each other, growling and snarling Before she got to them the puma sprang, and at once the two were fighting fiercely above the child. In the struggle the child was rolled to one side, but before the mother could get to it the jaguar broke away from the puma, and, springing to the boy again, crouched with his paws above him as before. The puma leaped again and more the puma attacked his foe, and this time as the beasts struggled and tore each other an accidental kick from one of them sent the boy twenty feet away, almost to the mother's feet.

Catching him up, she ran for home and got safe to the house. The boy, though covered with claw wounds from head to foot and bearing deep marks of the jaguar's teeth in the back, where the beast had selzed him to carry him away, recovered completely from his injuries, although bearing the scars

WORK PROGRESSING.

The Massive Retaining Wall on River Street Assuming Proportions.

The difference between the inspector and contractor on the River street retaining wall job have been adjusted and work is now progressing rapidly. The masonry is of massive appearance and gives every promise of effecting an improvement for all time. William Collins, the original contractor, is sending along an ample supply of huge building stone from his quarry in Fell township and by the time the pavers are ready for work on River street this job will be out of the way. The acquisition of this little strip by the city removes the apprehension that it might sometime be made the site of unsightly structures.

HAD A GOOD TIME.

Several hundred persons of this city went to Farview yesterday with the St. Aloysius society of Wilkes-Barre. They report one of the pleasantest times of the season. That which added most to the enjoyment of the outing was the continuous playing of the Ninth Regiment band and orchestra. Despite the intense heat the dancing pavilion was crowded with devotees of the terpsichorean pastime.

all her laundried clothes had entirely disappeared. After a few minutes search about the garden she found a few of them strewn in various places. Evidently the thieves had not secured them safely and in their hurry dropped a few of them. The neighbors had no sooner recovered from the news when Mrs. William Brown, who lives a short distance away, came hurrying along, inquiring about ten missing chickens. She was a little more successful than her neighbor, for it was afterwards discovered that Horace Frederace, night operator on the West Side, discovered two men carrying a bag which hey hurriedly dropped and ran away. He went to pick up the dark object and was more surprised than Mrs.

Brown upon finding six of the feathered tribe peeping at him. Mr. Snyder thinks he has a clue to the marauders and if found guilty will prosecute them to the full extent of the law. Twin boys have arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, of South Main street. Miss Bina Gordon has returned to her home in Scranton after several days' visit at the Gordon residence.

TAYLOR NEWS.

The Rosebuds Add Another Victory to Their String-Personal News. Yesterday's game of base ball played on the Taylor grounds between the Alumni's, of Scranton, and the Taylor Rosebuds, although a one-sided affair was quite interesting at times. Watkins handled the sphere for the home team and held the Alumnis down with five hits; while the opposing pitcher, Harrison, proved an easy mark for the home boys. The feature of the game was the batting of Second Baseman G. Morris, of the Rosebuds. He had two three and one two-base hits to his credit. The score was as follows: Rosebuds ...0 3 2 3 3 1 2 0 3-17 Alumnis ....1 0 0 0 0 4 2 0 2-1 Hits-Rosebuds, 15, Alumnis 7. GOMEZ TO THE CUBANS. The Old Warrior Admonishes His Followers to Show Wisdom, Selfrestraint and Liberality in Upbuilding the Liberty Before Them.

