TWO ACCIDENTS.

Frank McDonald, of Brooklyn street, met with a painful mishap yesterday morning. While attempting to open a can of fruit the top portion of the bottle snapped and inflicted an ugly gash in his right hand between the thumb and index finger. The wound bled profusely and Mr. McDonald hurried to the office of Dr. J. A. Kelly, who closed the wound with four stitches. The young man is a telegraph operator at the Carbondale yard of the Ontario and Western company. Thomas Lynott is suffering an injury sustained at the silk mill. He was struck in the chest by some revolving machinery and rendered unconscious. He was taken to his home and Dr. J. A. Kelly called. The doctor found that the lad had suffered an indenture of the breast bone, which made his breathing very laborious. The doctor made him as comfortable as possible and hopes to bring his patient around in a few days.

FUNERAL OF P. K. BARGER.

The funeral of the late P. K. Barger, who died on Wednesday morning, was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence on Church The funeral was largely attended and the services were conducted by Rev. Charles Lee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The pallbearers were composed of the following gentlemen: J. B. Vangorder, J. Rutherford, William H. Williams, Dr. C. T. Meaker, A. L. Vangorder and W. Watt. The out-of-town persons who attended the funeral were: Hiram Marsh, Scranton; Miss Della Vaughn, Mrs. Elpin and Samuel Wint, of Providence. Interment was made in Maplewood cemetery.

AVERY RESIDENCE SOLD.

One of the most important real estate deals that has taken place in this city for some time is the transfer of the residence of Charles G. Avery, on Garfield avenue. The purchase was made by Dr. W. A. Spencer. Mr. Avery, who is a resident of Phillipsburg, Pa., was in this city last week and the sale was consummated at that time. The consideration is $5,000. The property is one of the most desirable in the city.

A Crash in Shoe Prices On Saturday Only

WE ARE DETERMINED that this Shoe Store of ours shall be better brown this of ours shall be better known to you. On every hand are seen the shams of careless making and exorbitant prices. In many you see style and apparent goodness. But beauty is only skin deep-and beneath the surface are qualities that wear away in a day.

No such shoes here. We give the best we can for the least we can. That's our shoe principle. In every kind and grade prices lean toward you coaxingly. Great values have always been given you, but it remains for these prices to score a point of actual cheapness heretofore untouched.

And you must be thoroughly satisfied with what you buy. We insist on you being properly fitted and perfectly suited. If your shoes do not give satisfaction—do not wear as they ought—RETURN THEM to our Information Bureau, and tell the young lady your story. It will be thankfully heard, for it's just such knowledge we're anxious to have. And there'll be no charge to you for a new pair.

through the lines with several wagon oads of goods to sell my men, pretending that he could get valuable information for the government here in Washington. He came with two wagon oads of military goods, which my men bought from him. I gave him a permit to pass unmolested to Washington and bring me another load of goods, which he did. The only thing that he could tell the authorities on his return was day at the home of Mr. James P. that he saw me and a lot of my men on a certain day at a certain place. As we had no fixed place to stay, he could tell just as much about a wild goose or a crow that he saw flying in Virginia as he could tell about us. He also gave me some valuable information about the position of the troops about Washington, and I made several successful raids on the strength of the information. Worsely was simply playing for all the money he could make out of both sides. "The authorities at Washington got tired furnishing me with military supplies and refused another permit to Worsely. So he informed on certain merchants in Washington and Baltimore, from whom he had bought the goods, and had them arrested and put in prison. One of these was Hamilton Easter, of Baltimore. "I shall write another letter to congress exposing this man. I didn't need any commissary or quartermaster, as long as Worsely was furnishing my supplies, but as my men paid him for the goods, and I have no doubt he was also paid by the government, I think he got enough out of it. I knew perfectly well what he came for, but was not afraid of his spying. Among the things he brought me was some very fine gray cloth, from which my Confederate uniform was made. That uniform is now in the National Museum, near that of General Grant. If they are going to put Worsely's widow on the pension rolls of the United States, I consider that I am equally entitled to

WILLING EXILES.

The English and Americans Are Important Factors in Paris Life. From the London Mail.

"On and after this date," wrote Naoleon I to Fuche, "see that the English are expelled from Paris." Such an edict would seem a very large order at the present day, but it was by no means a small one in Napoleon's time. What would the Paris of today be without its English colony? From Sir Richard Monson, our ambassador, to the pale boy who files the English journals at Neal's library, in the Rue Castiglione, the english are very important factors in Parisian life There has been an English colony in the French capital for many centuries: yet one might search in vain for a similar French colony in London. The Leicester and Soho-square districts, although owning to a large French popuation, possess hardly a trace of the and it is not a fifth the size. To speak broadly, Paris has within its walled borders a little London of many thousand persons-not squalld and impoverished, but boasting splendid mansions, fine shops, hotels churches, hospitals and libraries, and all these to such an extent that it is difficult to believe one is not in the British capital itself.

The inhabitants of this colony might roughly be catalogued as follows: Retired people and gentlefolk who have seen better days; those who desire to have their children educated in the language, business people, authors, artists, students, journalists and professional men; those who have the best of private reasons for living out of England, and cranks, which term includes certain individuals who for some cause or other have developed a feeling of hatred for the land of their birth.

Nearly all are exiles of their own ac-

On Sunday the clite of the English colony turns out to the Church of the Embassy in the Rue d'Aguesseau. Here L. for a number of years Dr. Naves, who was formerly a Leytonstone incumbent has now preached, and here a collection bag goes regularly round, and is as regularly returned in a condition of comparative emptiness. For your Englishman of the English colony is either in a condition to help largely support the church and does, or else ves nothing at all. One thing must be said about the English and Americans who go to Paris. They support the city. Without their patronage there is scarcely s big shop on the boulevards that would not close its doors within a few months.
