THIS AND THAT.

"Although hundreds of people visit Mt. Yeager annually, few are aware that one of its most secluded spots shields a hermit," says the Hazleton Standard. "The name of the individual is August Hilsenbecker, a well preserved German, 63 years of age. When a scribble was directed to his place several days ago, the aged reclus was busily engaged. He was at first loath to give the scribe and his companion an audience, but on second thought he invited them to be seated, and a conversation on general topics followed, during which sufficient information was gleaned to convince one that Mr. Hilsenbecker was either disappointed in love and has chosen this spot to end his remaining days, or else he committed some deed and chose this spot as a hiding place. In answer to a question he stated that he had resided on the mountain twenty-one years, and since then has not permitted a woman to enter his domain. He does his own cooking, and would positively not eat anything prepared by female hands. After traveling through every state in the Union, said he, I came across this spot, and decided that it was the nicest place in all this world. I purchased fifty acres of land which I have titled year after year always realizing sufficient to keep my cows and obtain a livelihood myself. I like company, but I don't care about anyone calling upon me, for after they depart it is so much harder for me to live alone."

"This quaint old recluse resides in a small hut, possibly 12x20 feet. This hut contains a bed, a cupboard and a small library. About fifty feet from the hut is the barn. Both of these structures are as quaint as the owner, and the barn besides being weather beaten contains a roof made entirely of straw. This has frequently been repaired, and he is even now the "ug" of having it replaced with a shingle roof. He cues all his own hay with a scythe that has been in his possession ever since he took up his present abode. He possesses no wagon, and carries all his hay with a rope, just as they did in Germany years ago. It generally takes him six weeks to harvest his hay crop, and when queried as to why he had no wagon, he replied: "I would not think of permitting my cows to eat hay that was hauled on a wagon." So well he is hidden from the outside world that even the assessor of the township did not know where he resided up to two years ago. At that time he walked all the way to White Haven, was registered and cast his first vote in America. Once a month he descends his secluded home and goes to Freeland to obtain coffee, oatmeal, etc., in exchange for butter. He is well read and speaks English fluently, but so far as his past life is concerned, he will say nothing. When the scribe departed he bade him a hearty farewell and invited him to call again."

5 Per Cent. Gold Bonds at 95.

Some of the most conservative financiers in the Wyoming Valley have been liberal subscribers to the First Mortgage and Collateral Trust Bonds of the New Mexico Railway and Coal Co. The announcement is made that the company's railroad (the El Paso and North Eastern) has been completed to Alamogordo, 85 miles, where it taps the great timber region and opens up the farming and fruit lands of La Luz and Tuleza. The fact that the business of the road has already reached a volume that more than equals the estimation of the management, speaks well for their shrewdness as business men. What the profits of the company will be when the vast deposits of coal at Salado can be drawn on, can only be conjectured. It is evident, however, that there is no lack of security for the bonds. The wonder is that they can now be had at 95.

GROWS IN INTEREST WITH EACH DAY

INSTRUCTORS HEARD AT SISTERS' INSTITUTE YESTERDAY.

The Sisters' institute increases in interest as the days go by. Mrs. Burke has a wide knowledge of many topics and always speaks in a pleasing manner. Miss Burke is a very attractive young woman, and has a distinctly charming way of presenting dry subjects. Her fund of anecdotes applicable to the matter in hand is inexhaustible and always illustrative of some excellent point. Miss Burke is the critic of several grades in the State Normal school at Buffalo. She is well known throughout New York as an able instructor at state institutes. Yesterday morning the first period was taken up with an open discussion of the relative merits of graded and ungraded schools. The Sisters took an active part in the discussion. Mrs. Burke gave strong arguments in favor of a relaxation of the cast-iron system of graded schools. She said she said she is to be commended in that when a pupil is ready for promotion he is promoted. She also produced the testimony of many well-known educators in support of her views. It was announced that the absence of Professor Walsh, of Brooklyn, was due to serious illness in his family. After intermission Miss Burke spoke entertainingly on geography. She believed a "rational" or "comparative" geography, and did not approve of the open air lessons and actual observation should precede definitions. Her suggestions as to maps were valuable. Bare outlines are enough for beginners. Physical geography may be taught by a close observation of nature.

GREETINGS READ.

