Jeffrey, MacDowell, Bloomfield-Zeissler and E. B. Perry, with all of whom he is personally acquainted and has "talked shop." Mr. Jervis has made the plans of great artists for study for years, and went to Europe to further this purpose in 1887, there making the acquaintance of the great artists who had not at that time visited this country.

NEW INTERLOCKING SYSTEM.

It is Being Installed by the Local Telephone Company.

The Central Pennsylvania Telephone and Supply company have made a vast improvement in the local service in the shape of the introduction of a new electric signal or interlocking system which as yet is only in use in Baltimore, Buffalo and Binghamton. It is only adapted to residence service and is constructed to have six subscribers on a line, practically giving each a private wire.

The interlocking contrivance consists in the fact that the telephone bell rings except for the subscriber wanted; neither can any other person on that line hear the conversation. The patron does not ring for the exchange, in fact there is no bell crank. He simply takes the trumpet from the hook, which drops the signal in the office. The operator connects with the person wanted, which immediately shuts off all connection with the other five subscribers on the line on each of whose telephones a small white disc drops showing that the wire is in use.

COLLECTIONS FOR MONTH.

An Increase of Almost One Hundred Thousand Dollars Over the Corresponding Month of Last Year—W. D. Evans Appointed.

The report of Revenue Collector Penman for the month of September shows the amount of revenue collected in this district during that month and also the collections during the same month of 1897. The report is:

	Sept. 1897.	Sept. 1898.
Licenses (penalties, etc.)	$11,004 30	$8,056 98
Beer stamps	21,956 50	28,214 57
Distillery stamps	2,456 98	2,288 28
Clear stamps	7,867 39	8,174 14
Tobacco stamps	3,711 35	7,117 79
Special tax stamps	1,448 24	2,110 20
Documentary stamps	1,632 91	1,632 91
Proprietary stamps	1,347 55	1,347 55
Totals	$47,531 48	$43,942 32

This shows that the operations of the war revenue bill have increased Uncle Sam's revenues in this district nearly $100,000 for the month of September.

W. D. Evans, of Carbondale, has been added to the force of deputy collectors, the increased work due to the war bill making an increase of working force necessary.

DID NOT PAY FOR THE MILK.

Milkman Barrett, of the South Side, Charged with False Pretenses.

M. J. Barrett, a South Side milk dealer, was brought before Alderman Kannon yesterday on a warrant sworn out by E. J. Foley, of Wimmers, alleging having obtained $66 worth of milk by false representation. Barrett was unable to furnish bail and was committed to await the action of the grand jury.

Foley charged that Barrett came to his house one day and set forth that he wanted to buy a certain quantity of milk and that Barrett, who represented that he owned his wagon, cans, horse and all the other appurtenances of a milk man's property. On the strength of this Foley shipped him milk to the amount of $65, but on looking for pay it was not forthcoming, and upon investigation he claims to have discovered that Barrett did not own any of these things at all.

TONS OF TOP COAL FELL ON HIM

Yet Patrick Giffney Escaped Death in a Double Form.

Patrick Giffney, of Dunmore, was buried beneath a heavy fall of rock and top coal in his work in the mines yesterday and was almost smothered as well as being injured to the extent of a broken leg, above the knee.

He was extricated with difficulty and no hope was entertained by his rescuers that he would be found alive. He was brought to the Lackawanna hospital. An examination by the doctors did not disclose any serious injuries, and he will probably be about in a few months. He is an unmarried man about 21 years old.

JIM JUDGE IS SORE ON REFEREE AUSTIN

ATTRIBUTES HIS DEFEAT TO UNFAIR TREATMENT.

Says That Austin Favored Smith and Points Out the Particular Manner in Which He Did It—Anxious for Another Go and Confident That He Can Win the Championship—Although Badly Punished Judge Was Not Permanently Hurt. Patronage Not Encouraging.

Jim Judge is sore in more ways than one as a result of the affair of Monday night. He is especially sore over what he terms rotten treatment at the hands of referee Sam Austin.

"I had to fight the champion of the world, fight him at his own game and fight the referee into the bargain," was Judge's own summing up of his defeat.

"With a fair man as referee I can defeat Smith, and in fighting with the clinches I can beat him. It is one man in the world I can whip it is that man Smith, and I propose to do it." Judge's complaint against Referee Austin is not altogether an ungrounded one, but there are few who will be rash enough to impute to the well-known referee dishonesty or mistakes through neglect or carelessness. According to Judge's story, Austin would never call "break" when Smith had the advantage until Smith had ceased punching. When Judge had the advantage he would call "break" before a blow could be delivered. Again, Judge calls attention to a fact which probably many did not particularly notice, namely, that during the early part of the fight Austin let the fighters separate after a clinch at their own leisure, but towards the last part of the fight when Judge was weak, Austin would rush in and pull them apart as quickly as he could, so that Smith—according to Judge himself—might get to his opponent and make the most out of his weakened condition.

