A squeeze occurred in the fourteen foot vein of Storrs' No. 3 mine yesterday morning, necessitating the abandonment of work. Although of slight dimensions it might become more serious, it was feared, and it was decided to cease work. Gangs of men immediately commenced propping up the affected portions and a resumption of work will probably take place this

A QUIET WEDDING.

Mrs, Frances Bradley was quietly united in marriage to John Dove, of Denver, Col., at the residence of the bride on East Market street. The carmony was performed by the Rev. A. F. Chaffee, of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church. Only the immediate relatives of the parties were present. Mr. and Mrs. Dove left on the midnight train for Davenport, N. Y., and after a short visit at the home of Mrs. Dove's girlhood, they will return to Scranton and make preparations for their departure to Denver, where they will reside in the future. The best wishes of a host of friends go with them in their new home, Mrs. Dove is well known and highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. Mr. Dove is a prominent business man of Denver, where he has resided for over twenty-five years, having witnessed the wonderful growth from a mere village to the present city of 170,000 inhabi-

NOTES OF THE DAY.

Last night in St. Mary's hall the Excelsior Dramatic company cleverly interpreted the strong melo-drama. "A Noble Outcast." The piece was excellently portrayed with scenic and electrical effects. James Thomas, who assumed the role of the outcast, displayed marked dramatical ability. The minor characters were taken by capable people who sustained Mr. Thomas admirably. A social followed the play. Turkey suppers were served at the North Main Avenue Baptist and Methodist Episcopal churches last night Both were well patronized.

The annual supper and bazaar of the Court Street Methodist Episcopal church was well attended yesterday. The affair was a source of pleasure for the patrons. The bazaar will be contioued this evening.

Services and Entertainments Conducted in a Number of the Churches-Welsh Prize Singers Entertained an Immense Audience at the Jackson Street Baptist Church and Made a Wonderful Impression-Concert Given by the Syracuse University Quantitate in the Simpson Church.

West Scranton's residents perved 898's Thanksgiving day in a very quiet but apparently thoroughly satisfactory way. The snow which happened around so opportunely put a finishing touch to complete the day's usual, or ought-to-he-go, style. The stores were all closed. The children took advantage of the snow and sledded down any convenient hill. Only one accident was reported and that was not serious. Many persons spent the day out of

In the matter of religious observance, this side with her large number of churches and church societies "did not forget." The union services of the English-speaking churches held at the Simpson Methodist church are reported dsewhere in this paper. Among the Welsh churches, the usual three services were conducted in each church. Where the church was without a pastor, only prayer and praise service was

Two sunrise services were held. The one at the Simpson Methodist church at 7 o'clock was conducted by Miss Della P. Evans. This was attended by members of the several Young People's church societies, and the attendance was large. About seventy-five young ople attended the sunrise service at the Jackson Street Baptist church at 6 clock. This meeting was in charge of the Baptist Young People's society and David H. Williams led.

At St. David's Episcopal church a regular service was conducted at 10.30 m. Hely Communion was celebrated and an appropriate sermon was preached by the rector, Rev. E. J. Mc-Henry. Brother James, of the Order of Good Shepherd, assisted, At St. Mark's Lutheran church, Rev. A. L. Ramer, Ph. D., preached an eloquent sermon at the service held at 10.30 a. m. His text was "O Lord, how manifold are thy works; in wisdom hast thou made them all; the earth is full of thy riches," Psalm 104:24. Holy Communion was observed and a substantial collection was taken for the Home for the Friend-

At the South Main Avenue First Welsh Congregational church, of which Rev. David Jones is pastor, three services were held, at 10, 3 and 6 o'clock, respectively. In the morning Judge H. M. Edwards, Daniel J. Evans and Thomas James were the speakers. Misses Nova Davis and Mae Jones, and Thomas Elias addressed the afternoon Their topics were appropriate. In the evening, Mrs. W. G. Powell and Joshua Elias made addresses Three services were also conducted, at 10, 3 and 6 o'clock, respectively, at the South Main Avenue Welsh Calvinistic Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. Hugh Davies, was in charge.

Other forms of observance, but not of a religious service, were also held. A supper was served at the Scranton Street Raptist church between the hours of 6 and 9 p. m. The affair was onducted by the ladies of the church and was a success. About 300 persons were served. The Chi Upsilon society of the Washburn Street Presbyterian hurch conducted an old-fashioned "at ome" in their rooms at that edifice from 7 until 10.36 o'clock in the evening. C. H. Hall exhibited sixty stere option views during the evening. The affair was well attended. The Acme Social club had a large crowd at the first annual social given in the evening in St. David's hall. Joseph McDermott furnished the music.

WELSH PRIZE SINGERS.

It is impossible to fully describe the pleasure given the immense audience which filled the auditorium of the Jackson street Baptist church last evening at the concert given by the far-famed Welsh Prize Singers. From start to finish the audience, comprising nearly all the lovers of good vocal music on his side, at least, and many prominent itizens, were on the qui vive, and did not fail to properly express their deep satisfaction at the end of each

The concert was made up of four glees, eight single selections by the everal artists, and a harp solo, a plano solo, two vocal duets and instrumental duet. Miss Jennie Parry. royal harpist, and E. T. Davies, planist, performed the instrumental selections, individually and in duet. They alternated as accompanists to the solo-Miss Beatrice Evans, R. A. M., and Madame Miles Beynon, sopranos: Misses Dot Prosser and Mary Richards, contraltos: T. Amon Jones, basso; Griff Davies, R. A. M., baritone; and David Lloyd, tenor, were the soloists. Messrs. Lloyd and Jones sang in duet, as did Miss Prosser and Madamo Miles Beynon. All were favored, but Miss Dot Prosser, by her indefinable per-sonality, was accorded an almost tempestuous reception, and if she would the could have sung on through the whole evening

HE DROPPED TEN DOLLARS. Jerome Keogh, the champion pool player, was the defendant in a hearing before Alderman John, Wednesday evening. W. C. Jones, of Clark's place, was prosecutor. The charge was keeping a gambling machine, etc., in his pool room on Lackawanna avenue. The machine designated was one of those cabinets used for playing by putting a nickel in the slot and turning the crank. Keogh was held in his recognizance to appear at court.

The case grew out of the fact that 'harles Jones, a young grandson of the prosecutor, had lost $10 in that rame machine the night before. Young Jones had been given $20 to go on an errand for his grandparents and the money he lost was part of this amount. Constables Sippel and Mink made the arrest and seized the machine. In the night the church was again crowdd to listen to an exceptionally good entertainment, held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the congregation.
