SCRANTON, NOVEMBER 17, 1898.

The Lancaster Intelligencer suggests George A. Jenks as a suitable candidate for United States senator against M. S. Quay.

The Caucus.

The party caucus is coming in for a lot of criticism just now from the Wanamaker following in politics, who hope to combine with the Democrats in the election of a senator hostile to Quay.

If the conditions were reversed: if the Wanamaker crowd could muster a majority in a Republican legislative caucus they would now be shouting in favor of the caucus.

Mr. Chamberlain's Speech. There is no other English statesman, if we may except Mr. James Bryce, who understands America and American institutions more broadly or more sympathetically than Mr. Chamberlain.

The Business Men's League, of Philadelphia, claims that its members everywhere supported Republican candidates for the national house of representatives.

The Secretary of War. There probably is no truth in the newspaper story that Senator McMillan is to go to England so that Secretary Alger may succeed him in the senate.

Gen. Grosvenor on Election Results. GENERAL GROSVENOR, of Ohio, in the presidential campaign as an expert in figures, has prepared a statement for the Washington Post, showing the results of the election.

The People's Choice. From the Archibald Citizen. If Mr. Smith is the sincere friend of the people that he pretends to be, he will at once withdraw his objections to the coming of the vote of his late rival, Judge Ganster.

Money in Apples. From the Wayne Independent. It is estimated that the apple yield brought about $2,000,000 to Wayne county farmers this year and it was counted a very poor crop, too.

The Gondoliers. Benefit of Scranton Free Kindergarten Association. Beneficial of Scranton Gospel Society. Beneficial of Scranton Musical Society.

The Bookman. BEIDLEMAN, THE BOOKMAN, 407 Spruce St. Sole Agents for Richardson-Royton's Furnaces and Hoops.

would doubtless make the advancement of Miles an embarrassment to the present secretary of war it is to be hoped that some way of adjustment will soon be found that, while sacrificing nobody, shall promote the obvious best interests of the army.

A remarkable state of public sentiment exists in Pennsylvania if Mr. Wanamaker is to be believed.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Persons at a distance are cautioned not to give too much credence to everything they hear about Pennsylvania.
