DAY'S DOINGS OF NORTH SCRANTON

ANOTHER STRIKE OF DRIVERS AT WEST RIDGE COLLIERY.

They Allege They Have Not Been Paid the Amount Agreed Upon. A Meek Young Man Succeeded in Defrauding Mrs. Martin Apple man-Two Suspicious Characters Are Arrested by Lieutenant Spellman-Boy Injured by the Running Away of a Horse-Flag Raising This Evening.

Another strike occurred yesterday at the West Ridge colliery, due to the refusal of the drivers employed in the mines to resume work on a reduction in wages. On Saturday last they received their month's salary, and stated that the scale on which they agreed to go back to their work was not fulfilled and yesterday they deemed it advisable, under the circumstances) to cease work, which caused a suspension of operations at the colliery. If the drivers do not report for duty this morning they will be immediately paid in full and receive their discharge.

A MEEK YOUNG MAN.

A meek looking young man with a glib tongue succeeded in winning the confidence of several North End people yesterday. He worked his ruse in the Dutch Gap section and used the name of James Drown well known by the entire community. His scheme was the presentation of a check purported be made out to him with Mr. Drown's name as the one who gave the check.

He succeeded in winning the confidence of Mrs. Martin Appleman and secured a small amount. He gave the name of Henry Wilkeson, and was about six feet in heighth. The police were notified and are on his track.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTERS.

Lieutenant Michael Spellman and Roy Brink captured two suspicious characters at Tripp's crossing last evening. The arrest was accompanied by many dangers, and had not the lieutenant used a little strategy and would undoubtedly have fared badly.

When searched limmediately after their arrest, three ugly looking revolvers of the Bull Dog type and all cham-bers loaded, also several knives were found in the pockets of the men, which leads to the belief that they must have despoiled a hardware store. They gave names as Charles Rice, of Lincoln, Nebraska, and Thomas Burns.

TWO ACCIDENTS.

The 6-year-old son of Mr. Horace Twining, of North Main avenue, narrowly escaped serious injury as the résult of a runaway recently. The lad was overly anxious to procure a ride. He made a reguest to a passing farmer, which was granted. During the rounds the farmer had occasion to step into a house. While absent the animal became frightened and dashed

The assault was alleged to have been perpetrated in the Dickson mine and was the outcome of slight grievance. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon services over the remains of Mrs. William Laird were conducted at the home on Grove street. Rev. W. F. Gibbons, of the Presbyterian church, in a short but impressive sermon extolled the lady's many virtues and qualities. After the services the remains were conveyed the Forest Hill cemetery, where interment was made. The pall-bearers were friends attended the funeral of Henry Hoffman, which occurred from the home off Ridge street yesterday. Rev. Eugene Wisskopff, of the Lutheran church, officiated. The pall-bearers were Frank Herman George Schultz, William Miller, Christian Muscatt, Fred. Klears and Jacob Shaffer, Interment was made in the Petersburg Lutheran cemetery.

Mrs. Bridget Knox appeared before Squire Krotzer yesterday morning, charged by John M. Coleman with owing him a store bill amounting, with interest, to $15.01, Mrs. Knox donied that she owed the plaintiff anything. that her husband had settled the account before he died, but she had no receipts to show for it. Mr. Coleman in his testimony showed his day book with the entries made in it. In the face of the evidence 'Squire Krotzer gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff for $15.01. Mrs. Knox will carry the case to court. Mrs. Thomas Shepherd, of Clay ave-

WEST SCRANTON WORK OF REBUILDING OXFORD

WASHERY IS IN PROGRESS.

Removal of the Big Culm Heap Makes It Possible to Open Up Several Streets-Some Ancient History About Gammon's Hill-Officers Elected by the St. Paul's Pioneer Corps-Funeral of the Late Thomas W. Phillips Will Take Place This Afternoon-Other Matters.

Before many months have passed the new Oxford washery will be in operation. Already a large force of carpenters under Thomas B. Carey and Foreman Benson Davies are busy framing the big timbers. The work is carried on in the vacant plot where the old culm dump stood before its removal by the oprations of the first washery, which was destroyed several months ago by fire. The second washery will not be as large as the one destroyed, but will be fully as complete in all the appliances of an up-to-date plant. It will be erected as close as possible to the point where the former operations of culm removal ceased. This will be done to avoid a great length of conveyor conduits. The spot chosen lies to the right of the proposed extension of Oxford street to Meridian, and about 300 yards from the present terminus of Oxford street at the intersection of Ninth street. Immediately beneath the structure a tore hole will be made going a depth of 309 feet and cutting the Clark vein workings. Into this bore hole will be piped all the slush refuse from the plant, being washed in by a powerful stream of water. A double benefit is thus gained. valueless refuse of an unsightly nature is disposed of and a wide expanse of ground redeemed. Also the underground passages of the mine becomes solidly filled, thus preventing the sinking of the strata and consequent surface damages. It will not take very long to remove the culm lying on the left of Luzerne street, and nearest to the washery. Little of it is of a marketable value for any purpose and it is very probable that this "little" will be used in the boilers at the Oxford. As to the smaller "dump" across Luzerne street on the right hand side nothing definite has been arranged, though ultimately it also will be removed. There is still less of marketable material in this pile, as for sometime only "bony" and "dust" have been dumped on it. It is figured that in the course of three years all that was once an Oxford culm pile will have been entirely removed. This conclusion is based on the method of operating the other washery. About 20 men and boys will be employed in and about the plant.

Two questions naturally arise in connection with the removal of this culm. The first, will the extension of Oxford street to Meridian ever be accomplished? There is about 1,000 feet of company land and 150 feet of the property facing on Meridian street and owned by Mathew Dale which must be secured to do this. If the company will transfer the necessary right of way and Mr. Dale will sell for a reasonable price. Oxford street may yet run company will do and it is said Mr. Dale wants $5,000 for his property upon which a house and barn now stand, That the proposed street extension would be a much travelled thoroughfare is indicated by the fact that ever since the culm was removed, and until Mr. Dale prohibited trespass across his lot, many have gone that way.

In connection with street extension, it might be suggested that Ninth street could now be extended from its present terminus at Oxford right across to where the narrow roadway running along Ansley's planing mill to Meridian street, now ends. The distance is about 1,800 feet and a direct thoroughfare from Scranton street to Luzerne street would thus be obtained. The Scranton street hill would be avoided by that route for approach to lower West Scranton. The second question is what will the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company do with the large area of vacant land obtained? It would make an admirable site for car repair shops and sidings and it is barely possible that that is its probable destiny.

ITALIANS AT WAR.

A serious outbreak of hostilities among the Italion marketmen of Cedar avenue was imminent yesterday afternoon. Joe Squeele, whose stand is at the corner of Cedar avenue and Alder street does not look with favor on the audacity of Tony Banotti in opening a market a few rods from his place. Ill feeling has existed between them for several weeks. Yesterday Tony vas engaged with his ice cream wagon distributing to his select trade when he passed Joes stand. Tony made a slurring remark, which was resented by Joe in a forcible manner, that discolored one of the optics of Tony, who rushed back to his little store, grasping a revolver and stiletto. Post haste he returned but found Joe securely locked in his store. The glass in the door was broken and the lock was turned. Joe got out by the rear door and made his escape without any unnecessary delay. Patrolman Schmidt was sent for. He searched the angry Italian, but the weapons were not to e found.
