Bones Supposed to Be Those of a Peddier Who Disappeared About Forty Years Ago-Services in Some of the City Churches Tomorrow. Sadie Owens Severely Burned by Scalding Hot Coffe - Party Given by Miss Carrie Evans to a Number of Friends.

The skeleton of a man was un-earther last evening about 6 o'clock The evening was spent in a jovial near the old Rockwell gate house, by a laborer, Denis Ruddy, who was engaged in evacuating the place for a ceilar for M. W. Mackny Ruddy was busily upturning the earth and throwing it into a wagon, when John Griffin who has charge of the evacuations, noticed the skull of a human being His curiosity was aroused and an investigation followed, he with the help Ruddy removed the other portion of the human frame, which broke it several pieces, despite the careful handling it received. A measurement was made and the sketetor indicated that he must have been a man of immenses proportions. It measured six

The Inding of the boxes may lead to a mystery of forty years standing. Here, as the story is told by these who have a recollection of the occurence attending the disappearance of the man. His name could not be ascertained, but he traveled this valley, going from place to place, selling his wares which were of a miscellaneous collection of articles. The man was known to carry with him a plentiful supply of money. and was last seen going toward what was then known as the Dutch Gap. Search was made, but failed to discover anything that would lead to his whereabouts.

Several persons were accused of being implicated in the strange affair, but nothing definite was ever ferreted out. The fact that there is a large deat in the forehead of the man's skull is evidence that he must have been foully dealt with. Whether the skull recovered yesterday was that of son will probably never be known. The bones are now in John Griffiths' barn, and he will at once notify the proper nuthorities.

Programme That Has Been Arranged for the Occasion-New Officers of Court Pride of Lackawanna of Foresters Installed - McDonough Turned Over to the Police by His Father-Funeral of the Child of Mr. and Mrs. John Witzol at St. Mark's Church.

After many delays, owing to the difficulty in procuring a large sized flag from the manufacturers, the long arranged for flag raising will be held this afternoon at the Bellevue colhery. Over a month ago a subscription was taken up among the employes, inside and outside of the colliery and Superintendent B. C. Green was instructed to procure a flag and arrange for a raising. The pole, 110 feet in length, was placed in position some time ago. Few if any poles occupy as unique a osition. It is placed in the centre of the cheese box top of the reservoir which stands about 200 feet north of the breaker and is used to feed the beilers of the colliery. At the base of the pole is a small square stand with a low artistic railing. Yet into this stand is a water-proof receptacle in which the flag can be placed on storiny or windy days. This stand is approached by a flight of steps leading up over the roof. This roof will be painted red, white and thue. The top of the pole is capped with a large brass globe surmounted with a bronze representation of the American eagle. From the stand at the foot of the pole a commanding view is readily obtained up and down the valley. The observatory at Fairview can be seen on a clear day. Su-perintendent Green says he has counted about 600 flags, flying at different points, from this stand.

A large platform has been erected nearby and planks so arranged as to seat several bundred. Inside Foreman John Hale will act as chairman and Stenner's band will provide the music A chorus of about 100 voices, all children from Bellevue Heights, will sing several selections. Exercises begin at 2.30 o'clock. The following programme will be carried out in connection with the unfurling:

TAUGHT TO BUILD NESTS.

One Feature of the Education of Young Birds. From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

It is a common error to believe that with birds the knowledge of building their nests is innate. It is a trade that is taught to every bird by its parents and in just as systematic a manner as men are trained to be builders. Birds are born with the instinct to carry littie twigs and the materials of which nests are made, but unless they are instructed in the art of building they will just drop them in a pile and never attempt to weave them into nests, It is after the young birds have learned to fly that the older ones regularly teach them the process of interweaving and lining that is necessary to construct nests. This is most complicated and a trade peculiarly their own; it annot be imitated even by men. irrange the little twigs so that they will be symmetrical and strong enough to hold the weight of the mother bird and four or five little ones to a branch of a tree requires good engineering abilty. The lining of the nest is usually of a much softer material than that of which the outside is made, and to place this neatly is also taught by the older birds. Humming birds will often follow cows for days to pick up their soft hair with which to line their nests and they weave it as compactly as a piece of flannel. Pirds that have always been in cages can never make nests and are pitiably clumsy even with cotton, wool and material that has been given to them. That nest building is taught is also true of those that squirrels and mice build, as well as tees, wasps and ants. The green ant of Australia is very clever in the building of its nest. appears to consider it an irksome duty that can be hired out. A small spider is therefore trained to do this work and acts as a servant in all things. The green ants pay the spiders for their labors in a coin that they enjoy. It is by siving them to eat a portion of the innumerable little eggs that they, the ants, lay. This is a most agreeable arrangement for all, man included, as otherwise the green ants would rival
