

SOUTHERN JOURNEY OF THE THIRTEENTH

IT WAS NOT ALL A MATTER OF HARDSHIP.

So Many Pleasant Features Attended the Trip That the Boys Forgot to Get Tired of It—They Are Loud in Their Praise of the Southern Country—As Usual the Regiment Holds Its Reputation as a Rainmaker. The Thirteenth Makes a Record in Breaking Camp and on the Trip.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Camp S. B. M. Young, Augusta, Ga., Nov. 15.—The trip of the regiment from Keyser, North Carolina, to the city of Augusta was one of lively interest to the men. They rested for a moment, but eagerly surveyed the surrounding country. Every foot of southern soil over which they passed only made them the more desirous of not missing anything. Their curiosity had been raised to the highest point and never died out for even an instant.

We reached the city of Southern Pines, which is known to many Scrantonians, at half past ten o'clock Tuesday morning, and it was noticeable that old glory was more in evidence there than in any other city or town below the Mason and Dixon line. The white people showed themselves unwelcomed to the boys as the train passed along. This was the only place beyond Washington in which the white people showed any more than a passing interest in the troops and reminded the boys somewhat of home. The presence of the more excited and enthusiastic colored people at other points seemed to have a deterring, dampening effect on the white population, and resulted in their remaining away entirely from the depots and even restrained them from taking part in any attempt at welcoming or bidding a good-bye to the boys in blue.

COTTONFIELD SOUVENIRS.

From Southern Pines we made good time to Aberdeen, which we reached at 11 o'clock and a half an hour later we arrived at a staid-looking, well-ordered town named Hamlet. Here the train stopped for some time and coffee was served. During the wait some of the boys walked into a large cotton field and picked many of the Georgia cotton, which they still preserve as souvenirs. At fifteen minutes after twelve we crossed the Roe River, spanning into Monroe at 12:45. At half past one a familiar and famous historical expression known to every school boy and every school girl, was called to mind by actual exemplification and our train passed over the state line from North Carolina into South Carolina. Thence we made a quick run to Rockhill, crossed the Carolina river at 3:45. We reached Chester at 5:45, Clinton at 5:50, Laurens at 6:20 and Greenwood at eight o'clock. Here coffee was again served. At ten p. m. we got to McCormick. It will be remembered that these two latter cities lay within the past week, when the enterprising raiders, in which several negroes have perished. From this point on we went at a very slow speed. At half past one o'clock we crossed the Savannah river, which is the boundary between South Carolina and Georgia, passing through Augusta shortly after and reaching our destination at the sidings.

Holiday Talk

Not too early to consider this proposition—Christmas is only some six weeks forward. The holidays have a direct bearing upon our business. They create a demand for special lines—the many lines of novelties and novel wares for gift usages. Hence the special efforts that have been put forth months ago and are now being put forth to make this year's collection and display unprecedented.

It's too early to speak in detail of the many lines, so only this mention of some of the exclusive sorts that were gathered by our buyer while on the continent during the summer, and which are now receiving here, for the first time, the light of day on American soil.

There are Bronzes, Leathers and Dresdens from Germany; Hand-Painted Toilet Articles, Nic-Nacs and Jewels from France; Ivory, Cut Glass, Silver and Gun Metal Novelties from England. All the important art centers of the old world have representatives in this veritable pan-municipal show. It's a duty owing to yourself to see this vast collection of Statuettes, Busts, Vases, Toilet Things and Table Articles.

It's not a good time to cry of prices—art is not measured by dollars and cents. Therefore it's inconsistent to shout "Cheap! Cheap!" in the same breath with "Finest and Best." Yet in truth we hold the matter of price as highly important.

There is no sentimentality in our prices—each mark is based on a business percentage of the cost, and the goods cost less than you expect—that's triumph enough.

About Gloves

Dent Walking Gloves for women's streetwear are here in splendid assortment of new shades, and priced lower than the askings of Dent's accredited New York agents.

