w Jersey Stragglers Cause Trouble by Attempting to Force the Thirteenth's Lines-General Butler Issues Stringent Orders in Reference to the Disgraced Third Virginia-Extra Care Being Taken to Keep the Health of the Camp Good.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Camp Alger, Dunn Loring, Aug. 10 .-The camp is literally a deluge this morning. For the past forty-eight hours it has been raining almost continually, and today everything is flooded, and the roads, to a certain extent, impassible. This condition of affairs makes life quite uneventful and uninteresting for all, excepting those who in rain or shine must be out on provost duty. The chief work consists in drying tents, blankets, clothes and

The drenching rains which for two days have more than relieved the severe drought for which this region had become notorious, left nothing untouched, and many of the boys are going around today in spite of them-selves imitating the philosophy of "Sockless Jerry Simpson." Nor is the end yet. The elements are still disturbed and the lowering clouds are assuming threatening proportions. This is a land of extremes-it either rains to a finish, or shines till there is no more heat left.

The following message has been recrived from the office of the superintendent of the Southern Express company, and communicated to all captains of the regiments stationed here:

I am instructed by our traffic manager, Mr. Charles L. Loop, to advise you that the Southern Express company will reduce 25 per cent, from the rates herctofore in effect for the transportation of corpses of soldiers who may lose their lives in active service during the present term of enlistment for the war with

The following named express companies have concurred in this reduction: Ad-nms express, American express, United States express, Pacific express and Wells-

Mr. Loop desires that this reduction be especially drawn to the attention of the chaplains of regiments, as it is probable that this will enable friends or relatives of many soldiers to return their bodies to their homes, when they could not otherwise afford to do so.

J. P. Hooladay, Asst. Supt. ,

This is one of the doubtful offers of which very few of the boys are anxious to take advantage right away.

JERSEYITES CAUSE TROUBLE, Last night at nine o'clock Corporal Owen Hughes, of F, who was corporal of the relief then on duty had an exciting time at the guard house of the Thirteenth. Five belated Jerseyites, one private and three corporals came along in a carriage. The road which they took is a closed one and no wagons are allowed through it into the boundaries of the Thirteenth's camp unless the driver has a pass. This essential was missing in this case and consequently the Jerseyltes had the option of getting out and walking from there home. This they refused to do and insisted on getting the wagon through.

The guard was called out just in time to preent trouble as the offending soldiers attempted not only to force the lines but also to assault the guard and the corporal. The belligerent Jersey men were quickly brought to their senses. The private was brought to the guard house and the four noncome, were requested to give the name of their company and regiment.

Charges will be preferred aginst them. The general health of the Thirteenth ctill continues to improve and very few were reported sick this morning, and these cases were of the ordinary

A Wilkea-Barre man has received an interesting letter from one of the ob-servant members of the Ninth regiment who says, among other things; "* " * who says, among other things: As you say, there is more sickness here, especially in the Ninth, than there should be, caused by a combination of circum-stances. Then the location of our ground, which the old timers tell us is the worst in the clut timers tell us is the worst in the Park. It lies on a slope with a sert of a flat at the bot-tom. The mules, about 129 in number, are located on top of the slope and you can imagine what runs down our streets when it rains, and we have had hard showers every day, except Tuesday, for the past two weeks. They are now trying to locate us better. Our tents have all been in one long row; that is, each company separate, of course, but on Tuesday they moved one-half of the tents and brought them up out of the low ground and put them opposite the others. We cleaned the street up very nicely, dug deep ditches the full length of the streets in front and back of our tents, also cross ditches, and now that we are nicely located we have been notified that on Monday we are to move out into an open field where we can have the broiling sun all of the time. I can imagine that that will be healthy, don't you?" of the streets in front and back of our
