PROF. DE MOTTE'S LECTURE ON SENSES

WAS DELIVERED IN THE HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM.

The Title of the Professor's Remarkable Discourse Was "The Harp of the Senses, or the Secret of Character Building."—Illustrations Showing Sound Waves and a Number of Notable Works of Art—Professor DeMotte's Opinion of Dantat, the Artist.

In the High school auditorium last night, Mr. Will Scranton of the senior class of the Scranton High school, in a few graceful remarks, introduced Professor De Motte, who gave a brilliant and remarkable lecture on the subject, "The Harp of the Senses, or the Secret of Character Building."

Professor DeMotte is a man of elegant appearance whose accomplishments are many and whose long study of character, makes him a rather dangerous person to have around if you have committed a murder or are concealing a horrible crime, or if you are a neighbor who may have a prettier hat than yours.

The first thing you might know he would probably divulge your secret to the community. He is a clever, entertaining speaker who can talk faster than most women, almost a disadvantage in the High school hall with its villainous acoustics.

He travels with a vast supply of apparatus to illustrate his subject. Almost everything that can imitate a noise, a cry, a musical tone seemed to be at hand.

If his audience had not during the early part of the lecture they would have gone home with a sensation either of sea-sickness or the delirium tremens because of the fearful and wonderful pictures thrown on the wall. They were illustrations of sound waves produced by music and by tones of the voice; and were actual experiments taking on the hues of the spectrum and gave a striking idea of what sound really is.

At the conclusion of this portion of the lecture Professor DeMotte made a clever hit at Mr. Garner, of monkey fame, who claims to have discovered the secret of the Simian language and to be able to converse with alleged relatives in the zoo.

The lecture was a strong and at times a startling warning to the young to take heed as to "brain specializing." The speaker gave vivid word pictures of the result obtained by repetition in developing the brain cells in undesirable directions. The certainty of solving a thought and repeating a habit was emphasized to an extended degree, and was illustrated by stereoscopic views of the nervous system.

STRONG ILLUSTRATION.
In this connection he gave a strong illustration by contrasting Dantat's famous prize picture "Spanish Dancers" at the World's fair and its evil atmosphere with Hovenden's "Breaking Home Ties."

He declared that Dantat is said to be utterly unable to depict the pure holy face of a woman because of his long study of the degraded and wicked for the picture named.

The views shown were of a high order of art, among them being the Bonaparte Madonna and the noted "Effant Prodiges." The mechanical effects in the sound wave portrayals were extremely interesting.

Professor De Motte was heard by a very large audience.

A FAMOUS SONG WRITER.

J. Aldrich Libbey, Who Is With Aborn at the Academy of Music.

James Aldrich Libbey, the famous song writer and baritone singer, is with Milton Aborn's New England Opera company.

Mr. Libbey has been singing for fifteen years, having gone on the stage as a ballad singer when eighteen years of age. This does not include the two and one-half years he spent in Europe and the two years in Boston, his old home, studying. He sang with the Boston Symphony orchestra in cantatas. As a ballad singer he is pre-eminent, and he has introduced and made popular more songs probably than any other man. He is not only a singer but an actor, and this talent is responsible for a portion of his great success. He acts every song, putting snap, vim, dash and life into it, nothing mechanical about his singing, and this whole week he has been receiving the applause and the plaudits of the Academy of Music, audiences. Arrangements are now being made for a tour of England. He lately toured Australia and created a sensation there. Some of his big hits this week have been "Taps," "College Chums Forever," "The Old Man's Story," "Marie Louise," "Born at Sea and a Sailor," and others, and his descriptive powers have simply carried his audiences away. He sold to a Pittsburgh publisher "Every Life Has Its Story," a song he wrote on the boat while en route to Australia, and which has never been published in this country.

STRONGLY RECOMMENDED.

"What Happened to Jones" Well Received in Wilkes-Barre.

Manager Harvey Long last night received the following telegram from M. H. Burgunder, of Wilkes-Barre:

"Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 1.—You can highly recommend the play 'The Joneses' to the people of Scranton. The farce was produced at the Nesbitt theatre before an audience that was loud in its manifestations of approval. The farce is bright and wholesome throughout, and very entertaining. The company is good."

AFTER NEW INDUSTRIES.

Board of Trade Officials Considering Plans for Bringing Three New Manufacturing Enterprises to This City.

The officers and the more prominent committees of the board of trade are engaged in the consideration of a number of important matters, several of which may result in bringing three new manufacturing enterprises to the city.

On Saturday afternoon the finance committee will meet and consider the advisability of renewing the contract with the Dun Mercantile agency. As it has cost the board $600 per year for the last ten years, the meeting of the committee is not unimportant. The consideration the rate given by the agency to members of the board. This rate is $75 for two books per year, or $25 less than the regular rate. So much as $600 is charged for the two books on account of the large number of persons who have access to them.

A joint meeting of the manufacturers and legislation and taxes committees will be held Saturday evening to elect a delegate to the ballot reform convention to be held in Philadelphia on Dec. 7.

Three propositions which may lead to the establishment of as many new industries in Scranton are now before the manufacturers committee. The three would employ 250 men and they do not include the National Elevator works, of Honesdale, which it has been decided, will be established here and in operation before next summer.

