CITY CONVENTION

BEGINS THIS MORNING IN MUSIC HALL.

The Great Battle of the Day Will Be Between Hon. John E. Roche and T. J. Jennings for the Nom- bled in that part of the city. ination for Mayor - Makeup of the Democratic City Ticket Will the Principal Office-Primaries on Saturday.

In Music Hall this morning at 10 o'clock the Democratic city convention will be called order. It will nominate candidates for the following offices: Mayor, treasurer, controller, three assessors, two school directors. The great struggle is for the nomination for mayor and the battle is between Hon. John E. Roche, select eouncilman from the Seventh ward, and T. J. Jennings, school controller from the Fourteenth ward. At a late hour last night both gentlemen expressed themselves as confident of their comination. There will be sixty-four delegates in today's convention and of this number Mr. Roche claims fortyfive and Mr. Jennings forty.

Something radically wrong with the mathmatics of the proposition you will perceive.

day's convention, and the betting last night was slightly in his favor. Edmund J, Robinson, South Scranton, will be named for treasurer and Esdras Howell, of West Scranton, for controller. Jacob Smith, of North Scranton, will be one of the candidates for assessor and James Manley, of the Twelfth ward, John C. Doud, of the Nineteenth ward, and Fred Berge, of the Twenty-first ward, are the most likely candidates for the other two assessorship. Nothing of a definite nature was decided upon with reference to the school directors up to a late hour last night. An effort was made to Alexander W. Dickson accept a place on the ticket as di-

If Mr. Jennings carries off the mayoralty nomination, Edmund J. Robinson will be his running-mate as treasurer and W. A. Wilcox, of the Seventeenth ward, as controller. The assessor and school director nominations are open as yet, though a complete slate may be made when the Jennings delegates time at the St. Charles. In a room on the fourth floor of the Jermyn a party of prominent Democrats discussed the situation during the afternoon and far into the night. In the party were City Chairman D. J. Campbell, County Chairman F. J. Fitzsimmons. John J. Fahey. Joseph O'Brien. John P. Kelly, John J. D. J. Campbell, the present chairman of the Democratic city committee, will be put forward as the Roche candidate for chairman of the convention. Mr. Roche's name will be presented to the delegates by Hon. John P. Kelly.

As Jennings Views Situation.

Candidate T. J. Jennings was seen at his headquarters, adjoining Music Hall, last evening. He was surrounded by a number of the younger party workers who have been his steadfast supporters during his preliminary canvass for the nomination. He was not pleased with the treatment he received from some of the older Democrats with whom he has fought many a good fight in the past. Though annoyed, Mr. Jennings was very confident,

"I will have forty delegates in oday's convention," he said in reply to The Tribune man's question. "Tr will be sufficient to nominate me; 11' more than half the delegates who will be in the convention. Mr. Jennings' candidate for chairman of the convention will be W. G. O'Malley, of the Twentieth ward. The name of Mr. Jennings will be presented to the convention by Attorney M. J. Donohue, who will gain the privilege of the floor of the convention on the creden tials of his brother, Martin Donohue one of the delegates from the Twen tieth ward.

This morning Mr. Jennings' delegates will meet and caucus in the annex to the Grand Central hotel, adjoining Music Hall, where the Jennings headquarters are located.

Saturday's Primaries.

The primaries Saturday afternoon vere very lively. In almost every distriet in the city candidates for delegates were in the field in the interest of the rival candidates for mayor and the fighting in not a few of the districts was very spirited. As a result some bad blood was engendered and today's convention will have several contests to straighten out.

In the Seventh ward, Mr. Roche's nome, his delegates had no opposition. in the Fourteenth ward, Mr. Jennings' ome, there was all kinds of exciting dozen. fighting between the candidates for delegate favorably to Mr. Jennings, and those who favored P. J. Nealis who also resides in the Fourteenth who also resides in the Fourteenth ward. Mr. Jennings' delegates won out and thereupon the Neelin boom for and thereupon the Nealis boom for mayor collapsed. In the Sixteenth ward two election boards sat and most of those who voted deposited a ballot with each board. One board returned Harry May elected and the other Frank Callahan. The committe on contested seats will adjudi-

STEAM ROAD BETWEEN CAR BONDALE AND HONESDALE.

