cal churches over the land the first week of the year has been for sometime recognized as the week of prayer to be observed universally. The question has been frequently raised as to the advisability of this particular date since frequently the faithful find their time much taken up by social duties attendant upon holiday affairs. A prominent paster remarked the other day, in explanation of the postponement of nightly services until the present week that he considered it better to do this than to have many of his young parishioners scurry home from prayer meeting to go to a dance or some other entertainment. As a con-sequence he has had a good attendance during all the past week. The sentiment connected with beginning the year with spending every evening in a prayer service has much significance, as it is a time when if ever people pause in their burried rush to think opening of a new twelve-month. The few hours thus passed in quiet medi-