One of the three enterprises is purely local and has $100,000 subscribed for its stock. Another is a concern now doing a good business in another city but which has been investigating the wisdom of coming to Scranton to secure better facilities of manufacture and shipping and to be in the center of its market. It has not asked for money, in fact, does not need it but the officers of the board think that the board should at least give its formal approval of the project and see to it that the removal to Scranton is assured.

It is proposed to establish the industry last referred to in the building occupied by the Collins-Hale Manufacturing company on Capouse avenue. If this plan isn't carried out the building will be leased by the company which recently began the manufacture of wooden cloth in Green Ridge.

In the latter plant, which is managed by Mr. Brock, eight looms are in operation and making cloth of splendid quality. The men interested are those who created at Taylor a building for the manufacture of wooden goods, but which was sold to a silk concern. The Green Ridge plant was equipped and at work before the project was known among even a small number of business men.

At the Dec. 15 meeting of the board officers for 1899 will be nominated. The election will be held at the January meeting. On the 19th some definite stand will probably be taken on the mayoralty election, the recent report of the legislation and taxes committee having by this time been carefully examined by the members who are anxious that the board should declare its sentiments before the fight is on.

BOTH LEGS CRUSHED.

George Jennings Narrowly Escaped Death on D. L. and W. Tracks.

George Jennings, the man who had both legs crushed by cars on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad yesterday morning, has a good chance to recover. Both legs were mutilated so badly that the amputation of one below the knee was necessary yesterday. The other will be amputated at the ankle today if Jennings' condition is favorable enough.

Jennings was injured while attempting to board a moving freight train. He was seeking a ride to the Green wood mine, where he is employed as a proper cutter. The entire train passed over his legs. He was taken to the Moses Taylor hospital.

BUILDING NOTES.

Architect Percival J. Morris yesterday finished the plans for three double frame dwelling houses, which will be built on lots in the Richmond Park tract by J. H. and J. J. Jordan. Each side will have nine rooms. Each dwelling will be fitted throughout with the most modern appliances. The style is plain, but pretty and in conformity with other dwellings erected on this tract.

A handsome structure will soon be erected on Sanderson avenue near Delaware street by the Ballentine Brewing company, of New York city. It will be a single frame dwelling of fourteen rooms, including a finished attic. The interior finishings will be of a first class and up-to-date order. A hot water system will be used for heating purposes. The cost will probably reach $5,000. The plans were drawn up by Architect E. G. Worden and the dwelling will be occupied by E. G. Harkitt, Mrs. Albert Lewis, Mrs. Harry Meyers, Mrs. Samuel Harris, Mrs. S. B. Price and Mrs. E. Petrick, and Misses Norma Williams, Cora Bussell, Margaret Evans, Francis and Marian Phillips.

Architect E. G. Worden is drawing up plans for an eight room dwelling to be erected on Price street. The owner will be C. C. Ferber, of Clemens, Ferber and O'Malley. Plans are also out for a ten room dwelling for County Auditor Frederick Ward. This dwelling will be erected in Woodlawn park.

ESTATE SCHOOL APPROPRIATION.

Scranton Gets Its First Slice Out of a Total of $75,000.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

[Under this heading short letters of interest will be published when accompanied, for publication, by the writer's name. The Tribune will be held responsible for opinions here expressed.]

A Correction.

Editor of The Tribune.
Sir—In your article this morning pertaining to the rivalry between the Wilkes-Barre and Scranton Rifle clubs, you have made an error. By correcting same you will oblige. The total of the high scores for the Wilkes-Barre club, 235, the credit of the highest score belongs to Wilkes-Barre individually, Mr. Miller having 47 out of a possible 50 points.

NEW YORK VIEW.

The New York letter on the trade in the same issue says:
The eastern mills have placed a very considerable tonnage, taking nearly all the orders in their territory and a number of contracts from the west and north. The market has been irregular, but on the whole, have been close to $17.50 to $18 at eastern mills.

The following is from the Pittsburg letter in the same issue:
We understood that the local mill had entered orders in the past week or two for fully 150,000 tons of rails, and it may considerably exceed that amount. The outlook is that the tonnage in rails for next year will be the heaviest ever known. Somewhat under $18 has been done on recent contracts.

Editorially, the Iron Age says about the recent activity in steel rail circles:
Large as has been the tonnage of rails placed in the market, many large systems have not yet closed, although they are known to be in the market. The character of the orders, however, of the inquiries in hand makes it pretty certain that next year will exceed 2,000,000 gross tons, if indeed it does not exceed the record of 1897. This means a heavy consumption of raw material, while to the trade at large is the most important feature of the rail situation.

LARGE COAL DEAL.

Tract Acquired by the Northwestern Mining Exchange Company.
Dubois, Pa., Dec. 1.—The consummation of what is without doubt the largest coal deal ever made in this center of the bituminous coal regions was effected today. The Northwestern Mining and Exchange company, which has been operating for the past quarter of a century in Elk county, is the purchasing party, and the deal of today places them on an equal footing with the holdings of the great bituminous coal lands in the state.

The exact amount which changed hands on the deal is not obtainable, but there is no doubt that the transaction will lead to the investment of many millions in this section, and cannot but be an important factor in developing this part of Pennsylvania. The Erie falls of the river, which is the controlling power of the Northwestern, will extend its line to this place, thereby giving another competing line to the Great Lakes and the east and west.