A recent proclamation of General Maximo Gomez to the people of Cuba demonstrates that the great Cuban soldier is a statesman as well, full of unselfish patriotism and cherishing the highest ideals for the future of the little republic and its people. The proclamation in part is as follows: "Cubans: The day is drawing near when the war will be over; all strife shall cease and Cuba, free Cuba, will stand forth in her place among the ivilized countries of the world. That it become so quickly and without hav-ing previously to go through trials and internal tribulations as had or worse than war itself, rests with you. You must select for the directors of the destinies of the Cuban republic men of known virtues and proved integrity. Take them where you find them and do ot ask them where they were while the island was in the throes of a bloody fight for independence. 'You must see that the ministers and administrators of the country whom you select are not men who will lavish honors and luxuries on themselves while Cuba is as yet unreconstructed and has not an abundance in camps. The ministers must look first to the interests of the country, seek to pro-mote, before their own interests, the who will not abuse the power vested and laces while the people of the counry have nothing to eat and are nude world. "I myself counsel the sublime ideal of liberty, a big, brotherly embrace, which closely unites us for all time with the noble principles which must be the foundation of the Cuban nationality. "The final triumph must leave the people with majesty and grandeur. There must be no petty hatreds, no cherished animosities. A free and full pardon must go from the heart to all who ask it, and in that way your work must be complete. Forgive your enemies, and when you go to the glorious tombs of our brothers who died for the liberty which we shall enjoy to deck them with flowers, watered with the tears of warriors, let your hearts in that blest hour be free from all hatred. splendor, dignity and emolument than that of viceroy of India, which is now reconstruction of the island and the about to become vacant by the retireturing interests. They must be men the pomp and magnificence by which he is surrounded is superior even to in them. You must have no ministers that of his sovereign, Queen Victoria, whose wives clothe themselves in silks and her children; there is not one of the laster whose trappings of royalty do not pale into insignificance when and their children are deprived of the compared with those of the viceroy of benefits of eduction. Rather must your India. The English people, so niggardappointed rulers and leaders deny ly with regard to the civil list of the themselves and their families luxuries reigning family at home, spend money with a most lavish hand in maintaining the immense population of British ing the immense population of British India, which numbers 289,060,000 inhabitants, with a due sense of the wealth and grandeur of the British peace. With less than those dearly bought rights civilized man must never the viceroy considerably exceed $500,000 a year, besides which the government defrays the expenses of an enormous court and houshold, as well as of a regiment of body guards.

Yet, in spite of this, every viceroy of India in modern times has returned home at the conclusion of his term of office a distinctly poorer man than at the moment of his appointment. English officials, although generously paid, rarely attempt to economize on their salaries and allowances. They regard the latter as a species of trust, as money confided to them for the purpose of maintaining their office with a certain amount of dignity and luxury, and hold that to divert the funds from the purpose for which they were granted would constitute a distinct breach of confidence and a dishonorable action. Perhaps no more striking illustration of this peculiarity of English officials ould be cited than that of Lord Dufferin, who after holding in turn the offices of viceroy of India, of governor general of Canada and of ambassador at Rome, St. Petersburg, Constantinople and Paris, all most lucrative offices, has now, at the age of seventy, retired a poor man, and dependent a great extent on the pension of $5,000 per annum to which he is entitled as dence. Cuba must stand alone, with a dead past and a glorious future. "You must never speak of what has passed; never relate the thrilling stories of the struggle for liberty. All that belongs now to the history of your country, and the repetition of our past sufferings only fosters that irrltation of spirit which brings disunion and lack of harmony. Let all that be: talk and think rather of future glories than past sufferings. "If you would see Cuba prosperous and happy you must work with that single purpose in your hearts. Look to the education of your children. Teach them to be good citizens. The best beginning is to preserve the heart and soul from anarchy, to lay aside thoughts of strife when the sword is cast aside, and live in the future for peace, honor, the prosperity of the nation, and the glory of God. "For myself, if I survive the war and live to see Cuba free and self-governing, I shall be happy in some small

In the event of any emergency of which the viceroy himself is permitted to be the judge, he can suddenly, and without any other authority, suspend all existing laws and assume the most despotic powers, against the missuse of which there is but one remedy or redress-namely, impeachment in parliament

Precisely the same honors are paid to the viceroy as if he were a full-fledged sovereign; that is to say, he is addressed as "Sir," no matter what his rank in the peerage may be, while all men, and even women, rise when he enters a room, and no one dreams of taking a seat in his presence until he has requested him to do so. Women courtesy before him as if in the presence of the sovereign, and he never moves out of doors without being attended by gentlemen-in-waiting, by his alds-de-camp and by a large escort of body guards. At the conclusion of his term of office he invariably receives a step of promotion in the peerage. His winter residence is a superb palace at Calcutta, while during six months of the year he makes his home in the mountain districts of Simla, transporting not only his entire court, but also all chief offices and departments of state

ORIGIN OF DECORATION DAY. Many Claimants for the Honor of Inaugurating the Custom. From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The custom of placing flowers on the graves of soldiers is of very great antiquity. One ancient writer mentions the fact that on the birthday of Alexander the Great certain Greeks in Alexandria were accustomed to visit his mausoleum and place flowers on the threshold. The custom of planting flowers on graves is of an antiquity almost as great, and has been practiced in all parts of Europe for many centuries. The practice being once established, a local application of it in her bundle of sticks, and she did not particular cases was easy and natural. During the Civil war in this country the women of both north and south ing it away. The mother grasped her instituted a custom of going regularly on a certain day, generally about the 1st of May, to the cemeteries with bouquets for the graves of the soldiers who had been killed in battle.