NO WASTE OF WORDS.

Evidence Which Is Right to the Point and Reliable.

Judge Frank Ives, of the District Court, of Crookston, Minn., says: For some time I have used Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets with seeming great benefit with few exceptions. I have not been so free from indigestion in twenty-five years.

George W. Roosevelt, U. S. Consul to Brussels, Belgium: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, safe, pleasant to take, convenient to carry, give keen appetite, perfect digestion.

Mr. W. D. Tomlin, mechanical engineer, Duluth, Minn.: One box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets has done its work, and I am again gaining flesh and strength.

O. E. Hanson, Hustonville, Ky.: I was distressed and annoyed for two years with throwing up food, often two or three times a day; had no certainty of retaining a meal if I ate one. Four boxes of the Tablets from my druggist have fully cured me. I find them pleasant to take, convenient to carry.

Rev. G. D. Brown, Mondovi, Wis.: The effects of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is simply marvelous; a quite hearty dinner of broiled beefsteak causes no distress since I began their use.

Over six thousand people in the state of Michigan alone in 1894 were cured of stomach troubles by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Full sized packages may be found at all druggists at 50 cents, or sent by mail on receipt of price from F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

one mile from camp, at three in the morning.

The south is indeed a strange, weird country. The beauty just now is not imposing or majestic save in its vast extent, but still it has beauty of its own. From the city of Weldon, near the upper boundary line of North Carolina to Augusta, we passed over an unvaried plain, and your correspondent remembers that in one stretch of over one hundred miles not only was there no mountain visible, but we could not even see a hill as large as Sanderson's hill in Scranton. Such an uninterrupted scene has a peculiar, overwhelming effect on a person coming from mountainous Northeastern Pennsylvania.

BEAUTIFUL AUTUMN.

On all sides as we passed we could see miles of tracts of perfectly level fields of cotton. The mellowing hand of autumn, which covers everything it touches with richest tints, seems to have just completed its great work, and where cotton or corn does not grow one can see as pretty a picture as human being has ever laid eyes upon. On one side are pine forests, in which every tree grows parallel to the other, and on the opposite side are large tracts of many-colored, stunted oak trees, over topped here and there by clumps of green-crowned pines, an every tree of which nature has used her plumb-line with unerring accuracy. This scene was continued mile after mile, and extended in every direction farther than the eyes can see.

The trip from Camp Meade to this place was remarkable for the health of the regiment and freedom from accidents. It was so arranged that no one got sick on either the first or second sections he would be left off at a station there to be taken up by the third section, to which was attached a well-equipped, well-supplied hospital car, in charge of Major Keller. No better commitment can be paid to the physical endurance of the men than to say that, under all conditions and inconveniences, they traveled nine hundred and ten miles and only one man was taken to the hospital and his case was in no way serious. Three or four suffered from headaches, ear sickness, but were soon able to get around again.

Equally remarkable was the accident record. Only one man was hurt—Private Thomas Kernan, of East Bloomfield, Putnam county, N. Y. who acts as chef for company G. As the second section was leaving Harrisburg it passed close to the City hospital. Lieutenant J. C. Harrington, of G, who is still a fever patient in that institution, went to a window to see the regiment depart and to wave his farewell to the boys. When the members of his company saw him they leaned out of the car windows. In doing this Kernan unfortunately leaned out too far and just at that moment the train passed a flag station, which is quite near to the track.

FORTUNATE ESCAPE.

As a result Private Kernan received a slight rash in the center of the forehead and the middle finger of the right hand was wrenched at the joints. The muscles are simply strained and the wound in the forehead, though over an inch in length, merely effects the skin. The cranium is unharmed.

Lieutenant Blanchard, in charge of the second section, rendered prompt aid, dressing the wounds immediately. The patient is now walking around. He had a narrow, but very fortunate escape.

