

NEW CAMP SITE HAS BEEN CHOSEN

FIRST DIVISION TO BE MOVED AT ONCE

Thirteenth Will Begin to Move the Latter Part of the Week—New Camp Will Be Located Near Bull Run on the Occoquan Creek.

Special to The Tribune.

Camp Alger, Dunn Loring, Va., Aug. 7.—The long expected has happened. Thoroughfare Gap, thirty-three miles from here and located near Bull Run on the Occoquan creek, has been selected by Major General G. H. Rorer for the new camping ground for the first division, second army corps.

The general health of the Thirteenth is showing a steady improvement. This morning only seven new cases were reported, most of which are only very slight, and thirteen were discharged and returned to their companies for duty.

Private Frank McClain, of B, was removed to first division hospital on account of a sprained ankle, which accident he sustained last night while doing provost duty at the depot. He accidentally slipped and fell, wrenching the muscles of the right ankle. The ambulance was sent for him, and after examination by Doctors Keller and Blanchard he was removed to the division hospital.

Lieutenant Decker, of F, was officer of the day yesterday. Lieutenant Varcoe, of E, officer of the guard; sergeant, C. P. Deemer, of E; corporals, Northrop, of G; Brown, of H, and Thomas Williams, of F.

Yesterday Major Walter Wood acted in a few cases of summary court-martial. Slight fines and short imprisonments were meted out.

Friday afternoon the boys of the Thirteenth were sorry to bid farewell to the two best war correspondents of the Second army corps—T. J. Duffy, of The Tribune, and John H. Blackwood, of The Truth.

Companies C and D, who are doing provost duty at Dunn Loring and Merfield, respectively, were temporarily relieved by the other companies so that they might return to camp for the purpose of being paid off.

Some apprehension was caused by the threats of many members of the Sixth Pennsylvania and of the Third Virginia to the effect that when pay day came around they would make things lively and even make a break for home.

The movement of troops to Manassas still continues, and at the present writing the Second army corps is represented there by eight regiments which are pitched on ground made many times historic by the valor of a former generation.

The new band instruments were received by Chief Musician Miles yesterday afternoon, and were used for the first time at guard mount and dress parade. They surely are "a thing of beauty," and attracted much attention.

The whole quota consists of eighteen pieces, brass and wood. The soldiers are very well pleased and take no small amount of pride in the new instruments. In honor of the occasion, a concert was given in front of headquarters. Later in the evening Musician Miles and ten men, accompanied by Chaplain Stahl, drove to Falls Church where they played at a church festival, the people showing the keenest appreciation of the good work done by the soldier band.

Strong, steady nerves Are needed for success Everywhere. Nerves Depend simply, solely, Upon the blood. Pure, rich, nourishing Blood feeds the nerves And makes them strong. The great nerve tonic is Hood's Sarsaparilla, Because it makes The blood rich and Pure, giving it power To feed the nerves.

March, The Crimson Plush....Alexander Overture, Stradella....Plotow Selection, The Wizard of the Nile. Trombone Solo, The Message....Brooks Mr. John Tarr.

Patrol, The Blue and the Grey....Delby Grand Selection, Lohengrin....Wagner Hot Stuff (a negro eddity)....Bernard Medley, A Cluster of Benches....Boys March, At a Georgia Camp Meeting, Miles "Star Spangled Banner."

The men were the recipients of many neat compliments and expressions of thanks on the part of the church people and were treated in royal style. Chaplain Stahl, also, by his presence, helped to make the trip all the more enjoyable, and the boys of the band are desirous of more such excursions with him.

Several important orders from a medical standpoint, and intended to improve the sanitary conditions of camp and to protect the men, have been published recently from brigade headquarters. The first requires that company commanders and the surgeons shall exercise due care and vigilance in inspecting the food. The second is still more directly beneficial to the men. It commands medical officers to thoroughly examine the men, to note the tion as Christianity takes possession of us, and assisting us to grow up into his founder that we become channels to convey this Divine energy to others. Christianity is powerless only as it acts upon the heart.

Second—Christianity as it influences life may become irresistible. "Jesus I know and Paul I know," was the response of the tempter to these exhortations. What a history of Divine triumph and demoralized defeat these words contain! In all probability the reference is to the temptations in the wilderness and Judea when Jesus had carried on his work of beneficence. Again and again during His ministry had the demons declared that Jesus was the Christ of God. Not only had they invariably succumbed to His authority and obeyed His behest, but His life was invulnerable to evil. The result of the temptations in the wilderness, when three inducements to wrong were offered Him, was decisive and final. Then the devil leaveth Him; and leonard angels came and ministered unto Him.

FRIEND OF SINNERS. In all history His life stands forth, majestic and solitary, as the grand triumph of holiness over sin. "He was tempted in all points, like as we are, yet without sin." In Pilate's court He turned upon the evil spirits, and said: "Which of you convinceth Me of sin?" Here was one who had grown up in a city notorious for its wickedness and sin, and in whom had been in contact and intercourse with people of the lowest social order, and was known as the "Friend of publicans and sinners," who received the trait and obloquy of the religious authorities of the land, and had for followers a few illiterate men from Galilee, giving the world a life utterly unattainable by the ordinary man.

