THIS AND THAT.

In a recent letter from Consul O. F. I never knew a finer June in New York state. The German warship Cormorant left this morning. Germany has now here the Irene, Kaiserine Auguste and Kalser, but all seem friendly, and all foreigners represented here by warships so declare. Some days ago Aguinaldo asked me to secure permission? rom Admiral Dewey to have transport come from Manila under Red Cross flag, to take wounded Spanish soldiers to better hospitals in Manila. The admiral agreed, and this morning two tugs, each with large transports in tow, came down, and about 350 wounded Spanish soldiers will be sent from the rebel hospitals to Manila. Aguinaldo is very kind to prisoners. I have just received letters from a friend in Manila descriptive of ships, forts, food, conditions, etc. The admiral pronounces them invaluable. One notifies me that the governor general has promised an Italian $25,000 if he will kill Aguinaldo. I go in an hour to inform Aguinaldo, and to protect him if I can. I go all over Cavite alone and unarmed; have not carried my revolver at all. This afternoon I went through the hospitals, and all seemed to be doing quite well. The Spanish forces in Manila are trying to strengthen the old city walls by piles of sand bags, but it is useless. SUNDAY MURDER IN DUNMORE BOROUGH

JOE KELLER RIDDLES PETER MAYER'S BODY.

Mayer was About to Make Good His Threat to "Fix" Keller When the Latter Shot to Kill-He Surrendered Himself to the Borough Authorities and Is Now In Jail-Keller Had Shot Some of Mayer's Pigeons, which Led to Quarrels, Threats and Killing.

Joseph Keller shot and instantly killed Peter Mayer yesterday afternoon on the Eric and Wyoming railroad tracks a short distance above the Dunmore depot.

They had quarreled earlier in the day over Keller's action in shooting some of Mayer's pigeons which had fed in Keller's garden. Mayer threatened to "do" Keller, and later in the day followed him and attempted to assault him with iron knuckles.

It was then that the shooting occurred. Keller fired several bullets into Mayer's body. He surrendered himself to the Dunmore police and is in the county jail. He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Krotzer at o'clock last night and was committed.

In the absence of Coroner Longstreet and his deputy, Dr. E. M. Pennypacker, from the city, a coroner's jury was impanneled by Justice of the Peace

Mayer was 24 years old, a slater by occupation and the son of Sebastian Mayer, of Maple street, South Side. He lived with A. P. Bender, sometimes called "Pa" Bender, on Luke street. The house is situated in an extreme corner of the Tenth ward, east of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad tracks. The place has been a frequent source of com-plaint to Burgess Daniel Powell, of Dunmore, who has been unable to act against it on account of the location of the house just inside the city line, where Sunday drinking bouts and carousals have been of frequent occurrence.

ABOUT TO BE MARRIED.

Mayer did little at his trade and seemed to have no occupation beyond that which required a man's presence about the house. He was considered one of the family, and on Friday this week was to marry Bender's daughter, "Venie," according to a statement made yesterday by the latter, who cems to be the one chiefly concerned about Mayer's violent death. Keller is 25 years old and married He has no children. He and Mrs. Keller resided with the latter's father. Byron Davis, on Kirtz street. The latter thoroughfare is in Dunmore borough, skirts the bluff overlooking the Delaware, Lackawanna and Erie and Wyoming Valley railroad tracks and runs at right angles to Luke street, on which the Bender house is situated.

The Davis and Bender properties are about equally distant from the intersection of the two streets. The rear yards run together, although several acant lots lie about the intersection made by the two thoroughfares. was this proximity which led to the shooting, although there was no corresponding affinity in the social standing of the two principals to the affair, interior and exterior appearances of the houses and from he personality of the friends of the

In the rear of the Davis home is garden in which Keller has taken considerable pride. His efforts to make things grow were handicapped, how-ever, by a flock of pigeons owned by Bender and Mayer. The pigeons dug up much of the two plantings of seed which Keller had sown, and have re cently been scratching among the third planting. Last Thursday Keller shot four of the birds. He and Mayer had angry words over the matter.

THE MEN QUARRELED.

Yesterday morning Keller fired into the garden and killed two of the pigcons. Mayer came to the side of the Davis house and renewed the quarrel with Keller, who could be heard but not seen behind the blinds of a second-story window. Mayer wanted Keller to come down into the lot and fight. Keller's non-appearance led Mayer to threaten to "do" the man inside. He said he would "fix" him. Charles Lown, a Dunmore special officer, whose home is near by, told Mayer to go home: Lown said there should be no fighting. The Bender girl finally induced Mayer to return to the house. The neighbors talked of the incident and their attention was naturally attracted to Keller when he emerged from the house soon after 2 o'clock. He walked down Kirtz street, speaking a word to several neighbors, and continued his way to the path which leads down the high bank to the Eric and Wyoming tracks. He had hardly got fairly on the roadbed and trestle when someone remarked that Mayer was passing behind the houses and headed across the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western tracks, which pass beneath the trestle.

In the group of watchers were Special Officer Lown, Harvey Swingle and Lemuel Jones. All expected trouble when Keller and Mayer met. Keller crossed the trestle and met Frank Skinner, an Eric and Wyoming section boss. The latter knew of the bad blood between Keller and Mayer and told Keller he had better return home as Mayer was crossing the tracks below them and would meet Keller farther on. Keller remarked significantly that he would take care of himself and continued toward the Erie and Wyoming depot. Skinner remained at the trestle and saw, as did the watchers on the street above, what followed. Another who saw the shooting was J. E. Shuler, a butcher, who was walking on the tracks and saw Mayer coming up the QUARREL RENEWED. Mayer traversed a path leading up to the Erie tracks and reached the top in time to see Keller several rods ahead of him. Mayer overtook Keller near the first switch leading to the railroad yard and round-house. Then followed much gesticulation and evident harsh words.

