Paine's Celery Compound

Makes People Well. There is one true specific for diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system, and that is Paine's celery compound, so generally prescribed by physicians.

It is the most remarkable remedy that the scientific research of America has produced. Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth College, first prescribed this positive cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, neuralgia, rheumatism, all nervous diseases and kidney troubles.

HER POINT OF VIEW. "I'm sure I don't understand why it is that girls now-a-days go with such grubby hands," declared a nice looking old lady, whose own fingers and general appearance bore every indication of most scrupulous care.

"That wasn't dirt," exclaimed one of her listeners. "Don't you know what was the matter? Why those stains show she is an amateur photographer. It's the ambition of every girl now to go around with finch looking spots on her hands so that everybody will know she develops her own photos. Dear me, you wouldn't have her go to the photographer would you grandma May?"

"Well I would if they looked like some pictures Mary was showing," frankly replied grandma. "They had a lot of water stains, and in one, a man developed her own photos, and she was throwing ink instead of mud. You can take off the stains but you don't want 'em off."

"Oh! well, it is a sad now to develop your own plates," explained the younger lady, "and you have to do it if you own a camera and want to be up to date even if you go round with your hands smelling like a glue factory and burn holes in your best gowns and spill acid on the new Bokhara rug and look as if you were a campaign speaker and somebody had been throwing ink instead of mud. You can take off the stains but you don't want 'em off."

"H'm," said grandma expressively. "These aren't the times when people hide their lights under a bushel or anything else adapted to concealment. Everybody who has any sort of a twinkling, foolish little light, lets it shine as voluminously as it will. Once in a while some person with a big candlepower illumination doesn't fully exercise its searchlight possibilities but stays in his quiet tent of self-restraint and serenely and allows the little lights to believe they are dazzling the world. It is a time when the woman who knows a few German or French phrases, produces them for the edification of those in her immediate vicinity. If she has ever been across the water, even if close investigation would reveal the history of a solitary early voyage hither in the steerage, she is continually saying, 'When I was abroad.' If she ever, by any possibility, was in the same city at the same time when some distinguished personage was present, she introduces subjects that will enable her to say 'When I met Mr. So-and-so' or 'Lord This or That.'"

I know a woman whose favorite topic of conversation is about the time when she met Anthony Hope, Ian MacLaren, Sarah Grand, Alphonse Daudet and a few other literary lions at a dinner in London." She knows, and everybody knows, and she knows that everybody knows it is pure romance, but she continues to cling to this darling of her imagination, to the weariness of her friends.

Another likes to tell that she patronized a famous New York tailor, when those who know her best say that she fastens the mark of the firm's name in each new gown, removing it from the predecessor, and that how she secured the little gold lettered ribbon is a mystery. She does those things with her hats though just what permanent satisfaction she thus obtains is another mystery.

This is a day when men like to tell of their brilliant collegiate advantages, the wonderful athletic reputations they once had, and the great business opportunities they have enjoyed and when they are not averse to having it known that their one-time superior social facilities are not to be overlooked.

It is a time for exploiting everything, and nearly everybody falls into the trap occasionally and does some small self-advertising. Now and then when some horrible example in the shape of an undeniable bore shows to what length one can go in such matters does one realize how the habit grows and lingers. It is done about as often personally. Perhaps, after all, these losses bore whom we now and then meet do serve a good purpose in showing us the possibilities we may reach, but alas, we cannot "see ourselves as others see us." MUSICAL QUESTION BOX.

Professor J. Alfred Pennington, director of the Scranton Conservatory of Music and organist of Elm Park church, has answered the questions asked by Tribune readers. Every reader interested in music is invited to send questions to the Musical Question Box, care of the Tribune, or they may be addressed to Professor Pennington. Only the writers' initials will appear in connection with the answers to the questions. Their names will not be published unless they desire to remain entirely unknown.

J. L.—What is meant by "Harmony"? Answer—Harmony is the science which treats of chords, (several musical tones heard simultaneously) and the manner in which they should follow one another to produce the best musical effects. 2.—Is Harmony a study intended only for those who wish to learn how to compose music? Answer—By no means. As well as that grammar is a study intended only for those who expect to become authors, editors or public speakers. Harmony is the grammar of music and should be studied by every student of music, and it should be taken up very early, as soon, in fact, as the rudiments have been mastered. The ability to readily analyze chord-combinations makes one a ready reader at sight. As I said in a recent answer to a question with reference to the proper use of the right hand pedal of the piano—the sustaining pedal—it is impossible to learn how to correctly use the pedal without a knowledge of harmony, and the quicker piano students recognize it with reference to the proper use of it for themselves and their listeners, since no fault perpetrated in the name of music is more abominable than the misuse of the pedal. To the organist a knowledge of harmony is, if possible, still more necessary. This different parts of the service have to be frequently joined together by short improvisations, songs out with piano accompaniment have to be adapted to the organ, etc., all of which make a knowledge of harmony imperative. Indeed, no person, whether instrumentalist or vocalist, can become an acceptable musician without possessing some knowledge of Harmony and Musical Form.

X. Y. Z.—I read your answer about pianos in the "Musical Question Box" in last Saturday's Tribune. Would you have any objection in saying what piano you recommend as the best? Answer—See answer to S. C. P. M. D.—Which pays the best, to be a pianist or a solo soprano? Answer—That pays the best which you can do the best. On a basis of dollars and cents it is usually considered that a prima donna has the advantage. Several questions which were impossible to answer this week for want of time will appear next Saturday with their respective answers. J. A. P.

MUSICAL GOSSIP. A chorus of select voices from the Catholics of our city is being organized and will meet to complete arrangements next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in L. B. Powell & Co's Music store. All who have been invited are requested to be present. Mr. Watkins will be the conductor. The first Liederkreis concert of the season will be given Oct. 25. Mr. Watkins is to be the adjudicator of singing and recitations at the Hazleton eisteddod to be held Christmas day. "Worthy is the Lamb," "The Cambrian Song of Freedom," are the chief competitions. "Mona," "Come Where the Landona Blossom," "My Love is a Rover," are among the solos.