ATTRIBUTES DEFEAT TO THEM.

To the average on-looker these things appear unimportant. Judge attributes his defeat to the well-known fact that Judge was permanently injured, but these were without foundation. After the fight he was removed to Purcell's bath, on Spruce street, and examined by Dr. O'Malley.

The doctor found him to be suffering from no serious hurts and assured his friends that he was all right. The prognosis proved correct. Judge's stomach bothered him until about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but after a sleep of some appropriate treatment this trouble was removed and last night at 11 o'clock he was feeling well enough to warrant the belief that he would be out in the morning ready to make another try for the belt.

His back, which was a point target for Smith's right in the clinches and which was as red as a raw beefsteak when Judge went to his dressing room, was not disclosed in the least last night, and Judge said there was no soreness there whatever.

These blows on the back did not do much damage at all, Judge says. It was the stomach blows and the slabs in the side that were the most effective. They took the steam out of his left arm, he says, and with that gone he was not capable of stopping Smith's rushes as during the earlier rounds of the fight.

MAY BE THE LAST.

It is a mooted question as to whether or not the American Sporting club will attempt any more big fights in this city. There is a growing sentiment against them and, furthermore, the patronage would hardly warrant another venture.

Not over half of the 35 seats were occupied at Monday night's bout, and a goodly part of the other half were occupied by deadheads.

SHE FOUND HER FRIENDS.

Young Woman Lodging at Emergency Hospital Made Happy.

The young Austrian woman who wandered about, not knowing where to go after reaching the city last Friday evening, was being taken yesterday to a family on Mulberry street, where Mrs. Duggan had obtained a position for her, and suddenly she found her friends.

A man living on South Washington avenue passed them and she recognized him. She stopped and spoke and after a five minutes conversation Mrs. Duggan's guardianship was no longer necessary. He took the young woman in charge and started to bring her to her relatives on the flats. The man's name is Oram, and he is related to Ignatius Oram, of South Washington street. It was hard to find her friends because no one could be found who understood her language.

The services were for the purpose of forming a bond with the other Baptist churches of the association and a recognition of the pastor, Rev. J. H. Bell. Rev. Mr. De Gruchy read from the Scriptures and made the announcements. Rev. Mr. Watkins said the opening prayer, and Rev. Mr. Harris the closing prayer and benediction. The sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Jepson from the text "Jesus Only." He exhorted the members of the little band of Shiloh church to place their trust and faith in the Savior, Abraham, Moses, Elias, Peter, John, and the illustrious Paul are great figures in church history, but the Savior is the towering summit of the mountain peak above all these, and the only one to meditate on with the living God.

Shiloh church has a small but growing congregation, and has made much progress since Rev. Mr. Bell took charge of it last April.

RIOTING AT DURVEA.

Sympathizers of the Rev. Father Hodur Gave a Demonstration of Their Feelings Monday Night. Three Sent to Jail.

There was a demonstration that almost reached the proportions of a riot in front of the Polish Catholic church at Durvea Sunday night and as a result of it Joseph Rollinsky, Stanislaus Roginski and Frank Morlock were committed to the county jail at Wilkes-Barre for a period of thirty days by a justice of the Peace Gilroy at a hearing last night.

Rev. Francis Hodur, of the Independent Polish church of South Scranton, whose excommunication from the Roman Catholic church was exclusively mentioned in The Tribune Monday night, gave a demonstration of their sympathy Monday night.

Forty Hours devotion were in progress in the Durvea Polish Catholic Church Monday and assisting at the services were the Rev. Father Polien, Catholic priests from various parts of the valley. Rev. Mr. Hodur's friends looked upon these priests as their enemies and after the services were over they made a very noisy demonstration and hurled stones at the church and those who were leaving it. Some little difficulty was found in putting the hoodlums to flight.

Yesterday warrants were issued for the ringleaders and last night the three above mentioned were summarily conveyed and sent to the county jail at Wilkes-Barre for thirty days each. They were defended by Attorney John M. Harris, of this city.

BAD DAY FOR RESPONDENT.

Many Illegal Votes Were Found at Yesterday's Hearing.

