PATCHING THE ASPHALT. Test of concrete is being made on Linden Street. Monday night several of the holes in Linden street between Penn and Milbin avenues were patched with concrete.

LARGE RATTLE SNAKE KILLED. Joseph Paff had the Distinction of Dispatching Him. Joseph Paff, of Park Place, an engineer on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western between Scranton and Fort Morris, while running between Cresco and Henryville recently spotted a good-sized rattle snake beside the track.

DIED. BAILEY.—In Scranton, Pa., July 19, 1938, Helen, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus W. Bailey, age eight months and thirteen days, after an illness of about fifteen hours. Funeral notice later.

EXAMINING MEN FOR COMPANIES

Forty-one obtained at the Armory last night.

Twelve of them are for Company A, four for B and twenty-five for C. If any of the Companies Produce the Minimum Number of Men Tonight Officers Will be Chosen and the Company Mustered In—Major Simon Cameron Intends to Go to Harrisburg on Thursday.

At the armory last night the work of examining and accepting men for Companies A, B and C of the regiment that is to take the place of the twelfth, was carried on by Major Cameron and Surgeon Hahnenstadt.

Twelve men passed the medical examination for Company A, four for B and twenty-five for C. The names of the men are as follows: Company A—Jacob Hefflinger, Chas. H. Bone, Philip H. Street, Frank C. DeLong, Charles H. Baker, John C. Greenburg, Frank Kahler, Edwin McDee, William Goerke, Herbert E. Thayer, David J. Thomas, E. C. Hackett.

Company B—Gordon Ellis, Edward Spence, Leroy Stanton, Walter M. Dickson, Harold W. Battin, William Marsh, Thomas Z. Hargrove, Edward J. Woodward, Martin Kominski, John S. Van Horn, David James, T. L. Fitzpatrick, Robert D. Pettit, Edward F. Kingsbury, George T. Palmer, Charles Ash, Louis Welby, Fred Snyder, W. J. Kingsland, Frank A. Colony, Peter Getz, Albert W. Scheneman, L. Marshall, Russell J. Kimbrell, John H. Evans.

MEMBERSHIP OF A. Company A had seventeen men examined and accepted when the mustering officers were last here and with the twelve who went through last night has now a total membership of twenty-nine. Company C has forty-two members, twenty-five who qualified last night and seventeen who were approved two weeks ago. The membership of B is confined to the four examined last night.

The companies must have at least fifty-three members before they can be mustered in. Company C has about sixty-five names on its roll and it is probable that the necessary fifty-three men may be obtained tonight. Major Cameron said last night that if any of the companies secure the necessary quota of men tonight officers for it will be chosen and the company mustered in. If that cannot be done tonight, owing to a lack of men, the companies will have to wait for a week or so until he pays another visit here. He leaves for Harrisburg Thursday.

While Company C may produce the necessary number of men tonight, the prospect for A are not quite so bright. Little chance of a miracle can give B the minimum quota tonight. Some of its members who returned from Mt. Gretna are not desirous of entering the company if they have to serve more than the remaining period of their enlistment.

CONFLICT OF ORDERS. Owing to a conflict of the orders sent out concerning the organization of the guard some difficulty is experienced in conducting the recruiting.

Captain James Maitz, a former commander of Company C, has joined that body and his name is being linked with that of Captain Ed. Kinzbury in the office of second lieutenant.

FUNERAL OF MRS. CONNELL. Beautiful Services Conducted by Rev. Dr. Pearce.

A large assembly of townspeople and family friends passed in at the door of ex-Mayor William L. Connell's residence on Clay avenue yesterday, where, mingled with folds of crape, the white ribbons and roses told that one had vanished from within before the hand of age had tempered the affliction with the memory that inevitably death must walk by the side of Time.

PATCHING THE ASPHALT. Test of concrete is being made on Linden Street. Monday night several of the holes in Linden street between Penn and Milbin avenues were patched with concrete under the direction of Street Commissioner O'Boyle.

LARGE RATTLE SNAKE KILLED. Joseph Paff had the Distinction of Dispatching Him. Joseph Paff, of Park Place, an engineer on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western between Scranton and Fort Morris, while running between Cresco and Henryville recently spotted a good-sized rattle snake beside the track.

LETTER FROM ONE OF THE ENGINEERS

A. M. VORHIS WRITES OF LIFE AT PEEKSKILL.

Camp is Located on a Plateau of Two Hundred Acres that Overlooks the Hudson and is Admirably Laid Out for the Purpose for Which it is Used—Portion of the Men Expect to be Sent to Porto Rico—Gossip about Scrantonians with the Regiment.

HAND GOT HIS GOODS.

Had to Take a Deputy Sheriff with Him to Get Into His Wife's House at Green Ridge.

"Alas!" sighed Michael Hand in the language of Rip Van Winkle, "my very dog has forgotten me."

Expression to the foregoing sentiment was given by Mr. Hand as at 9 o'clock yesterday forenoon he stood with Deputy Sheriff Colborn on the porch of his wife's residence on Penn avenue, Green Ridge, and the dog kept a steady yelping.

"Sic him!" was the advice to the dog from an upstairs window. "R-r-r-up!" went the dog. "Madame," said Mr. Colborn, stepping to the walk and lifting his hat toward the second story, "I am the sheriff's representative and I command you in the name of the law to come down to my room."

"I'm afraid of that man with you," she said. "Don't believe her, sheriff," spoke up Mr. Hand. "I'm the one that needs to be afraid. Didn't she say once she would poison me?"

The officer of the law said he would see that no harm came to either. Up to this assurance she came down and unlocked the door.

Mr. Colborn informed Mrs. McHugh-Hand that he had a writ of replevin serve on her. The instance of her husband, the writ recalled the following articles: Two horses, 2 sets of harness, 1 single harness, 1 sleigh, 3 suits of clothes, 2 pairs of shoes, 2 clocks, 2 horse blankets, 1 double carriage, and a single buggy, all of the value of $708.

Mrs. Hand admitted the articles were on the premises and instructed the servants to show the sheriff through the house for the clothes and shoes, and to the stable for the other things.

"Look at them diamond rings he gave me before we were married," she said, addressing the sheriff, "why doesn't he want them back, too?"

"Oh, you can keep them and much good may they do you," ruefully replied Mr. Hand.

Then both told Mr. Colborn about their courtship until they came near getting into a physical argument. The articles mentioned in the writ were all taken except the sleigh. Mr. Hand said to leave it there until he has use for it.

Deputy Sheriff Ryan informed him later in the day that he had better get all the articles removed from a rural hotel.

They went out to Green Ridge again at 3 o'clock, but they came back without the sleigh. She would not open the stable the second time. Mr. Hand did not press hard for it.

Captain James Maitz, a former commander of Company C, has joined that body and his name is being linked with that of Captain Ed. Kinzbury in the office of second lieutenant.
