HALLOWE'EN PRANKS.

The city has not been the scene of such bilarity as was occasioned on Monday night, in many years. The youth of the city were out in force and it would be easier to record what they didn't do then what they did. A team of horses belonging to a farmer was left standing on North Main street, while the wagon was taken up the street several blocks. The owner of the team was slightly inebriated and when he discovered the horses standing in the road detached from the vehicle he could not anderstand it at all. Finally he got it through his bemuddled brain that the wagen was missing, but before he believed it he must feel about where he left it. He grasped nothing but atmosphere in his fingers and became convinced. He was in a sore strait and but for the assistance of a few persons who happened to witness the affair he would probably be looking yet for his wagon. The whole joke was committed shortly after 9 o'clock right on Main street and this added much to the boys' fun-