A large number of apparently defective votes were unearthed at yesterday's session of the election contest commissioners. There were seventy-three witnesses examined and the contestant's attorneys marked "bad" after the names of about thirty per cent.

THE OLD SCHOOL BOOKS.

Text Book Committee Will Meet To See What's to Be Done.

Tomorrow evening the text book committee will meet at No. 9 school building, on Ash street, to decide upon what text books to use in the old text books that have been and will be stored away. No. 9 school has been used for some time past as storage headquarters for the books that have been relegated to the shelf.

First these books were packed away in the buildings where they were used. That plan was not long in force, for they took up too much space, and then again were apt to be overhauled frequently and rendered entirely useless. Next they were stored in the supply rooms, but this arrangement there became too limited, and thirdly, they were carted to No. 9. The committee will meet at that building so that they can inspect the stock on hand and know in what condition it is with a view to selling such part as may be worth dealing out at second-hand.

It is announced by the Central Railroad of New Jersey that reduced rates of $2.84 will be made from Scranton to Middletown, Pa., (Camp Meade) and return, to allow persons an opportunity to visit that spot and see the soldiers just returned from the war with Spain in Cuba. CLAIMS THE BONDS WERE HER PROPERTY

MRS. M. J. CALLENDER SUES TO RECOVER $10,000.

Assignee John P. Kelly, of the Defunct Olyphant Trust Company, Sold the Bonds as Assets of the Bank and Mrs. Callender Sues to Recover Their Value, Alleging That She and Not the Bank Was the Owner—Judgment Note Case In Which There Is Bad Memory.

Mrs. Margaret J. Callender's suit for $10,000 against Hon. John P. Kelly, as assignee of the Olyphant Trust Company, was called for re-trial before Judge Sealy yesterday. Judge John B. McPherson tried the case last fall and gave binding instructions for the plaintiff. He afterwards admitted the defendant's contention, that he was in error in not submitting the matter to the jury, and directed that the case be re-tried.

The suit grows out of the failure of the Olyphant Trust company in 1895. When Mr. Kelly, the assignee, took charge of the bank's affairs he found in the hands of the First National bank of Scranton a budget of coupon bonds of the aggregate par value of $10,000, which had been deposited there by the Trust company as collateral security for a $6,000 indebtedness to the bank. When sufficient money had been collected to redeem the bonds, the assignee took them from the bank and sold them, accounting for the proceeds as other assets were accounted for.

Later, when J. Alton Davis, acting as auditor, was engaged in distributing the funds in the assignee's hands, Mrs. Callender presented a claim for the value of the bonds in question, alleging that they were her property, descended to her from her father's estate, and that she had loaned them to the Trust company, through her husband, who was its vice-president.

THEY WERE A LOAN.

He took them out of their private vault, she says, upon her authorization and delivered them to the bank as a loan, receiving from the cashier, M. J. Stone, a certificate setting forth that the bonds were borrowed and that they would bear interest at six per cent.

The defendant claims that the bank did not borrow the bonds from Mrs. Callender and never knew her in the matter at all. He contends that Mrs. Callender's husband, vice-president of the bank, loaned the bonds to M. J. Stone personally and that Stone sold the bonds to the bank to cover his indebtedness at the time the state bank examiner complained of the insecurity of the Trust company's assets.

The plaintiff is represented by I. H. Burns and W. S. Diehl. Mr. Kelly has as his attorney S. B. Price and Major Everett Warren.

The Rhodes-Vaughan case went to the jury yesterday at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, after the whole day had been consumed in listening to the 375 dispositive embraces. Yesterday's proceedings were enlivened some by tilts between the attorneys and an occasional bit of odd or interesting testimony.

One of the witnesses M. J. Kinney, of Gouldboro, who in his capacity of village blacksmith had frequent occasion to shoe the oxen, testified that he never saw anything wrong with them and to the best of his knowledge and belief they were perfectly sound. Mr. Collins, counsel for the defense, on examining the witness asked if it wasn't so that he was a Christian Scientist.

REPLIED IN KIND.

The witness admitted that he was. "Then you wouldn't admit said Mr. Collins, that there was possibly be anything the matter with the oxen if one of them walked lame you would say that it wasn't lame; it was all in the imagination of the ox. Is that right?" The witness merely answered that if Mr. Collins said such was the case it must be so.

W. W. Williams is plaintiff and Thomas J. Healey defendant in a peculiar case now on before Judge Archibald. Williams sues on a $124 judgment note which he claims was given him in 1887 for carpenter work done on the defendant's house.

The defendant says he never gave the note, never knew of its existence until eleven years after it was dated, when Williams executed on it, and furnished the money.
