play of force and arms, and after berating the tipstaff roundly proceeded to Alderman Millar's office and issued a warrant charging the tipstaff with assault and battery.

Detective Silverberg served the warrant in an informal way while the tipstaff was still on duty guarding the door of the grand jury room. The hearing was set for 5.30 o'clock, and at that hour the accused faced the accuser and four or five witnesses before Alderman Millar's bar of justice After the prosecutor had told his story, Uncle Jake protested that he did not strike the man, but simply touched him with his stick to attract his attention. The alderman, seeing that there was no malice in the act, dismissed the case after cautioning the tipstaff that there was a possibility of being too officious.

The prosecutor and defendant talked the matter over when the alderman got through, and before parting shook ernment, hands and made up.
