A GOOSE EGG EPISODE. Near Brookdale lives Miss Cora Hargerford, a bright and pretty young girl, who assists her father on the farm. Some months ago Miss Cora was helping her father pack eggs for shipment. In a spirit of fun she wrote her name age and address on a goose egg. The young lady forgot all about the accident, but in three or four weeks was surprised to receive a letter from a gentleman connected with a packing house in New York. He told her that the egg upon which she had written her name came into his possession. In concluding his letter the New Yorker gave his name and references and asked Miss Hargerford to correspond. The girl accepted the proposition. In a short time photographs were exchanged, and lately the goose egg has resulted in an engagement, and a wedding will shortly take place. The New Yorker has been to see his intended ,and he finds her exactly his ideal. SOME NEWS NOTES.

SOME MATTERS POLITICAL. Senator Hardenbergh has always Klink shows that she is done well for the district, and the Republicans should see that he has the full vote at the coming election. He has made a splendid record at Harris burg, one of which any man may well be proud, and he will be returned by good majority. Every Republican in the district ought to vote for Senator Hardenbergh.

C. Fred. Wright has the making of a wide-awake, able, popular member of congress. He is a successful business man, and up-to-date along all lines. Every Republican in the district should cast one vote for C. Fred, Wright for Wholly unpremeditated many a man has ruined his morals trying to find out how wicked his neighbors were. Noah had a great admiration for mountains. He was stuck on Ararat.

Eight times out of ten the man or voman who attempt to do too much for a church a party, a society, a town or an individual, are misrepresented, misjudged, and, in the end, misused. Our "oldest inhabitant" has examined the feathers on the breast over the left lung of a July goose and prophesizes that we are to have a mild winter.

The season has just closed when city summer boarders ate salt ham, drank blinky milk, had narrow escapes from mad bulls and playful goats and imagined that they were recuperating their wasted energies. A Windsor girl waved her hand at a stranger and three days afterwards they were married. Two months afterwards the young wife waved a flat iron at a her husband. A year later he came home waving a divorce.

HIS DOG KILLS HAWKS

Bob, a red setter owned by Farmer Bradford, of Brockville, keeps guard over the barnyard fowls, follows the cackling mother hens and their broods from one place to another and lies low for hen hawks. Late in September Bob saw an enormous hawk scoop down and carry off a squawking chicken, and since then he has taken upon himself the task of watching the feathered stock on the premises. Farmer Bradford wasn't aware of Bob's selfimposed duties until an afternoon in September, when he heard the roosters and the hens cakling and squawking back of the barn. He saw a red streak sailing over the fence like a flash and before he could get to where the frightened fowls were Bob came bounding round the corner of the barn with a lig hen hawk by the neck. The hen was flapping its wings furiously. But Bob soon choked it to death, not apnearing to mind the beating he re ceived from the bird's large wings.

BUILDING A NOVEL. Mrs. Klink, an author, is evidently gathering material for a new novel-Some months since she was arrested on a charge of robbing a store at Meshoppen and lodged in the Wyoming county jail at Tunkhannock. While awaiting trial she escaped from fall, accompanied by a negro, William Smith. Since escaping the couple have been tramping through the country and living in true Bohemian style. Some weeks ago a horse and wagon stoler at Harford, this county, and later the property was found anlong the by a Broome county officer. Smoke arising from a neighborhood ravine disclosed the presence of a camping party which, on investigation, proved to be Mrs. Klink and Smith. the couple were roasting a chicken to feathers found in the wa-roadside. The couple were

IN THE PLAY HOUSES.

Very Amusing Farce. A very large audience laughed at "A Misfit Marriage" at the Lyceum last night until sore. It is another of these deliciously absurd and wildly improbable farces of which "My Friend from India" was the first. The author, Du Souchet, knows how to take hackneyed themes and all situations and remodel them and place them in such a new light before you hat you are willing to affirm that they are all brand new and that Du Souchet is undoubtedly a man of ideas.