Finally it appeared as though Keller was trying to hurry away from Mayer and that the latter was determined on keeping the other company. Between at Kingston and living in Plymouth. second and third switch they halted. Keller pushing his companion away. The latter again approached and struck Keller, who struck back and gave Mayer a more forcible shove.

Mayer drew something from his pocket. It was clinched in his hand as way from being crushed to death. The he again started for Keller. It was trip ran over him. He was brought to then that Keller whipped out his re- the Moses Taylor hospital.

volver and began to shoot. Mayer's hand was encased in iron knuckles, which were later found lying near his body. At the first shot Mayer halted a sec ond as if hit, but whether this is so or not will never be determined as at least two other shots in quick succes sion were heard from Keller's revolver and Mayer toppled over the high embankment. His body rolled along the cinders about fifteen feet and stopped.

Mayer was dead to a certainty. After he sliding stopped, the position of the body did not change until it was disturbed by onlookers.

WOUNDS INFLICTED

Keller used a 38-calibre revolver. One bullet struck the angle of the left jaw, another entered the body near the left arm pit and a third glanced the seventh rib, also on the left side. There was a bullet hole through the left bisceps and another in the forearm. Either of the wounds on the arm might have been made by the bullets which entered the arm pit and glanced the seventh rib; or the wound on the forearm might have been caused by the bullet which struck the jaw.

The men who saw the shooting agree that there were three shots, but they disagree, as is usual in the excitement of such cases, as to the number of shots above that number.

Officer Lown started for the scene of the shooting. He met Keller returning near the trestle. Keller said he was going home and would give himself up to the Dunmore police. He did go home, where he reloaded his revolver and, accompanied by his wife and Lown, went to his father's house on Mill street. There Mrs. Keller remained while Keller was in the custody of Policeman Fritz Beaver, to whom the tery, Father Dembinski performing the revolver was surrendered; Lown and services. Policeman Jacob Pletcher, went to the Methodist church. Burgess Danie! Powell was summoned from within and directed that Keller be locked up.

KELLER'S STATEMENT.

Keller was interviewed in the lock-up by a Tribune reporter. "I shot in self-defense," said Keller when asked what had prompted him to commit the deed. He said he had "license" to carry a revolver. When asked what he meant by that he said the weapon was not concealed, that he carried it in a belt, although it was hidden by his coat. The weapon is a good one. It is a 5-shot, hammerless

Smith & Wesson. Keller did not seem at all worried or concerned over his situation. He looked and acted like a man who had done something about which people would talk, but which he had been justified in doing.

Keller was one of the men with Ruthen on the night of the riot in Dunmore, when Special Officer Mink was shot. Keller received a bullet in the leg. He left the city soon after the affair and was absent about Justice of the Peace Krotzer, in the absence of the coroner, gave permission to remove Mayer's body to the Bender home. It was taken there in an undertaker's uncovered wagon. The justice impanneled the following jury James O. Masters, Henry Koch, Alonzo Price, P. C. Langan, George Kunz and A. J. Winebrake. The jury will meet in Justice of the Peace Krotzer's office this evening.

Coroner Longstreet will go to Bender's house this forenoon at 10 o'clock to hold a post mortem examination. He informed a Tribune reporter last night he would ignore the jury emnaneled by 'Squire Krotzer.

MEETING OF GRAND DIRECTORS Twenty-four New Councils of the Y.

Attorney M. J. Donahoe came home Saturday from Atlantic City, where the grand directors of Pennsylvania Jurisdiction of the Young Men's institute were in session four days. Mr. Donahoe is president of the directors.

In addition to the routine business of auditing the books of the secretary and treasurer, negotiations were made with the railroad companies for trunk line rates for the delegates to the convention at Altoona on Aug. 16. The rates secured were as follows: Each delegate on leaving will purchase at his home station a ticket one way to Altoona and pay full fare. He will receive from the agent a certificate for which, upon presentation at Altoona, he will receive a ticket home for one-third the regular fare. The reports of officers showed that within a year twenty-four new councils have been organized, making the total eighty-four with a membership of 8,000. The Pennsylvania jurisdiction embraces this state, New York, New Jersey, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

He boarded at Frank Bratchertz's house, 105 Elm street. Ten days ago he was so sick from dysen tery that he had to quit work, and he also had to quit his boarding house and go to the hospital.

A search through his effects after he had been taken away in the ambu-lance disclosed the aforesaid amount in cash rolled up in a red handkerchief. When he died, the boarding boss engaged Undertaker Frank Bonin to go to the hospital after the body. A grave was bought in the German cemetery at Minooka, and the funeral was arranged for 9 o'clock Saturday morning. Sobiski had no relatives in this country except a cousin who works for Rev. Father Dembinski, pastor of St. Mary's Polish church. The cousin went to claim the body, but he was refused it. He hired Undertaker E. H. Jordan to remove it from Gratchertz's, but the latter's wife began hostilties. Mayor Bailey was communicated with. He instructed Chief Gurrell to attend to the matter, and the chief sent Mounted Officer Dyer to the house. The officer warded off the belligerents while Undertaker Jordan took charge of the remains and interred them in the afternoon in the Polish Catholic ceme-

LICENSE TWO YEARS OLD.

Marriage Ceremony Was Deferred

Until Saturday. An Italian couple from Petersburg went to Alderman Howe's office Saturday to be married and presented a marriage license obtained nearly two years ago, dated Aug. 17, 1895. The groom's name is Nicola Giordani, and the bride's Josephine Celeberti. The alderman asked them the reason for delaying so long, and they told him the Italian consul sent the license to the old country to have a record made, and it was not returned until short while ago. No more questions were asked. They were united, and went forth to rejoice.
