WATER FOR ENTIRE VALLEY.

Carbondale's Supply Good for Three Years Without a Drop of Rain.

The work of clearing Brownell's swamp preparatory to the construction of another huge reservoir is steadily progressing. Many men and teams have been engaged there all summer and the work yet to be done will keep thera busy until cold weather sets in In the spring the erection of a dam across No. 3 gorge will be commenced The masonry will be fifty feet high and several hundred feet long. While not large the dam, owing to the favorable topography of the territory, will flood an immense area-about 100 acres. No. 4 reservoir contains 360,000,000 gallons and the new one will hold 700,-000,000. In these two reservoirs enough water may be stored to last Carbondale three years without a single drop of rain and with No. 7 pond, Stillwater dam-nearly three miles long-Crystal and Newton lakes and Mountain pond to draw from the entire Lackawanna valley could be supplied with water in case of a drought such as was experienced three years ago when water trains were run from this city.

The water of the lakes mentioned reach this city through the Fallbrook company's system which is also being improved by the construction of a pipe line nearer the source of supply.

The result of these changes ought to be cheaper water for power purposes With inexhaustible quantity and ample elevation water motors should become popular.

New York, Aug. 30 .- The bears attempted to continue their campaign against prices again today. Their efforts were at one time attended with much success. But before the day's session had ended they found themselves under the pressure of advancing prices and they were obliged themselves to contribute to the advance by buying to cover short contracts. During the first hour acute depression developed in the coalers on account of the report from Philadelphia that tidewater prices for anthracite had been cut 25 cents, and that the companies had abandoned the effort to control the trade this season. Losses in the group extended to 3% per cent., and, coupled with weakness in some of the spec-ialties broke the whole market to prices materially below last night's level.

There was evidence of powerful support in many stocks at a level slightly below yesterday's prices, and there was large general buying also invited by the decline. Evidence of this influenced the recovery. Buying for London ac-count, which held a number of the international favorites firm nearly all day, also formed an effective point of resistance. They were authoritative denials late in the day on behalf of the officials of the coalers of any extra price.

The total sales were 453,600 shares. Furnished by WILLIAM LINN ALLEN & CO., stock brokers, Mears' building, tooms 705-706.