This life, which was Christianity incarnate, was the power of God. Christianity has reached its highest possibility in the life of Christ. He is the Christ, which is Christianity, was irresistible. His utterances went forth with irresistible authority, and His deeds were wrought with irresistible power. "This life was the Gospel which the apostles offered men. 'We preach Christ.' In proportion as His followers approach Him in spirit and character they become powerful. Here in Ephesus an important center of idol worship, under the very shadow of goddess Diana, was one very much like the Christ, who had struck terror into the kingdom of darkness, and who was well known to the evil spirits. "Paul I know," this demon was afraid of Paul. What wonder, alive to the consecrated and holy life he gave to God and to men! He was so courageous and heroic that He feared nothing but sin.

MUST FOLLOW CHRIST. Brother man, in what measure does Christianity influence your life? In proportion to that you are a Christian power in the world. You may use in the incarnation of sacred love, and invoke to you all the powers of the heavens, but if your life is not permeated with Christian influence, and your character fashioned after that of Christ, it is all in vain. To live Christ that devil may have reason to know you." Paul I know.

Third—Christianity as represented by unregenerate life is a failure. "But who are ye?" These sons of Sevea came from a religious stock, and held one of the highest positions in the national church. He was a chief priest; but 'tis children had no higher estimate of religion than the heathen, and he had one that in a very unquestionable way, these seven brothers had joined the strolling Jews, who went from place to place professing to heal diseases by magic. They lived by imposing upon the credulity of the ignorant and superstitious. These men, seeing Paul's success, used to name the name of Christ, and had a great effect. They were not interested in the Gospel which Paul preached; nor had they sympathy with the new religious movement; they were interested in power, which, if they could use it, might be means of immense gain to them. So they said: "We will adore you, Jesus, whom Paul preacheth." And the evil spirit answered: "I said Jesus I know and Paul I know, but who are ye?" And the man in whom the evil spirit was leaping on them, and crying out, "I know you," against them, so that they fled out of that house taken and wounded." The attempt was a disastrous failure.

DECLINE OF RELIGION. Christianity is a dead letter and miserable failure in the hands of unregenerate men. It was so in that age; it is so in this. Much is said these days about the decline of religion in this land. I fear there is some truth in the charge, that is, at least, less religious fervor and enthusiasm in church life than was manifested in it twenty-five years ago. Since those days religion has had but a superficial, the rapid growth of sacerdotalism in the land within the last quarter of a century may have affected the robustness of the church, and weakened its convictions and energies. But one comfort remains: Christianity has not changed. There may be less of it in the life of the people, but the demonstrative in religious character, but as a Divine evangel given for the regeneration of men, and the salvation of the world, it was never inferior, never inferior. Though it was an ignominious failure in the hands of these itinerant Jews; in the life and ministry of the apostle Paul, it was a grand success.

This is true in regard to the church today. In our churches I fear there are many nominal Christians, in whose life Christianity is a dead letter. The church should be a sanctified medium through which the Divine influence might pass to others. Differences, half-heartedness and insincerity in religious duties and service utterly unfit us for this. Life must be changed to the full with the Spirit, before it can convey the Divine influence to others. It is men like the apostle Paul, who give up everything for Christ, and are prepared to sacrifice life itself, if need be, in His interest, who count all things but loss in comparison with him, these are the men to put sin to shame and make demoralized tremble.

PAUL THE GREATEST MAN. Paul was the greatest man Ephesus had ever seen. The work which he commenced in that city went on and on, until Diana and all the pagan gods disappeared from the land, and the face of Europe was completely changed. We are indebted to the apostle Paul for our Christianity; and when it is given men of his character, reverence for his principles and enforce its truth, it is the most powerful in the world. But the caricature of it as given by these strolling Jews only brings it into contempt. It does not make demons laugh. "Jesus I know and Paul I know, but who are ye?"

SABBATH NEWS NOTES. No evening service was held yesterday at St. David's Episcopal church, and none will be held during the present month. The pulpit of the Hampton Street Methodist church was supplied at both services yesterday by Rev. Joseph Madison. Communion was administered at the evening service yesterday at the Scranton Street Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. S. F. Matthews.

Lionel Edward Howell, of the Jackson Street Baptist church, spoke at both the regular services at the Sumner Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday. Rev. J. H. Sweet, pastor of the Simpson Street Methodist church, occupied his pulpit as usual yesterday at both services, having returned from his vacation.

Rev. S. E. Matthews, pastor of the Scranton Street Baptist church, preached at the regular morning service yesterday at the Washburn Street Presbyterian church.

Rev. J. P. Moffitt, pastor of the Washburn Street Presbyterian church, occupied the pulpit of the Scranton Street Baptist church at yesterday morning's regular service.

Communion services were held yesterday at the regular morning services of the Scranton Street Baptist church. The pastor, Rev. Hugh Davies, officiated.