Lieutenant Merriman, who looked after the health of the first section, reports that every man under his charge escaped sickness or mishap. The third section, which was under Major Surgeon Keller's supervision, was equally fortunate. To this subdivision of the regiment was attached the hospital car, which was supplied with medical, surgical and food stores, and carried ten beds, one hospital steward, Sergeant Clark, two hospital assistants and one expert cook, Private John Stanton, of D company, who had a model hospital in every respect, but lacked patients.

One of the chief topics of conversation now under discussion in camp is the splendid record which the regiment made for itself from the beginning to end, Major Von Schroeder, who is chief of transportation, and who has been seeing practically the entire Second army corps leave camp during several days previous, expressed himself without any solicitation to the effect that the Thirteenth, both men and officers, was the most orderly, punctual and military-like regiment which had left the sidings up to that time. To this was added the testimony of the railroad officials, who, on several occasions where stops were made, inquired as to what regiment it was. When told they remarked that it was the best and best behaved which had passed. In justice and fairness it must be said that this measure of praise is far from being undeserved—which even a casual comparison between the Thirteenth and the other regiments would show. Major Von Schroeder's especially is no idle compliment.

The last of the three sections rolled last night into a by-station named Wheles Junction, which is just one mile from here. All slept in the cars during the night and this morning the Thirteenth once more proved its popularity with the elements which have been pouring down rain since early morning. This did not deter the boys. They donned their overcoats, and though deprived of their breakfast, started in with a rush to remove their camp equipment from the cars on to the army wagons, and in a few hours they had everything here in camp and their camp up.

The boys of the Thirteenth taught the boys of the other regiments one valuable trick in soldiery—they brought their bunks along with them, while the others gave them away at Camp Meade, and when they arrived here had to sleep on mother earth.

PECKVILLE.

Peckville was in darkness Saturday and Sunday nights, caused by the wires grounding and burning off with the high voltage used. Trees must be properly insulated where wires come in contact and the construction company should have seen that it was done. The system is all right and when properly put up will be a decided success.

Martin Harlow, the borough's electrical engineer, will during the next few days go over the electric light system and make an inventory of it as it now stands, so that the exact cost up to date can be readily figured up, as all estimates given out heretofore have been mere guess work. Mr. Harlow states that he is confident that the plant has not cost over $50,000 and the appropriation of $15,000, and he also stands ready to take the plant, run it for one year, furnish it with everything throughout for the sum of $3,000. He also states he will furnish the necessary transformers, same to be paid for as collections are made.

The directors and members of the Odd Fellows' Hall association are requested to meet at the lodge rooms this evening, by order of W. B. Stevens, president.

The funeral services of Samuel Arnold, who died of heart failure Friday, will be held at two o'clock this afternoon from the family residence at Mott Haven.

Perry Harding visited his family at Ararat yesterday.

Because Hood's Sarsaparilla Built Up His System

Child Was Weak, Had Night Sweats and Poor Appetite.

"Our youngest child was in a bad condition. One physician said the trouble was malaria and another thought it came from the stomach and liver. Meantime the child kept growing weaker. He had night sweats, poor appetite and various other troubles. We worried along for two years, and then we determined to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and from the first day which nature has used her little boy. We kept on until he had taken about three bottles. Today he is a strong, hearty child. We have always had to keep him indoors in winter, but last winter he was out with other children and we found no trace of the old trouble returning." ### FATHER & SONS CURED OF ITCHING RASH

I had an itching rash under my chin, which kept spreading until it was all over my body. I could not sleep but was compelled to lie awake and scratch all the time. My father and two brothers were afflicted with the same thing, at the same time. We all suffered terribly for a year and a half, trying in the meantime all the remedies we could find, but received no benefit. I bought three cakes of CUTICURA Soap and three boxes of CUTICURA (ointment) and they cured the four of us completely. RICHARD ANDERSON, Geneva, Utah.
