DENTISTS' MEETING.

And in case of

The monthly session of the Lackawanna and Luzerne county dentists was held Tuesday evening at Hotel Anthracite. Several interesting papers were read during the course of the evening. Among them being a very instructive and interesting discourse on "Ethology," which was treated by Dr. Baker, of this city. The paper was complimented by the persons present and was read in an admirable style. The next session of the association will be held in Wilkes-Barre.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

Through the miscarriage of yesterday's letter the readers were not acquainted with the fact that the building committee of the school board met and decided to rent the third floor of the M. M. Watt building on Church street. They secured the building for the moderate sum of thirty-five dollars a month with five dollars a month for janitor, will make the whole expense but forty dollars a month, which is a minimum of expense for such excollent quarters. The committee will have the room furnished immediately.

BURIAL YESTERDAY.

The funeral of the late Martin Hart was held yesterday morning. The ser-vices were held in St. Rose's church, where Rev. J. J. Griffin preached a fitting culogy to the memory of the deceased pioneer. The pall-bearers were Patrick Gilboy, Patrick Bell, Anthony Walsh, Patrick McDonald, John Kearney and Patrick Kearney. A large concourse of friends accompanied the remains to St. Rose's cemetery, where interment was made.

DEMING'S MINSTRLES.

Arthur Deming's minstrels will parade the principal streets of the city today to the intense delight of the small boy. They will play tonight at the Grand Opera house, and judging from the seats already marked off they will play to a packed house. Mr. Deming ts well known to Carbondale audiences and is a great favorite with them. He is supported by a very competent company of forty minstrels. The special-ties are exceedingly good.

OPENED LAST NIGHT.

The grand opening of Lebeck & Corin's new store on the corner of Salem avenue and Main street, took place last night. The Mozart band discoursed sweet music during the course of the evening. Their rendi-tion of an excellent programme was appreciated by a large number of persons in attendance at the opening. The store was beautifully illuminated with incandescent and arch lights and presented a very pretty scene.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS.

The school board has decided to rent the second floor of the Watt building on Church street to accommodate the overflow of pupils from the eighth grade at the Central building The building committee will have the room fitted up for occupancy by Oct. 1. The rent has been fixed at $35 a month. which is reasonable enough. A janitor at $5 a month will be hired to take care of the rooms, making the expense $4) per month, which is certainly ;

But there are other reasons why it should be worn on this finger: Because being a finger least used it may be least subject to be worn out, and because its distinct purpose is that it is to be a visible, lasting token of a solemn convenant which never must be forgotten. It has been suggested, also, that the form, being round and without end, imports that mutual love

He had not only cleaned the bones of his master, but he had beaten and rubbed them into a fine meal. The night before the feast he had secretly visited the house in which were stored the great calabashes of poi provided for the refreshment of the chiefs. Into this poi he stirred the meal to which the aged king had been reduced. The next morning the remains of Kualii found their resting place in the bodies of those who had gathered to do him honor, and were beyond the reach of hostility and vendetta. The chiefs praised the ingenuity of the kabu and honored his fidelity. His story has been handed down as the type of the form the ring is round, the symbol of eternity, implying that our regard shall be without end. Why is this golden circlet worn on the third finger of the left hand? Because among the ancients it was thought that there was a vein in that finger that came directly from the heart, and the cus-

Disease is a great and treacherous ocean. Man ever stands upon its shore and gazes out over its calm surface without a thought of danger. STORY OF THE WEDDING RING. Around It Cluster Many Curious Cer-

HAWAIIAN BURIALS.

Precautions to Preserve the Bones of Chiefs from Vengeance After Death. Some students of Hawaiian customs declare that the people of the islands never were cannibals. The popular idea that these new Americans have been nourished on their friends and relatives arose probably in a misapprehension of what happened to Captain Cook after he was killed at Kealake-

kua. The honorable sepulture reserved for chiefs and men of note may have caused the first voyagers about the islands to think that they had found proof of the practice, which really the Hawalians are said to have viewed with as much horror as more civilized races. When a chief died it became the duty of his trusty kahus, confidential advisers in life and sworn to the performance of the last rites, to remove the body and bury it secretly. That which the Hawaiians honored in burial was the permanent part of the body; the flesh was regarded as transitory and perishable, and therefore not worthy of sepulture. The flesh of the corpse was cut off from the bones and burned; the bones themselves were carefully cleaned, soaked in oil, and burnished red with turmeric. Tied up together in a snug parcel, they were leposited in some secret cave where it would be impossible for an enemy to find them, and thus have the chance of bringing dishonor upon the dead. Two centuries ago the great chief Kualii was the mol or king over the island of Oahu. In the ninety years of his life he fought with so many chiefs on his own and the other islands hat he was sure that his enemies would make great efforts to get possession of his bones and on them wreak some of the revenge which they had not been able to take on him when alive. To make sure that nothing of this sort should happen, he laid strict ommands on his most faithful kahu that he should bury his bones beyond

As soon as the breath had left the body of the aged chieftain the kahu hurried his precious treasure away into a secret place in the Oahu mountains to fulfil his solemn promise. Return-ing, he sent invitations to all the 435 to 455 N. Ninth St., Scronton, Pa neighbors and tributary chiefs to attend a feast in honor of the dead. From all the lands of Oahu they gathered and from surrounding islands, from Molokai up the wind, and from Kauai down the wind. When the games had been performed with all the ceremonies with which the Polynesians turn the days of mourning into a season of replcing, the feast was spread for the paid off the entire debt except a little more than a million dollars. We have removed the taxes from the lands trades, occupations, professions and building and loan associations. We have placed them upon corporations. Why? For the reason that the corporations obtain by their charters certain franchises and privileges from the state which individuals do not enjoy. We have collected from these corporations large amounts of money, and we have distributed that money principally among the common schools of the state.

These appropriations have increased until the last Republican legislature appropriated more money for the use of the common schools of the state than had been appropriated by the Democratic party in all the years that it controlled politics in this state, from 1835 to 1861.
