THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review. New York, June 15.—There was a disposition to speculate in the market to await the further progress of events after a series of testings by the professional elements. There was a feeling of uncertainty at the opening that there might be renewed pressure of forced liquidation on account of the decline in the market. The bears were prepared for such a development and sold with considerable confidence, bringing about a decline of a point in some of the leading securities. However, the market was not so much affected as was expected. The strength of Manhattan and the Cleveland, Cincinnati and Erie, and the Erie and Erie, the firmness of Sugar and Tobacco in the latter dealings helped to sustain the market. A large number of stocks fell 1/4 to 1/2.
