Thus there is the clay, the meerschaum, and the various woods of the briar, cherry, or myrtle. Next to the tobacco, therefore, which should always be pure and free from added flavoring, an expedient which is resorted to far too commonly nowadays, probably in many instances to cover an inferior quality of tobacco, the best of pipes is the point to be considered. Even assuming that he is smoking good tobacco, the smoker knows how different in character the smoke is when drawn from a clay or a wooden bowl. There is probably a scientific explanation of this fact which must have some bearing on the noxious or innocuous character of the smoke associated with other products of combustion. A soft clay is invariably soft smoking, because the aerial oils obtained on the pipe are expanded and the tobacco are absorbed instead of collecting in a little pool, which must eventually either by the volatilization or by mechanical conveyance reach the mouth. A particular pipe "smokes hot" not necessarily because the temperature of the smoke is high, but because it favors the passage by one of these means of the oils into the mouth. Meerschaum is another porous material. Again, an old wooden pipe or briar, so dear to inveterate smokers, becomes "stinking" because the pores of the wood widen and so absorb, as is the case with clay and meerschaum, a large proportion of the tobacco oils. Thus an old pipe "sweats," as it is termed—that is, the oil extrudes in the expanded pores of the wooden bowl and at length exudes. Similarly, a hook-shaped pipe must be better than a pipe the bowl of which is on the same level as the mouth, for the simple reason that in the former a considerable quantity of the oil is kept back in the "cushion" part of the pipe, while in the latter the oil travels easily down the stem. Ebony stems are in general objectionable because they commonly sap the true flavor of the tobacco smoke. This is most probably due to the sulphur of the ebony combining with the volatile oils in the smoke. We know instances where ebony stems have produced distinctly objectionable symptoms in the throat, most probably for the reason just given. Bore or real amber makes a much more satisfactory stem, or the pipes should be of CUBAN MAIDS AND MATRONS. Strict Etiquette Observed in Their Relations With Men.

From Leslie's Weekly. Slender, graceful Cuban maids, with smoothly-plaited tresses, black as the raven's wing, lustrous, dreamy, black eyes, clear, pale complexion resembling the waxen tint of the lily, have their pretty heads filled with dreams of love before they quit the schoolroom.

Their peculiar training, restricted sphere, as well as early maturity, in the tropics, a girl blooms into womanhood in her thirteenth or fourteenth year—may be the reason why their thoughts turn to love before they have discarded their dolls, braids and short dresses. The strict watch maintained over the tender buds, the east-runs of etiquette which prohibit them from too great an indulgence in athletic sports or outdoor life, which a northern maid enjoys, precluding romantic ideas and rendering her less susceptible to the tender passion which is fostered by a secluded existence, may be the reason why Cuban girls look forward to matrimony as a release from these irksome bonds.

The romantic manner in which courtship is carried on tends to keep alive their illusions for lovers usually walk arm and arm, before their love's dwelling like a sentinal on duty, because they are debarred from calling on a maiden until formally engaged, and then they can only see her in the presence of the family or exchange tender nothings under the Argus eyes of a mamma, who keeps strict watch over her offspring.

Many years ago no gentleman was permitted to touch a lady's hand, but he would bow deeply before her, while nowadays shaking hands is even more common than among our own people.

It is said by some that we shake the "fir-piercing," as Shakespeare calls it to the Swiss, and Sir James Turner, who busied himself in writing on military matters, names it the "Al-Jemine whistle," says Chamber's Journal. In France it was employed at least as early as 1834, in which year it was ordered by Francis I that each band of 1000 men was to have four drums and two fifes. A few years later in England, we find "drommes and fifes" included in the muster of London companies. Shakespeare refers to the musician, not the instrument, when he speaks in the "Merchant of Venice" of "the vile squealing of the wry-necked fife." An old writer observes indeed, that a "fife is a wry-necked musician, for he looks away from the instrument. About the reign of James II the fife lost its popularity for a time, Sir James Turner observing: "With us, any captain may keep a fife in his company and maintain him, too, for no pay is allowed him—perhaps just as much as he deserveth."

A LINE FENCE WAR. Mrs. Schneider of South Washington Avenue, Sues Constable Worklers.

Mrs. Brigida Schneider, of South Washington avenue, by her attorneys, John J. Murphy and S. B. Price, began an action for $1,000 damages yesterday in Prothonotary Copeland's office against Constable Joseph Wocklers, Frank Mosler, John Schroeder, Herman Schafer, Charles Mavien and Charles Wocklers.

She alleges that the defendants tore down a fence upon a lot owned by her on South Washington avenue, opposite the Steel Works station of the Delaware and Hudson railroad, and that on May 15 they caused a fence to be erected on the rear of the same lot and took forcible possession of several feet of land owned by her. It is a line fence war.

THE BOY'S LAMENT. I wish at I was big enough To go to war, for then I'd just kill and never have To go to school again.

And then the government would have To furnish me a gun, And I'd just shoot away all day— Gee, wouldn't it be fun?

And when I got into the game And couldn't come no more, And always chase me off to fight Her somethin' at the store.

I wish at I was big enough To go to war, for then I'd just kill and never have To go to school again. —Cleveland Leader.