Greetings were read from the Sisters of Mercy in Rochester and from Mrs. Mary T. Monahan, who was an instructor at last year's institute. Professor George Howell, of the Scranton schools, then gave an interesting and most instructive talk on words. "Style," he said, "is merely the putting of proper words in the proper places. Style is the reflection of the mind in words. In his words in you find a photograph of the man. Johnson's style is like the man, heavy and rugged. He talks in a heavy, awkward way. The words are like a man's hands that run and stumble before the command to fire; Webster's words are thunderbolts that demolish and crush whatever is in their path; Jefferson's words are stilettes; Longfellow's words are gentle, like the queen's guards in their regular way. Words are so much power, but are real things with power to destroy the strongest fortifications or to defend the weakest. Words are not empty symbols. They are governed by natural laws. As the weak and poor perform the drudgery in life so in the realm of literature the words that are weak and poor perform the drudgery of the slavish tool, the uncertain service."

HISTORY OF WORDS.

In continuing his subject he spoke eloquently of the history of words and the intense interest in its study. An illustration he mentioned the Saxon "w", meaning to twist, and quoted "wrench, wrestle, wrinkle, wrap, wrong," etc. He earnestly advocated the study of the classics and marveled that any scientist could proceed in his work without a knowledge of Greek. If the history of a nation were lost, Mr. Howell said, a new history could be compiled from the names spread over the country. As an illustration he mentioned the names of rivers from the Great Lakes to the mouth of the Mississippi, the succession of Spanish appellations and in New England the English names often to be found. Words, like men, are inconsistent, constantly changing, and he showed how the word "wrench" had changed its meaning from the time of Chaucer's time to the liveliest present at a funeral. Bombast once signified a package of cotton. Today it means an inflated speech. The word tale in the German is to count. When we say "Every Shepherd tells his tale" under the hawthorn in the vale. The couplet means simply that the shepherd is counting his sheep under the hawthorne. Other words were analyzed, after which the suggestions were referred to the strength and beauty of Anglo-Saxon words and closed with a quotation from Eugene Field, who had a due appreciation beautifully expressed of the Anglo-Saxon.

MISS BURKE ON GEOGRAPHY.

Miss Burke continued with the subject of Geography, giving a most interesting talk on the history of boundaries which would interest the children. Among these were the boundaries of states and how they came to have their peculiar outlines. The little curve where Delaware joins Pennsylvania was made by arbitrators when to decide the matter a point of the compass was set in a bend of the river which described the arc now on our map. Other details of state outlines followed. She advocated study with the open book and teaching the children how to find out for themselves instead of memorizing so much material. The reasons and importance of meridians and parallels of latitude and longitude were given. She spoke of the design for using 260 degrees as a basis as the number is a multiple of every digit except 7. She believed the idea of making artistic maps lacks educational value. The children should first draw mere outlines, making the map for themselves and thus not being confused with the multiplicity of details. Mrs. Burke then took the platform and spoke on Grammar, giving many valuable suggestions for the beginning of the study. At the conclusion of her talk she addressed the Sisters for a few minutes, urging their co-operation in establishing mothers' meetings.

NO ARRESTS HAVE BEEN MADE AS YET

SLAYER OF JOSEPH SANTORO IS STILL AT LIBERTY.

Warrants for the Arrest of Raphael Pascore and Antonio Grieco Were Yesterday Placed in the Hands of Warden Simpson and Deputy Sheriffs Thompson and McGoldrick—They Returned Last Night Without Their Prisoners. Pascore Is at His Home.

No murderer in this or any other county has had a better chance to escape than the man who killed Bandmaster Joseph Santoro, of Old Forge. Deputy Sheriff Frank E. Ryan sent for Theodore Santoro, the dead man's cousin, yesterday forenoon and asked him if it was true he could not get constables in Old Forge to serve the warrant sworn out for Raphael Pascore and Antonio Grieco unless he paid them high prices. Mr. Santoro answered in the affirmative. Mr. Ryan ordered Warden Simpson and Deputies Thompson and McGoldrick to proceed to Old Forge and serve the warrants. They went down early in the afternoon and returned in the evening without their prisoners. They went to Old Forge and could have arrested Grieco. He was at Santoro's funeral, which was held at 3 o'clock. The King Humbert band led the funeral procession. Services were conducted at the Italian Catholic church by Rev. Father Gieson. Interment was made in St. Joseph's cemetery, Minooka. There was a large assemblage at the funeral. Grieco came to Cerundro's house and took a last look at the dead man. He gazed without any agitation at the body and attended the funeral all the way to the cemetery. Mr. Santoro, of Long Island, informed a Tribune reporter that Pascore may be arrested today. Pascore was at work Tuesday and yesterday and stays home in the evenings. He has made no effort to escape. On the other hand the friends of the dead man allege that each succeeding day since the murder has brought additional proof of Pascore's guilt. They said last night that two women can testify positively to having seen Santoro and Pascore together walking in the direction of Old Forge about a half hour before the murder was committed. They have two other witnesses, they say, to prove that Pascore bought the ax early Monday morning at a store in Moosic. The cuts were so clean that the ax must have been very sharp. Meanwhile, Pascore stoutly maintains his innocence.