The Light Track Between Carbondale and Farview and the Heavy Track Between Waymart and Honesdale, with the Farview Plane as a Connecting Link, Forms the Route - Work of Widening the Tracks Was Done Yesterday-A Thousand Men Were Engaged.

Today, steam will supplant gravity as the motive power on the Delaware and Hudson road between Carbondale and Honesdale, and, instead of "the Gravity," that portion of the company's ines will be known as the Honesdale branch of the Pennsylvania division. The Gravity road ceased to exist Saturday, when the old picnic cars left Carbondale for a trip across the mountains, distributing a small army of workmen all along the route to widen the tracks and make the other improvements entailed by the change from a narrow-guage to standard track.

Work preliminary to the change has been going on for several weeks. Cuts have been widened, bridges strengthened, spikes and longer ties distributed companies in citizen attire. Chief and tool stations established at various points all along the route. The work set out for Saturday and yesterday was the taking up of the rails and moving them out an inch and a quarter on each side, the narrow guage that has been in use on the Gravity being 4 foot 6 inches, or two and one-half inches less than the standard width.

BEGAN YESTERDAY. Nearly one thousand track hands, picked up between Albany and Wilkes-Barre were engaged in the work. It was commenced at seven o'clock yesterday morning and completed- on this side of the mountain-before 2 o'clock in the afternoon. A given number of men were assigned to each mile of track and the work was carried out systematically. Everything went like clockwork and when the widening had been finished there were several hours of daylight and fine weather remain-

At Shepherd Crook, new ties and heavy rails were put in and the track was set to the extreme edge of the roadbed, in order to make the curve as easy as possible. In addition to the heavy rails of the track, substantial guard rails were extended around the curve, making it next to impossible for a train to get over the embankment. Two hundred men were engaged at the

BOY SNEAK THIEF.

Numerous Reports of Visits He Made to Houses on the "Hill." Was Caught Once, But Allowed to Escape.

The article in Saturday's Tribune on the operations of the boy sneak thief on the "hill" has brought to light a number of instances of similar cases. and points to the conclusion that work was planned on a wholesale scale and carried out in a systematic manner. It is also evident that the boy, or, more likely, boys, are abetted by older persons, for in two instances the young intruder, after getting away, was driven off in a carriage and in one instance he was seen to join a crowd of men in an alleyway.

This latter incident was noted at the esidence of William Hanley, 533 Monoe avenue. The boy was discovered pushing his way into the house unannounced, and, when held up by one of the servants, blandly inquired, "Is this where Dr. Barnes lives?" The circumstance was rather suspicious to the people in the house and the boy was watched. Instead of going towards Dr. Barnes' residence, as per directions, he went around to the rear and was shortly afterwards seen walking hurriedly away with several men.

DRIVES OFF IN CARRIAGE. At M. H. Holgate's residence, 918 Vine

was surprised, upon awakening from a doze, Friday afternoon, to see a strange boy in his room, which is on the second floor. He called for a servant, but before a response came the boy had made his escape. Mrs. Alfred Hand was reclining on a

She had been in the kitchen In consultation with the cook that afternoon and upon going to her chamber on the second floor was surprised to see a boy standing near her dressing table. She indignantly demanded the cause of his presence, and he hastened to assure her that he was looking for Mrs. Dickson. His mother, he explained, worked for that lady and he was sent to her home for some shoes she desired to give to his little brother.

He must have entered the wrong house HAVE THE YOUNG VILLAIN. His story was not believed, and he was immediately taken to the kitchen, where, with the assistance of the cook thorough examination was made of his pockets. Nothing was found there-in, but the lady remembered having eft sums of money in different places in her chamber, together with her jewels, hastened upstairs to investigate while the boy walled and protested his innocence in the grasp of the irate cook. The valuables were found untouched, and, after still more vigorously questioning the culprit, who gave his name and address and swore solemn oaths that he was a very good boy, he was allowed to go.

In her search the lady had not for gotten that she had just placed a five dollar note in her pocket book, which was thrust in the pocket of her seal skin coat on the bed in the guest chamber. She saw that the pocket book was in the same place and did not examine its contents, believing naturally enough that it had not been meddled with.