The hero of the farce, Jules Barton, goes to the office of Judge Potter to be married to Viola, a daughter of Madame Dupont. Barton thinks he recognizes in judge a man with whom he had a fight the night previous, and whom he believes to be a noted French duelist. Among those that come to the judge's ofice is a young man, Charles Ten Eyck, in love with Viola and beloved by her, He enters a strong protest against the marriage into which Viola is being forced by her mother. Georgiana, the judge's laughter, who had been a former sweeteart of Barton's, and who had a falling out with him over some trival misunder-standing, is also of the party. In addition there is a fussy old uncle of Barton's a "fresh" office boy and a pert maid. The marriage ceremony after several inerruptions is completed, and Barton rushes away with his bride. It turns out, however, that the judge has married Barton to Viola's mother. Consternation reigns supreme when the mistage is disovered. Matters are further complicated by the appearance of a former husband of Madame Dupont's, a grufi old sea captsin, whom everyone supposed to be dead, His return apparently releases Barton from the awkward marriage, when an adventuress to whom the sailor had been married before he wedded Madame Du-pont, arrives on the scene and confusion once more prevails. The taugle is straightened by all parties meeting at the judge's office again, where all records of the marriage are destroyed. Barton con-cludes that he has all along loved his old sweetheart Georgiana, releases Viola, who quickly taken in charge by Charics en Eyck, while Burton's uncle approprintes the buxom widow.

This tangle of a plot was unravelled by one of Smyth & Rices companies in a manner that is worthy of commendation. Some of the clever nimebers of the com-pany are Katherine Mulkins, Annie Warrington. Millie James, daughter of Marie Wall, wright: Ina Manner, Max Figman, Clayton White, Frank E. Kendrick, A. J. Edwards and Henry Herman.

eminent romantic actor. Robert Mantell, will be at the Lyceum Thursday in his grand production of "Monbars. The story is a French one of the First Empire period; picturesque, romantic and powerful. Of all Mr. Mantell's repertoire, Monbars" has been the ladies' favorite D'Ennery, the author, wrote "The Two Orphans," "Celebrated Case" and mony other melodramas of that school, but in all he never pictured such a hero as Rob-ert Mantell in "Monbars."

Sousa's "El Capitan."

That the public like "El Capitan" there can be no denying. Crowded house have offered up incense of enthusiastic applicates and almost incessant laughter at every performance. "El Capitan" is on American triumph—musically the greatest opera in the line of typical American music ever orchestrated. It reflects the marital temperament of the American nature as no other pretentious comic opera work has ever attempted, and for this inspiring gift America has to thank Sousa, truly styled the "March King." Charles Klein's story in the libretto, for comical purposes only, has furnished Sousa the opportunity of his life. This performance is provided a gorgeous scenic unting, prepared by Ernst M. Gros while magnificent costumes, dresses an draperies have been provided by Dazian, the New York costumer. "El Capitan" will be here next Friday and Saturday and Saturday matince, Oct. 14 and 15.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review. New York, Oct. II .- The bears had hard work to make a living in today's stock market not withstanding great diligence and perseverance. The majority of the standard stocks offered a very firm resistance to the efforts to effect reaction and the number of stocks in which there was any movement obtained. The industrial specialties were the only stocks on the list that showed any disposition to move widely and the movement of these was with full "mystery" on in the exchange lingo. It was room traders' market and the motives which impelled these gentry to sell and buy stocks would probably b beyond the initiated to fathom. The Coalers which are a special target for bears were raided down from 1 to 2 per cent, on the general decression in the an-thracite industry and other specialties were subjects of individual treatment. These manocuvres of the professional bear had astonishing little influence in railroad stocks. The demand for these securities was of what might be called inlinitesimal properties and there was no disposition to sell. Total sales were 26,-300 shares. The bond market was dult and easier with the exception of the gittthe Broome county jail and edged issues. Total sales $1,550,000.