LETTER FROM CHAPLAIN.

Has Reference to Sending Home the Pay of Soldiers Who Are Now at Camp Alger.

From Chaplain N. F. Stahl, of the Thirtieth regiment, the following self-explanatory letter, relative to forwarding home the pay of soldiers, has been received here by Secretary D. B. Altherton, of the executive committee of the Soldiers' Relief Association: Camp Alger, Dunn Loring, Fairfax Co., Va., July 25, 1898. To Mr. D. B. Altherton, Secretary Soldiers' Relief Association of Scranton. I have the honor to acknowledge your favor relating to the sending of money for the soldiers at hand and I have the pleasure of saying that Major Charles K. Parke, of Scranton, has kindly consented to receive money from the soldiers for their families and to transmit the list, with names and respective amounts, for total to you to be by you distributed. I shall I announce this arrangement in the regiment prior to next pay day. Very respectfully, N. F. Stahl, Chaplain, Thirtieth Regiment, P. V. I.

At the last meeting of the committee the suggestion that the committee and Chaplain Stahl act as mediums in delivering soldiers' pay to their families was recently adopted. The plan and received $4,000 from the soldiers in the field through their chaplain after the first pay-day following. Since the last meeting of the Scranton association aid has been given to twenty-two families and about $150 has been distributed.

CLAIMS FOR BENEFITS.

Considered at a Meeting of the Scranton Firemen's Relief Association Held Last Night.

Last night's meeting of the Scranton Firemen's Relief association was almost wholly devoted to discussing the legitimacy of claims of firemen sick or injured before the incorporation of the organization and who have benefited or will present claims as beneficiaries of the association's fund. The claim of Chief P. J. Hickey, of the fire department, for $50 was approved and paid. He is the first member of the association to be paid for injury or sickness. He was trampled upon and seriously injured on June 30 by a team of horses. Twenty-one days previously the association received its charter. Chief Hickey was one of the most active spirits in permanently organizing the association and is its president. S. B. Price, of Columbia county, was injured on January 1 and was incapacitated for twenty-one days. His claim of $42 was presented and referred to the board of directors and City Solicitor McGinley, who is the attorney of the association, for consideration. It was the general opinion, however, that firemen injured subsequently to the date of organization, August 13, 1887, but previous to the incorporation, June 9, 1888, could not receive benefits. Considerable depends on the disposition of the Price case from the fact that the cases of many firemen sick or injured subsequent to August 13, 1887, as a result of fire duty, may present claims. The total involved in these cases amounts to nearly $2,000. None of these possible beneficiaries, however, has presented a formal written claim.

COUNCILS MEET TONIGHT.

May Consider the Providence Paving Contract.

Each branch of councils will meet tonight, the select branch in adjourned and the lower body in regular session. Select council's most important business will be its action on the report of the joint pavements committee on the award of the big North End contract. Possible action depends, however, on the committee being able to make a recommendation at its adjourned meeting this afternoon.

ITALIAN CATHOLIC SOCIETY.

New Organization of Beneficial Character Begun by Father Landro.

Rev. Dominick Landro, Italian priest, connected with St. Peter's cathedral, has organized an Italian Catholic society in the cathedral parish, the principal object of it to provide for benefits in case of sickness or death of its members. Aurelio Terreri, of Ninth street, has been chosen temporary president. A meeting will be held next Sunday to receive into membership as many as want to join. Already fifty men have enrolled.

FIRE APPARATUS AWARDS.

Joint Committee Unanimous in Its Recommendations.

At a meeting of the joint fire department committee of councils last night a report was adopted recommending that the contracts for a new chemical apparatus and a combination hose and chemical wagon be awarded to Charles T. Holloway, of Baltimore. The report was adopted unanimously and signed by all the members of the joint committee despite the fact that The Fire Extinguisher Manufacturing company (Babecek), of Chicago, submitted proposals lower than those of the Holloway people. The Babecek and Holloway bids were $1,400 and $1,470, respectively, on the combination wagon, and $1,175 and $1,200 on the chemical apparatus. While it was a foregone conclusion that a majority of the committee favored a Holloway award, it was somewhat of a surprise that there was no minority to recommend the Babecek bids. The proposals were submitted on city specifications. A third company, the Racine Fire Engine company, submitted proposals of $1,400 and $1,200. The combination wagon is for Relief company, of Petersburg, and the chemical apparatus for Columbia company, of the West Side.