Willard Truesdell, of Linden Street, Fainted During Services. Willard Truesdell, of 810 Linden street, was overcome with an attack of vertigo at the services in the First Presbyterian church last evening, and the ambulance was summoned and it conveyed him to the Moses Taylor hospital.

After he was brought there he got around pretty well and he will be able to leave for home today, probably. He is 76 years old and has been employed as a watchman for the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company for a number of years.

DR. M'DERMOTT SPOKE. He Filled the Pulpit of the Elm Park Church Yesterday—Part of His Eloquent Discourse.

Rev. Dr. H. C. McDermott, of Oneonta, formerly presiding elder of the Oneonta district, occupied the pulpit at Elm Park church yesterday. An innovation in the music was a chorister in the person of John T. Watkins, who conducted the congregational singing and rendered a magnificent bass solo. Mrs. P. P. Price presided admirably at the organ during the latter part of the service and played an effective postlude.

DR. M'DERMOTT SPOKE. He Filled the Pulpit of the Elm Park Church Yesterday—Part of His Eloquent Discourse.

Rev. Dr. H. C. McDermott, of Oneonta, formerly presiding elder of the Oneonta district, occupied the pulpit at Elm Park church yesterday. An innovation in the music was a chorister in the person of John T. Watkins, who conducted the congregational singing and rendered a magnificent bass solo.

Mrs. P. P. Price presided admirably at the organ during the latter part of the service and played an effective postlude. Dr. McDermott preached a brilliant and stirring sermon appropriate to the present day crisis, from the text, Ps. 44:3: "For they got not the land in possession by their own sword, neither did their own right arm save them; but thy right hand and thine arm and the light of thy countenance, because thou hadst a favor unto them."

It seems that on the eve of a peace, after a great victory such as has attended our army and navy, it is a favorable time to contemplate the direct and special proofs of God's intervention in our behalf. Has not God's favor been manifested as well through our history as in this instance? "God's providential goodness is shown in the great country he has given. We are now at war with Spain. You could not see eighteen Spaniards in the United States and have room to spare. The founders of Massachusetts once solemnly declared it was improbable that civilization would ever extend beyond Newtow, now a suburb of Boston. But it has had an empire 2,999 miles long and 1,600 in breadth, where is room enough not only for the seventy millions of people now here but for many times that number. There is no need to slam the door in the faces of those who would come to us from across the water and accept American institutions and law, but there is no room for socialists and anarchists who would come to tear down and destroy what our fathers have built.

"We can see the hand of God in the revolution that swept over this continent, Washington and his advisers, it is said, found much in the Greek and Roman laws to form a basis of our constitution. Many of our fundamental principles antedate the classic regime and go back to the time of the law-givers of the old Testament.

"We are too apt to speak much of the great forces of nature and in human life and attribute our successes to these instead of to God, who sitteth behind the scenes and controls the mysterious powers. It was not the blind work of ethical laws that sent a race full of activity, energy and thrift to these shores.

Now is a greater contest than all that preceded it, and the contest of Christianity with secularism, America has a spiritual mission which is not the development of fighting qualities of armies, nor the acquisition of new territory, nor the enrichment of corporations or people, but as indicated by our history, it is to redeem humanity, to develop the principles of Jesus in the highest type of men.

There is no new pathway to heaven. The way of the cross is old, but let us keep fast to that old path as a nation and we shall find the favor of God."

AMATEUR BASE BALL. The patched up nine, which took the place of the Minooka team yesterday, defeated the Sunsets by the score of 11 to 5. The feature of the contest was Hayes' twirling and batting, while fielding honors were about even. The home team outplayed the visitors. Only three hits were secured off Hayes.

The Minooka club challenges the Lackawanna for Aug. 14, on Minooka grounds. P. J. Phillips, captain. The Crescents defeated the West Side Browns yesterday on the Browns' grounds by the score of 13 to 6. The features of the game were the double-hand one-handed plays of Moran. Not one of his decisions was protested against.

WALK CRUST. When our baby boy was three months old, he had the milk crust very badly on his head, so that all the hair came out, and itched so bad, he made it bleed by scratching it. I got a cake of CUTICURA SOAP and a box of CUTICURA Ointment, applied the CUTICURA and put a thin cap on his head, and before I had used half a box it was entirely cured, and his hair commenced to grow out nicely. Feb. 24, '98. Mrs. H. P. HOLMES, Ashland, Or.

CUTICURA Resolves upon with irresistible force to soothe, cure, and all better the skin of children. To know that a single application will afford instant relief, and that it is a safe and sure cure for the most itching and disgusting of skin and scalp diseases, is a great blessing. It is a sure cure for Itch, Eczema, Scald Head, Ringworm, and all other skin diseases. It is a sure cure for all itching and burning of the skin, and a sure cure for all itching and burning of the scalp. It is a sure cure for all itching and burning of the face, and a sure cure for all itching and burning of the neck. It is a sure cure for all itching and burning of the arms, and a sure cure for all itching and burning of the legs. It is a sure cure for all itching and burning of the feet, and a sure cure for all itching and burning of the hands. It is a sure cure for all itching and burning of the body, and a sure cure for all itching and burning of the soul.
